*The J.D. Willetts Middle School
Brunswick, Ohio*

On October 31, 1976, at 2:00 P.M., Jack Willetts, President of the Cedarville College Alumni Association, was honored by the Brunswick, Ohio, school system. The occasion was the dedication of Willetts Middle School, the newest of several stages in a creative master plan developed under Jack's leadership.

Jack, who graduated from Cedarville in 1958, began his career as a teacher in Brunswick. He completed a Master's degree at Western Reserve University in 1964, and consequently held the positions of Principal and Assistant Superintendent. He retired last year after seven years as Superintendent of Schools. These were years of growth for Brunswick as the small town system expanded to over 7500 students, 600 staff members and a budget in excess of 10 million dollars per year.

Willetts Middle School, which houses only the 8th grade, reflects the imaginative style of leadership which Jack provided. Similar in character to Brunswick's Hickory Ridge School, which has been featured at international expositions, the facility is not "conventional." Classrooms, which may be modified or combined, are clustered around a centralized material center. Project areas, reading labs and audio-visual workshops are conveniently integrated into the basic floor plan. Specialty areas, such as music, industrial arts and physical education, are easily reached through short corridors which surround a central auditorium/cafeteria.

Though Jack's occupation has now changed to Director of Ohio's Camp Patmos, his influence is still felt and appreciated in the Brunswick City School System. It will be many years before someone will look at Willetts Middle School and say, "Who was Jack Willetts?"

HISTORY.

The idea of establishing an institution for higher Christian education in Cedarville, originated with the General Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church in North America. This denomination is the representative in this country of the historic Covenanter Church of Scotland. The late Dr. Hugh McMillan, for many years pastor of the Cedarville congregation, manifested a warm interest in the cause of higher education and was the principal of a classical academy in Greene County, which he conducted successfully in addition to his pastoral labors. In the year 1885 the matter of establishing a literary institution assumed definite shape through a resolution offered in the General Synod by Rev. David Steele, D. D., Philadelphia, Pa., and in January, 1887, Cedarville College was duly chartered by the State of Ohio. About the same time a sum of money, amounting to about $10,000, was subscribed by the friends of the College, and since then various gifts and bequests have from time to time come into the hands of the Trustees. Notably, the late William Gibson, Esq., of Cincinnati, bequeathed $25,000 for the endowment fund. The enterprise then slumbered for a few years, owing to various causes, but in May, 1894, a fresh and most successful start was made. The General Synod elected Rev. David McKinney, D. D., of Cincinnati, Ohio, President of the College, and directed the Board of Trustees to open the College in the Autumn of the same year. The Board accordingly chose a Faculty, and on Wednesday, September 19, 1894, the College was formally opened. During the first year the College occupied the fine old mansion house in which Dr. Hugh McMillan conducted his Latin school, and which is now owned by Prof. David Steele, D. D., of Philadelphia. The accommodations, however, were not sufficient for the needs of the second year, so the Trustees erected a suitable building on the site purchased several years ago. This is but the second year of the practical existence of the College, nevertheless during the past year the attendance has almost doubled, the Faculty has been increased, liberal funds have been received, a large and commodious building has been erected, the campus has been beautified, and in entering its third year Cedarville College feels encouraged to widen its influence, fully confident in its supervisors and deeply conscious of its noble and powerful mission as a factor in the Christian education of mankind.

NEW COLLEGE BUILDING.

The New College Building stands in a campus containing over nine acres, well graded, and beautifully located on the main street, north end of Cedarville. The erection of the building was begun in the Spring of 1895 and completed late in the Autumn of the same year. However it has been occupied throughout the whole of the past year for collegiate purposes. It is a handsome building of pressed brick and cut stone, the plans and specifications of which were made by James R. Turner, of New York City. The basement contains a gymnasium room, a chemical room, toilet rooms, coal cellars, and the heating apparatus. On the first floor are four classrooms, the chapel and the President's room, besides the main and side entrance corridors. On the second floor are four class rooms, a large lecture room, and the library. Two large society rooms occupy the entire third floor. Two wide and gently ascending stairways, one on each side of the building, lead from the basement to the third story. The building is equipped throughout with electric wires. It is surmounted by a bell-tower. There are entrances on each of the four sides. Standing in the center of the campus on the highest site of Cedarville, the building presents an attractive and imposing appearance.

LOCATION OF CEDARVILLE.

Cedarville, Ohio, the seat of Cedarville College, is located on the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway, (the Little Miami Division). It has direct communication by telephone, telegraph and railroad with Xenia, eight miles southwest; Springfield, twelve miles north; London, twenty miles northeast; Columbus, forty-seven miles northeast and Cincinnati, seventy-three miles southwest. It is in the center of the Miami Valley, and is one of the prettiest as well as the most healthful locations in Ohio—free from malaria. The country lying about Cedarville is level, fertile, improved and in every way suited for a pleasant residence. Any who have

The text printed on these two pages is a reproduction from the 1896-97 Cedarville College catalogue. This publication, issued the first year after the construction of "Old Main," offers unparalleled insight into the founding and building of the college.

Subsequent issues of Aviso in 1977 will present additional glimpses into Cedarville's ninety-year history.

ninetieth annual fund

The Cedarville Alumni Fund has begun to come of age!

This year, 1977, marks the ninetieth year of annual funds at Cedarville College. However, it has only been during the past ten years that we, the alumni, have had a significant role in the financial support of the college.

From the early 1900's to the late 1950's alumni giving consisted mainly of a collection taken at the alumni association's annual meeting.

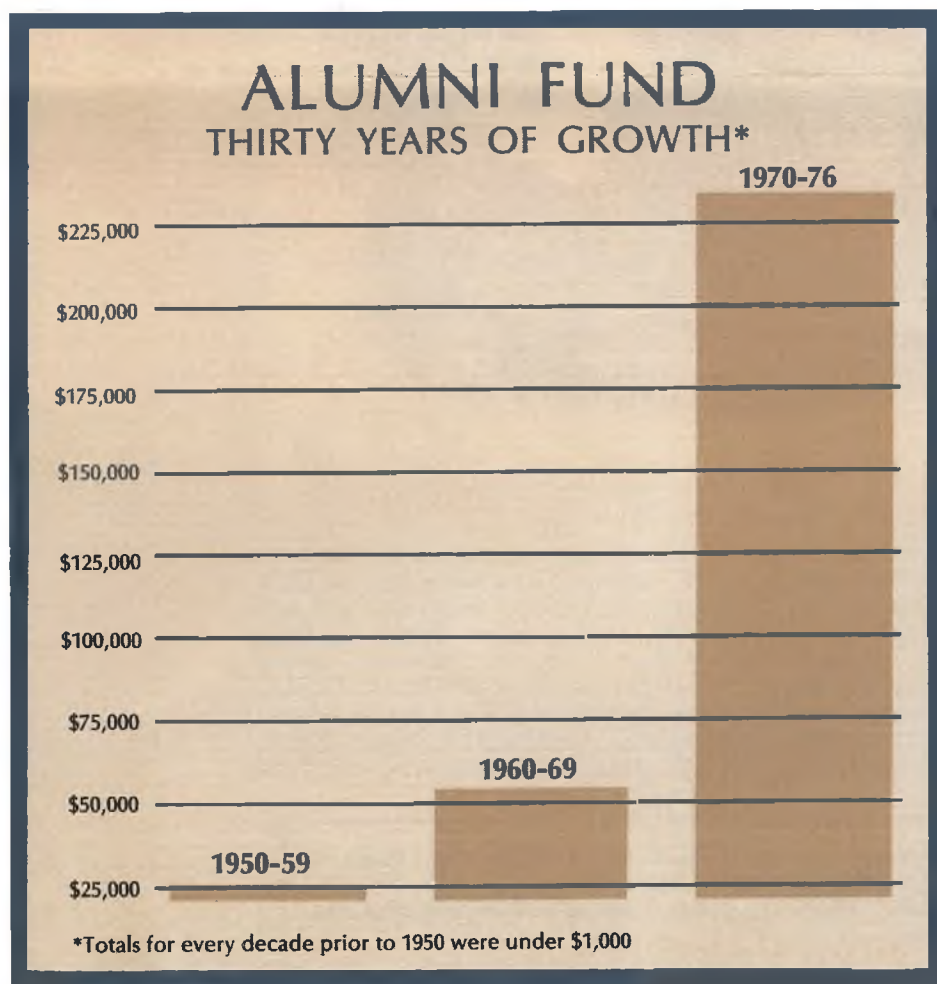

The trend began to change with the construction of a new science center on the campus. Between 1968 and 1972, alumni contributed over $100,000 to the building program. This included a $50,000 project for the "Alumni Annex" or biological science wing for the building.

The alumni fund has continued to grow (see graph below), encouraged by strong institutional advancement and academic accreditation. Cedarville's alumni now rank right at the national average for percentage of alumni contributing to their alma mater.

As we move toward the centennial of Cedarville College, the challenge is to move beyond average to an even more significant role in the future of the college.

Over 3000 alumni have never sent a gift for any part of Cedarville's program or progress. Many who, as students, decried high costs and inadequate facilities have not responded by assisting with the general fund or building programs.

Every alumnus must give to the extent of his ability if Cedarville College is to continue its present pursuit of excellence.

MEMORIAL GIFTS

During 1976 two gifts were provided by alumni for the new chapel organ by means of memorial:

From Nancy Ferrell in memory of her husband, Joe Ferrell.

From Eugene and Jean Christian, in memory of their son, Scott. The Christians wrote, "We feel that he may have one day played this organ."

Also during 1976, the spire of the new chapel was designated as a memorial to Sean Haffey by the families of David and Deborah Haffey.

As of December 31, 1976, Cedarville College has received more than twice the number of new student applications than had been received the previous year.

The 1977-78 College Calendar will be similar to this year's schedule. Students will return on September 26, and classes will resume on October 3. Homecoming is planned for October 15, 1977.

Dr. Paul Beals, Professor of Missions at Grand Rapids Seminary, was the Staley Foundation Lecturer this year. His topic was "A Biblical Strategy for World Missions Today."

The Missionary Conference this year featured all alumni speakers: Kay Lamb (65), Dan Lacey (68), William Hopewell (68H), and Vernon Weber (51BBI).

Dr. Arthur Williams, Professor Emeritus, requests prayer for his health during the winter months.

Dr. Stanley Ballard has begun a Christian counselling practice in Kettering, Ohio, with Dr. Paul Entner (69). Paul graduated from the Rosemead Graduate School of Psychology in 1976.

Dr. Martin E. Clark, Director of Counselling Services, recently co-authored the second edition of The Bible Has the Answer (Creation-Life Publishers) with Dr. Henry M. Morris.

Dr. Mead Armstrong and his wife are now in Australia for two years. They will be teaching at Spurgeon Baptist Bible Institute.

Dr. Robert Gromacki spoke at a Campus Bible Fellowship Sno-Inn at Rochester, New York, on February 4-6.

The Business Education Department now boasts a complete audio-visual instruction system including color video-tape recording and playback. The system was largely made possible by the generosity of Dennis Huddleston (70) and Darrell Lonie (72).

The Speech Department is seeking a faculty member with a drama background for the fall of 1977.

Whispering Cedars, the student newspaper, has expanded to eight pages and now features the "Weekly Special" column by Jack Anderson.

Thirty students from Cedarville College attended the Informissions conference in Grand Rapids on December 27-31, 1976.

For the first time in three years, the alumni basketball team defeated the J.V.'s (102-92) on January 15. Participating this year were John Entner (60), Norris Smith (63), Paul Entner (69), Gary McDowell (71), Lee Eck (73), Bill Potter (75), Dan Coomes (76), Sam McGinnis (76NG), Dale Thatcher (76), Dave Burtner (77) and Russ Clark (77).

As of January 15 Varsity athletic season records are as follows:

Men's Basketball 7 Wins 8 Losses (2-4 MOC)

Women's Basketball 3 Wins 1 Loss

Wrestling 5 Wins 6 Losses 2 Ties

Coming events on campus:

March 4 The Melody Four Quartet

The publication introduced on this page is the first issue of a monthly newsletter which will be sent to all alumni donors and those alumni who indicate their desire for informational mailings on an annual fund reply card.

It is hoped that One Liners, in addition to the Cedarville College Bulletin and Aviso, will more adequately serve the communication needs of loyal and interested Cedarville Alumni.

NEW LIFE MEDIA

Four Cedarville alumni, Ty Bryant (64), Stan SeEVERS (64), Roy Schisler (69) and Jack Sowards (73), have formed New Life Media, Inc. in Cedarville, Ohio.

The new organization offers photographic and media production services which include Christian day school pictures, annuals, and senior portraits as well as filmstrips and organizational fund raising with family photography. Two products recently added are custom designed missionary prayer cards and a student recruitment presentation designed to inform parents of the benefits and purposes of Christian day schools.

New Life Media, formed in August of 1976, is already assisting over 100 organizations in 7 states. Plans for the future include an expanded product line and a new building in the Cedarville area.
