BULLETIN of

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE

FEB. 1966 - MAR. 1966

LARGE GIFT RECEIVED

Mr. Edward Smith, Vice President of the Dayton Power and Light Company, is presenting a gift of $10,000 to Lee Turner, Director of Development, and Dr. James T. Jeremiah, President. This represents the largest gift ever received by the college.

Mr. Smith said that his company decided to help because after studying our need, they felt it was a worthy cause.

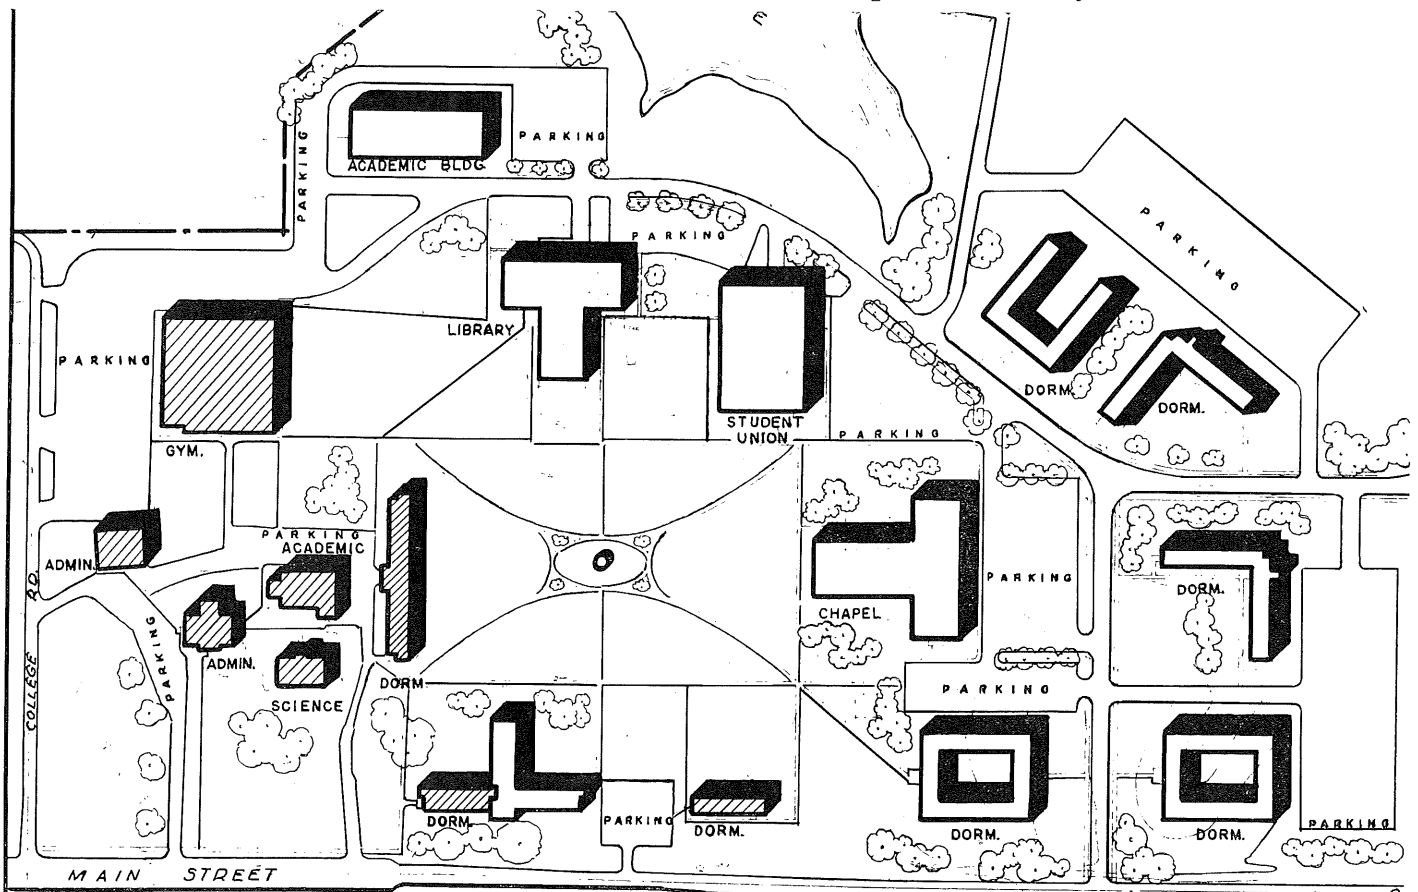

Three foundations and two businesses also responded with smaller gifts to a nation-wide appeal that was made, and others have said that they are considering our needs.

A recent gift from the faculty and other donations now bring the library fund to $132,003.06. An additional $226,000 is needed before the new library can be erected.

Plans for the proposed buildings did not materialize at the Board of Trustees' meeting on January 8. The Board was forced to reject a Tulsa, Oklahoma, firm's proposed building packet which would include a new library, a two-hundred-bed dormitory, and a new student center-cafeteria.

According to President Jeremiah, the Board is now seeking other areas which will fill the need for next year's expected enrollment of 900.

No date has been set for the ground breaking for the new library. However, working drawings have been completed and construction will begin as soon as adequate funds have been received in gifts for the library.

WALLED CITIES OR BUILDING WALLS — WHICH?

“The people be strong! The cities are walled! All the people are men of great stature! We saw the giants!” (Num. 13:28-33). Thus spoke the ten who came back from viewing the promised land. They were right. All of this was true but so was Caleb when he said, “Let us go up at once,” “for we are well able to overcome it” (Num. 13:30).

Caleb with Joshua gave the minority report and, as is often true, the minority had the right outlook on the problem. They could have overcome the enemy for “If the Lord delight in us, then He will bring us into this land, and give it us” (Num. 14:8). Someone has said “The ten put the difficulty between themselves and God. The two put God between themselves and the difficulty.” The ten spies saw as a consequence that it was “a land that eateth up the inhabitants” (Num. 13:32) while the two viewed it as “an exceeding good land” (Num. 14:7).

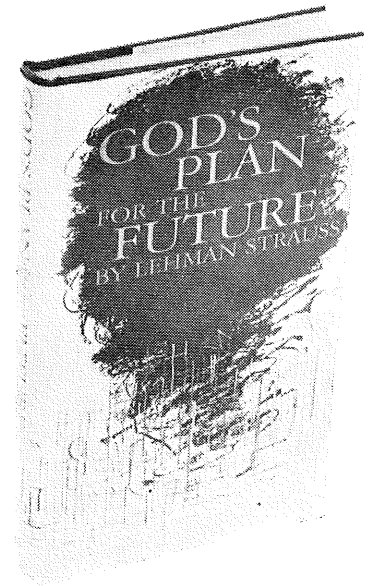

Whether or not our difficulties are overcome will depend on how or through whom we see them. Caleb, eventually, some forty years later, at the age of eighty-five, gained his “mountain” and a map will show that God gave it to him in the midst of the Amalekites, Hittites, Jebusites, etc., whom his unbelieving companions feared.

No one of us at Cedarville College claims to be a Caleb. Our problems are probably not as great as those faced by Israel. We do know the same God Who is as able today as He was in Caleb’s time. We do believe there are some other parallels, too.

With unprecedented numbers of young people making application to Cedarville, coupled with insufficient funds to build a needed library, dormitory, and cafeteria, we can see “giants and walled cities.” It is much easier from the human point of view to take the position of the ten unbelievers than that of the two who say it can be done. To take a position which is stopped by the difficulties may result in a forty-year wandering in the wilderness of doing nothing. This we cannot nor will not do! Let us believe God, step out on faith together and be victorious through and for the Lord.

Do not ask students, faculty, and trustees to exercise all the faith and be totally responsible to win your victories. Instead of turning back from the “walled cities,” let us work together in “building walls” for the new buildings needed so much by the students of Cedarville.

BOOK GIFT

Our book club exists to encourage gifts for college library books. Many of our friends participate in this program and help build a good library for themselves at the same time.

To anyone who gives ten dollars or more designated for library books, we will send a copy of “God’s Plan for the Future” by Lehman Strauss.

In our confusing times, everyone should have the comfort of knowing “God’s Plan for the Future.”

A sample of topics discussed are:

The Signs of the Times

The Only True Church

The Two Advents of Christ

The Jew and Palestine in Bible Prophecy

Can We Expect World Peace?

If you receive our bulletin through the mail, a special envelope is enclosed for your convenience.

REFLECTIONS OF AN ARTIST

The Cedarville College Artist Series presented Grant Reynard, N.A., internationally known artist, October 12, 1965. The celebrated artist studied originally at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, Paris, and London, and is a member of the National Academy.

Mr. Reynard's earlier art experience was as editor of Redbook. He has also illustrated for such magazines as Saturday Evening Post, Cosmopolitan, Harper's Bazaar, and many of his works have found their way into numerous international art collections.

The following comment was made by Mr. Reynard. "In both of my visits at Cedarville College I felt a warmth of friendliness about the whole campus in students and faculty, from President Jeremiah throughout the whole college, there was an evidence that here was Christianity truly at work. Whatever I may have contributed, I could not match the inspiration I brought away from your chapel assemblies. To be on a campus where our Lord and God's Word were reflected in all the activities — well, this brought real joy and hope to me in this time of apostasy. I say God bless you every one there at Cedarville."

PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS

We are discontinuing our semiannual prospective student days. In its place we are suggesting a day each month when prospective students are encouraged to visit our campus. We will not plan extra activities for these days but have selected days that include extracurricular activities.

INTERVIEW WITH DEAN OF STUDENTS

Richard T. McIntosh

Is there an increasing need for student aid at Cedarville?

The rising costs of higher education, the continued increase in student enrollment, and the added need for more and larger grants to individual students combine to multiply the demand for financial aid through scholarships, grants, loans, and student employment.

What is the source of funds used for student aid?

Since scholarships and grants are taken from the general operating expenses of the college, this money must be raised by gifts from churches and interested individuals.

How many students have received financial assistance this year?

During the fall semester, 120 students from eighteen states and three foreign countries and representing twenty-one different areas of major study received some form of scholarship or grant. Two hundred students were also employed by the college, and a number have participated in one of the loan programs available to Cedarville College students.

What types of aid did they receive?

Thirty-two students received academic scholarships in varying amounts up to half tuition for the first semester. Eleven athletes received grants-in-aid in amounts up to one-third of their educational costs. Twenty-five receive grants in the form of employment benefits varying from six tuition-free hours for full-time employees to full tuition for faculty and staff children. Six students who were winners in the National General Association of Regular Baptist Churches Talents for Christ contest receive special scholarship grants. Three who were second place winners receive half-tuition grants for one year, and three who were first place winners receive full-tuition grants. Forty-six students have received student aid during the first semester in the form of designated gifts from churches, foundations, and individuals.

What is the basis for giving student aid?

Merit and need are the two criteria for the awarding of scholarship and good-will grants. Athletic ability and promise as well as need are considered in the awarding of athletic grants-in-aid. Merit reflects both academic achievement and productive campus citizenship. Need is determined by confidential financial information given on scholarship applications.

What is the value of these scholarships, and who is eligible?

Individual scholarship grants this year range from $40 to $720. The student wages on campus vary from $.75 to $1.50 an hour. Funds for academic scholarships are calculated on the basis of a combination of tuition costs and a percentage of the previous year's enrollment as established by the Board of Trustees. These are awarded to freshman and upper-class students who have demonstrated high academic achievement and strong Christian testimony. A 3.0 semester average is required for continued eligibility for scholarship assistance. Fringe benefit scholarship grants provide tuition remission to members of the faculty and permanent staff and to faculty and staff husbands, wives, and children. Athletic grants-in-aid are limited to those who show outstanding ability for participation in the intercollegiate sports program.

What help is there for the student who is not an outstanding scholar or athlete?

A friend of the college, Mr. Robert Miter of Cleveland, Ohio, provides funds for several good-will scholarship grants each year. Several churches also send aid to the college designated for certain students.

What help is available for the student who does not receive a scholarship or grant-in-aid?

On-campus student employment will result in more than $40,000 in student wages this year. A number of students are also employed by area businesses and industries. Loan funds are available to Greene County residents through the McChesney Loan Fund. Residents of the State of Ohio can attain loans through local banks through the Ohio Higher Education Assistance loan program. The college underwrites student loans for residents of other states through the United Student Aid Funds, Inc., loan program. An increasing number of students participate in the loan programs each year.

What is the total student aid projected for next year, and how will this money be provided?

It is estimated that student aid in the form of scholarships, grants, loan deposits, designated student aid gifts, and campus employment will exceed $110,000 for the 1966-67 school year. Individuals and churches may assist worthy students by designating some of their gifts to student aid at Cedarville College.

BEQUESTED RECEIVED

Cedarville College recently received a bequest from the estate of Minnie L. Bentall, Toledo, Ohio. Other friends of the College wanting to remember the school in this way can use the following suggested form of bequest.

"I hereby give, devise and bequeath to Cedarville College, an Ohio Non-Profit Corporation, located at Cedarville, Ohio, the following described property:" . . .

If real estate, here describe it; if money, state amount; if stocks, bonds, etc., designate specifically.

FACULTY GIFT

At a recent chapel service on December 16, the faculty presented Dr. Jeremiah with a gift of $1,305 for the library. Mr. Rodney Wyse and Mr. Robert Gromacki were appointed by the faculty to stimulate giving for the library.

Dr. Jeremiah expressed appreciation for this sacrificial gift from the faculty. It is another expression of the faculty's dedication and their desire to see this new library constructed.

FOUNDATION GRANT

The college received a $1,500 gift for the library from the Dr. Russell G. and Blanche M. Kennedy Foundation, New Castle, Pennsylvania. Dr. Russell G. Kennedy is director of the foundation.

CEDARVILLE COSTS LOW

A report prepared by Bud Weidenthal for the Cleveland Press listed the tuition, room, and board for 56 Ohio colleges and universities.

Cedarville College had the second lowest cost among private colleges in Ohio and ranked sixth when state universities were included. Last year, only five colleges and universities in the state of Ohio had lower tuition, room, and board than Cedarville.

ALUMNI NEWS

Dr. Dale S. Thomson, a 1956 graduate of Cedarville College and now an Associate Professor at the college, received his Doctor of Philosophy degree from Ohio State University recently.

He is an Associate Professor of Biological Science and former Alumni Secretary of the college. His dissertation was on "Histogenesis of the Submucosal Proventricular Glands in the Developing Chick Embryo as Revealed by Light and Electron Microscopy." Research for both his master's and doctor's degrees was carried out under National Science Foundation (NSF) grants.

Dr. Thomson was awarded a grant from the National Science Foundation, Science Faculty Fellowship, for study in 1964-65 at the Ohio State University department of zoology.

The award provided Dr. Thomson with tuition and fees, and $7,500 for a 15-month period starting in June of that year. He was granted a leave of absence from the school.

Previously he had taken two summer sessions at Ohio State in zoology while teaching at the college and was granted a $4,350 award in 1961-62 for study in zoology at Ohio State University and was awarded a Master of Science degree upon completion.

A 1952 graduate from North Ridgeville High School, North Ridgeville, Ohio, Dr. Thomson studied for one year at Fenn College, Cleveland, before entering Cedarville College. The President's Trophy, based on scholastic ability, character, leadership, and sportsmanship, was awarded to him upon graduation from Cedarville College.

He and his wife, Virginia, reside at 117 E. Elm St., Cedarville. They have three sons: Scott, 8; David, 7; and Gregory 4.

Many Cedarville College alumni are taking further training in other schools after leaving the campus to gain advanced degrees. While the list is partial, since it represents only 39 per cent of our graduates who replied to a recent questionnaire, it does give some indication of where students are going.

The graduate schools and alumni include:

University of Chicago: Judy Walborn and Phyllis Cunningham.

A CONSTANT EYE TO THE FUTURE

Dr. Dale S. Thomson

Any progressive institution is characterized by having its roots in the past, its operation in the present with a constant eye to the future. All three are of utmost importance if the institution's effectiveness is to be significant. Being cognizant of its heritage, the institution remains stable in its existence. But only with enlightened, realistic planning will it best insure its continued effectiveness.

Many of us can recall vividly that first year, 1953-54, with its good times and bad. Had it not been for faith, determination, and sacrifice, Cedarville College as we know it today would have long since passed from the scene. We have watched our college grow to its present status, well beyond the expectations of many but a few years ago.

Yet the past can serve only as an index, a reference, for as a college, Cedarville has an obligation to its present students plus the objective of providing a sound education within the Biblical frame of reference for future students. The present, not the past, is the key to the future.

As alumni, we cannot be satisfied with our memories of past associations, activities, and accomplishments, important as they may be. We must be vitally interested in the present program of the college, for here is where the guidelines for tomorrow's program are being formulated. Through giving, praying, periodic visitation of the campus, and personal promotion, we can express this interest in a tangible manner. How much have you done in this respect?

Admittedly our Alumni Association is small, but this is no excuse for lethargy. With its growth, we can and must become one of the primary influences in the development of the future program of the college. Support your Alma Mater through your Alumni Association.

AN ALUMNA WRITES THE COLLEGE

(Used by permission)

July 17, 1965

Dear Dr. Jeremiah,

My days as a Cedarville College student have come to a rapid close. They are only history and a part of my fondest memories. The four years between September of 1961 and May of 1965 are probably the most blessed years in my life.

I praise the Lord for Cedarville College and for the stand which it takes in our society "For the Word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ." I trust and pray that the day will never come when this standard will be let down. It would certainly be wonderful to see Cedarville receive its accreditation, but I am so glad that it offers more than many accredited institutions in that it offers an education grounded in the Word of God. I would not want to see this ever sacrificed.

I am also thankful to the Lord for Cedarville's dedicated faculty and staff. I appreciate the personal interest that is taken in the individual students. It means a lot to have a person as busy as you are to take time out of your busy schedule to be concerned with our needs and problems.

I am glad that the Lord has raised up an institution such as Cedarville where we can receive a well-rounded education in preparation for our secular professions and at the same time for service for the Lord. Already this summer I have been able to put to use many of the things which I have learned right in my home church.

May the Lord richly bless you as the President of this wonderful school and the other members of the faculty and staff. I am sure that the school is going to continue to grow and expand and be used of the Lord to prepare young men and women for His service.

Thank you for all that you have done for Cedarville and for its students.

In the Bonds of Calvary,

Helen Wing
