GAME DAY

Monday, November 9, 2015 • 7:30 PM

The Cedarville University women's basketball team is supporting local newspaper writer Michael Cooper, his wife Carey and their children, Christian, Harper and Benny.

Fans who attend tonight's exhibition game are being asked to donate to help Cooper and his family after their Springfield, Ohio, home burned to the ground on October 21. The family was unharmed, but everything they owned was destroyed.

Kirk Martin, Cedarville's head coach, has known Cooper since Martin's days as a coach and teacher at Southeastern High School, where Cooper was a student and played multiple sports.

Their relationship extended beyond high school, when Cooper became a sports writer for the Springfield News-Sun and often covered Southeastern's games.

"Michael's a great guy, and we always had a great relationship when he was a student at Southeastern and later on when he became a writer," said Martin. "The most important thing is that his family is safe, but they're basically starting from scratch when it comes to their possessions."

While the family's insurance will help them rebuild, it won't replace everything, which is why support from the community is so important.

Several donation jars are available for fans to donate to the family. In addition, donations can also be made via www.youcaring.com/michael-cooper-and-carey-cooper-455417.

"We've gotten overwhelming support from the community," said Cooper. "The people of Clark and Greene counties are incredible. It's a great place to live and work. We're so thankful for everything they've done for us."
