LADY JACKET SOCCER BLOG

October 24, 2016

(Ed. Note - Guest Blog submitted this week by Grace Miorelli)

This past weekend we made our way down south, first hitting Owensboro, Kentucky on Thursday night then Nashville, Tennessee on Saturday. Thursday morning we started our four-hour (actually five-hour because of the time change) journey towards the Blue Grass state. Our game at Kentucky Wesleyan was at 9:00 pm (Eastern Time) which may or may not have been passed some of our bedtimes (Steph Craddock and Chandra Sweich). Nonetheless, our energy level was high and our effort throughout the game was fantastic. Unfortunately, we did not get the result we wanted and experienced the coldest weather of the season with rain that gently fell like snow. (Some of us took advantage of this time to sport our new CU soccer scarves).

On Friday, we had the whole day to kill. Some of us start days like this before the sun rises (Jocelyn Quirple), and some of us snooze until the last second possible (Taylor McKee). In the morning, we traveled two hours to Nashville and stopped at Wendy's on the way for lunch. Creslyn Van Dyck and many others were ecstatic about eating fast food. Every time we enter a restaurant, every employees' face is struck with dread and fear. I am not sure how the Frosty machine did not break/overheat because we ordered and consumed a record number of Frosties. We got to our new hotel and had the rest of the day to hang out. A few of us set aside an hour of the day to uncover our unknown dancing abilities. I don't know what spectators thought as they glanced through the window of the fitness center (most likely they assumed we were uncoordinated white girls with little to no dancing experience), but we'd like to think they were impressed.

After dinner, we decided to start the night off with a team bonding activity. We split the team up into groups and gave them three minutes to come up with a skit that had to include three specific words which the captains provided. The venue was far from ideal as we crammed 28 girls into one hotel room which does not allow much room for a stage...but the show must go on! Throughout these performances, there were a lot of laughs, inside jokes, as well as bad acting. But I would like to take this time to acknowledge some standout performances. I have never seen anyone imitate pickles better than Lyndsey Smith (pickle), Hanna Harris (planetarium), and Allison Garlock (merry-go-round). We were able to witness the greatest nonverbal acting of all time by Kaitlyn Walters and you all guessed it...Rachel Hooper. Bex Velloney stunned the audience during her performance as she let out her inner Meryl Streep. Also, please pray for Hannah Whicker and Stephanie Craddock as they are recovering from the "dabbing" epidemic that has struck the nation. Thank you to all who participated...even though you had no choice. After the skits terminated, we shifted to a more serious note to share what God has been doing in each one of our lives. These are the times we realize how thankful we are to be a part of such an amazing team. Next, we played games for the rest of the night, and a guest appearance was made by the one and only Kaitlyn Stiles (former Yellow Jacket).

Prior to our game on Saturday, we got lunch at the beloved Panera Bread. One of the problems with going to a restaurant with 30 or so people is that some finish eating before others get their food. This might seem like an issue for some people, but we find ways to keep ourselves entertained without getting into trouble (most of the time). We took advantage of this time (like we always do) to relive the glory days of Cup Stacking/Speed Stacking using the dinky water cups given to us. I've never seen Lindsay Boone get so competitive. We then traveled to our game and unfortunately lost a tough match to Trevecca. Even though we did not get the results we wanted, we can take a lot of positives from the weekend. For instance, if we make it through a weekend without breaking anything, it is a good weekend. But seriously, we always learn a lot from weekends like this and make memories that we will be talking about for years to come.

"For though the righteous fall seven times, they rise again, but the wicked stumble when calamity strikes." - Proverbs 24:16
