Editorial: Welcome to the Excerpts in Pharmacy Research Journal

Inaugural Editorial Welcome

The editorial board at Cedarville University School of Pharmacy welcomes you to the inaugural issue of the Excerpts in Pharmacy Research Journal (ISSN 2374-4693).

The journal is designed to focus on pharmacy research and practices across various disciplines within pharmacy and pharmaceutical sciences. The goal is to provide opportunities for creative thought, project and application of content in all aspects of pharmacy. Excerpts in Pharmacy Research Journal provides an avenue for pharmacists, pharmacy residents, professional pharmacy students and faculty to publish their relevant work. The work is related to education, scientific research and clinical practice with reportable data that would contribute novelty or insight into the pharmacy profession.

The journal aims to publish innovative research topics related to basic pharmaceutical sciences, pharmacy practice and clinical experiences. It is set up to provide a balanced approach to other pharmacy related publications worldwide. In addition, it is anticipated that the readers would use the published information in providing solutions to problems associated with patient care.

Finally, the Excerpts in Pharmacy Research Journal will be published twice yearly.
