ALUMNI NEWS

Dear Alumnus:

By the time you receive this Alumni Newsletter, the third issue of the Cedarville College Bulletin should be in your hands. We have tried through this Bulletin to present an over-all picture of our alumni, their work, and the activities in which they are now engaged. This section will be used for general alumni news, and the newsletter for information pertinent only to the alumni.

Primarily, this news was taken from answers to questionnaires returned from you and compiled and edited into news form. College officials graciously offered us this space for alumni news without charge for which we are grateful. Over the year much can be printed regarding the approximately five hundred persons engaged in various activities throughout the United States and several foreign countries.

Will you then keep us posted about your activities, births, marriages, changes of address, successes and promotions in your endeavors? You certainly enjoy reading about others. They, too, are pleased to hear what their classmates are doing.

Pictures, too, are needed! Space, of course, is limited, but one picture is worth a thousand words. Therefore if you have pictures ideal for publication, mail them to the Alumni Secretary with your name, address, and information. Then we will attempt to use them during the year.

I will be writing to some persons individually also for alumni news and pictures.

February 1966

"The only real happiness in this world derives from doing something for others--whether for a particular person or for a purpose which will aid many people. Even then, it must be done of your own free will to produce full gratification. There is no real satisfaction in giving merely to get a tax reduction, or because someone hounded you to do so. Don't deny yourself the pleasure of giving because you want to." ---copied.

Note: While the most important financial effort by our alumni this year is the campaign for payment of the film "Higher than Higher Education," many will want to participate additionally in the library campaign. This building will be another jewel on our campus and a powerful influence on our rapidly growing educational program.

When you do give in this manner or through envelopes supplied by the college, will you mark it clearly "ALUMNI" so we will have a better perspective of alumni donations?

We look forward to hearing that you can help with our film project, which, it is hoped, will be completed this spring.
