Callan Reaches Milestone

Men's head basketball mentor Don Callan recently celebrated a milestone in his coaching career. This year's Jackets netted Callan his 400th coaching victory when they defeated Concordia on November 21.

Callan, who "came to stay" in Cedarville in 1960, attributes much of his success to a personal attitude of "stick-to-itiveness." The early years were difficult, but Dr. Jeremiah encouraged Callan and gave him the freedom to develop the athletic program the College knows today. "We've come a long way," says Callan, who ascribes his success with the athletic program, particularly the basketball team, to the quality athletes who have been recruited.

Callan encourages spiritual as well as physical development of each of his players. In 1969 he expressed his desire that students should be able to experience missions in a personal way. He and campus pastor Harold Green then formulated what is today known as M.I.S., Missionary Internship Service. Callan urges all his ball players to participate in the M.I.S. program.

Callan models a desire to serve God. He cited chapel services as "a special time of the week," and that which has had the greatest impact during his 28 years at Cedarville.

To commemorate Callan's 400th victory, many former players sent letters of appreciation and congratulations which were compiled into a notebook and presented to Coach

Callan at the alumni basketball game. Also, the signature of each of Callan's basketball athletes was reproduced on a table built to celebrate the 400th victory.

"Coaching at Cedarville has been a great experience for me," says Callan. The table and notebook will long serve as a reminder of win number 400 and the men who helped him achieve it. Callan, Lord willing, plans to remain at Cedarville and persevere through his 500th victory.

Director of Alumni Relations Gary Kuhn congratulates Coach Don Callan following the 400th win.

The coaches and faculty of the Health and Physical Education Department presented Callan with a table made from flooring in the old gym. Coach Elvin King constructed the table, Carla (Womack '83) LeMaster copied signatures of former basketball players on the top, and Christian Ministries Director Harold Green painted the court and finished it.

Honors Program A Hit

President Paul Dixon and Philadelphia Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt discuss Mike's faith in Christ. Schmidt was on campus for the Charter Day Chapel service and to speak to the sociology of sport class January 26.

Marty Breneman, broadcaster for the Cincinnati Reds, addresses the students studying the sociology of sport.

Cedarville College seeks to help each student develop his or her academic potential. Many students are currently assisted through seminars in study skills, through flexibility in their course of study, or through tutoring. And now, through the honors education program, gifted students will be challenged to realize their full potential for the glory of God.

Dr. Gary Percesepe '75, assistant professor of philosophy and director of the honors program, has been developing this program since 1985. Other faculty members have contributed ideas, and several have attended National Collegiate Honors Council conventions to learn how other honors programs are conducted and to share with consultants the curricular model Cedarville has adopted.

The honors program is not a major, but rather a series of specially designed courses that will enrich the present curriculum. Percesepe states that these courses will be "rigorous and demanding, challenging students to aspire to higher things in the world of ideas." He emphasizes that the honors program must encourage spiritual honor among the participating students and faculty and never degenerate into an elitist group separate from the rest of the College.

Admission to the program for entering freshmen is based on ACT/SAT scores, written essay, personal interview, and G.P.A. Students accepted into the program will complete seven honors courses capped by a senior research project or thesis. Three of these courses will be taken in the freshman year in a sequence known as The Making of the Modern Mind, which will focus on the history of western civilization, tracking the development of philosophic, literary, scientific, and aesthetic traditions.

In the sophomore and junior years, honor students will take a total of four Honors Integrative Seminars. Each seminar will be taught by two or three faculty members from different academic departments who have explicitly expressed interest in teaching an honors seminar. This type of team teaching affords the honor student a true interdisciplinary approach to the topic of study.

The first of these seminars, Sociology of Sport, was taught winter quarter by Michael DiCuirci, associate professor of music; Kurt Moreland '76, assistant professor of communication arts; and Percesepe. The course explored the thesis that baseball is a paradigm for social change in America and addressed issues such as a theology of play, recreating as an aspect of the image of God in man, the need for myth in the social life of man, baseball's peculiar hold on American culture, and the highly nuanced literature that has recently been written by sports journalists. Several guests were invited to address the class, including Roger Kahn (author of The Boys of Summer), Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies, and Gordy Coleman and Marty Breneman representing the Cincinnati Reds.

The senior year will see the honor student involved in a year-long tutorial relationship with a faculty member, preparing a project/thesis in his major field of study. At commencement the honor student will receive a diploma with appropriate recognition of the honors status.

Having the honors program conveys to the general public and Christian community that at Cedarville College superior scholarship is highly regarded and encouraged. The program provides opportunity for a more thorough integration of the various disciplines, and gives the student an opportunity to better understand how all knowledge relates to its source. Percesepe summarizes: "Honors offers an adventure in the world of ideas, coupled with practical incentives for transcribing faith and learning into larger culture for the glory of God, and the benefit of men and women in His image."

If you know of a prospective student who might benefit from the honors program, or if you would like additional information, contact Dr. Gary Percesepe or the Alumni Office, P.O. Box 601, Cedarville, OH 45314.

A Word With Alumni

Dear Alumnus,

Why is it that regardless of the progress made to improve the quantity and/or quality, one timeless complaint on any college campus is aimed at the food service? At Cedarville College, Pioneer Food Service goes out of its way to provide meals that are pleasing, nutritional, and as close to home cooking as possible. In this issue we salute the staff and students of Pioneer Food Service.

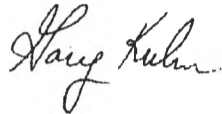

I also would like to congratulate Don Callan for his longevity and success as coach of the Yellow Jacket basketball squad and Paul Gathany for 25 years of radio broadcasting ministry at WCDR-FM.

The British Isle tour we advertised in the last issue of the AVISO booked quickly. It is the desire of the Alumni Council to provide other such tours for our alumni constituents. I bring to your attention the Shakespeare Festival Excursion September 30 and October 1. If you enjoy the theater, consider getting away for the weekend and meet us in Stratford. Tickets are limited and I have a feeling that this alumni event will also have a good response.

If you have any ideas or suggestion relating to the Alumni Association, please contact me or one of your elected representatives.

Best wishes for a great day!

Rejoicing in Him,

Gary Kuhn

Experience the World Famous Shakespeare Festival In Stratford, Ontario

September 30 & October 1, 1988
Sponsored by the Cedarville College Alumni Association

Enjoy three exciting theatrical productions, stay in Stratford's renowned bed and breakfast accommodations and spend time browsing in the speciality shops of this quaint village.

Our guest lecturer for the weekend is Professor David Robey of the Communication Arts Department. Actor, playwright, forensics advisor, and director of many of Cedarville College's productions, he will acquaint you with the background of these specially selected plays.

You will see:

The Three Musketeers Alexander Dumas' swash-buckling tale of the King's three musketeers begins in the Inns of Gascony and shifts to the courts of Versailles and England as "one for all and all for one" battle to save the honor of France.

My Fair Lady Can Professor Higgins transform a Cockney flowergirl into an elegant aristocrat? He certainly can and does in this musical based on George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion.

The Taming of the Shrew Shakespeare's fantastic comedy of the courtship of Kate the Shrew by Petruchio. Betrothed she is - and married. But tamed? The battle of the sexes borders on all-out war.

The cost for the weekend includes tickets for the 3 performances (prime seating), two nights in bed and breakfast accommodations, and a buffet luncheon in the beautiful Victorian Inn. The rate for single occupancy is $120.00 and for double occupancy is $190.00 or $95.00 per person.

Stratford in the fall is a delightful place to visit. Plan now to join your college friends for this unique experience. Tickets are limited so get your reservation in as soon as possible. The Alumni Office will take care of all the details. A deposit of $50.00 is required to hold your reservation. If you desire accommodations with friends please indicate so with your reservations. For more information contact the Alumni Office at 513/766-2211 or write Stratford Weekend, Alumni Office, P.O. Box 601, Cedarville, Ohio 45314.

Dr. Howard Hendricks, professor of Christian education at Dallas Theological Seminary, was this year's Staley Foundation Distinguished Lecturer. In addition to his three day chapel series on The Christian Home, Dr. Hendricks spoke to more than 250 pastors and wives and other missionary professionals on Developing Christian Leadership as a part of the Pastors Enrichment Day hosted by the College.

The Fight for Lights is the theme for the ambitious 1988 Student Body Project. "Installing lights for the varsity soccer field and track will enable the campus activities office to schedule evening events for the entire student body," stated Bob Gresh, project chairman. Funds are being raised by students to support the May 4, 101-mile relay run. The lights will cost $101,000 and hopefully be ready for use in September.

WCDR's new antenna is raised on the tower to make possible the power increase from 3,000 to 30,000 watts.

Paul Gathany '63, General Manager

Dear Alumnus,

I trust that you feel a real sense of joy and gratitude to God for His blessings on your alma mater during the Centennial Campaign. I'd like to take this opportunity to share with you some specifics of His provision, particularly how He met our needs through the generosity of alumni.

The Campaign for the Centennial Library was completed on schedule at the end of January, 1988. Well over 1900 individuals participated with commitments ranging from $1 to $350,000, and over 600 of these contributors were alumni.

Two special grants offered at important points during the Campaign were especially significant. The first was targeted to alumni which matched gifts given by alumni during the last six months of 1986. We are most grateful for the support of alumni as you exceeded your $150,000 goal by $28,000. The second was a challenge grant from College friends promising the final $350,000 needed to complete the Library if all other commitments reached $4.0 million by January 31, 1988. On February 1, I had the pleasure of announcing in chapel that God had provided the funds and we had reached the goal.

Alumni also contributed to other aspects of the Centennial Campaign: the Annual Fund goal was surpassed by $241,000, and an additional $1.1 million was added to the College endowment fund with $1 million of that amount targeted for student scholarships and other forms of financial aid. Alumni have responded generously through Torch Club, Charter Society, President's Associates, and the Alumni Phonothon.

I want you to know how grateful I am for your continuing support and prayers for Cedarville College. We have significant plans for the future which I believe will give you a growing sense of satisfaction with your alma mater.

Please visit campus often. Let us know how we can serve you. We love you and pray God's best for you.

Sincerely in Christ,

Paul Dixon
President

WCDR 25 Years on the Air

In 1962, while Americans were celebrating significant achievements in the nation's infant space program, many at Cedarville College were excited about the birth of a new radio station. WCDR's first broadcast came at 7:30 p.m. on December 1 live from Winona Lake, Indiana basketball contest against Grace College.

Through the encouragement of Dr. James T. Jeremiah, the station was launched by classmates Paul Gathany '63 and David Jeremiah '63. Gathany stayed at Cedarville College following his graduation to manage WCDR and is currently general manager. Jeremiah, pastor of Scott Memorial Baptist Church in El Cajon, California, hosts Turning Point, a program heard daily on WCDR. The station began broadcasting with only 10 watts of power from the third floor of what is now Founders Hall, with programming focused on the biblical truth found in Isaiah 26:3, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose MIND IS STAYED ON THEE..." As WCDR celebrates its 25th anniversary this year it continues that spiritual focus.

In celebration of the anniversary approximately 50 former WCDR employees and students gathered during Homecoming 1987 for an open house at WCDR's present location in the Communication Building. In addition, vocalist Robbie Hiner presented a concert in honor of the anniversary. All who were present enjoyed a piece of one of the 16 large "birthday" cakes baked especially for the occasion. Then in December the staff of WCDR presented a 30-minute radio drama of Charles Dickens' classic, A Christmas Carol, as an anniversary present to its listeners.

The staff of WCDR is celebrating not only 25 years of service this year, but also a ten-fold power increase to 30,000 watts. Gathany feels the increase will position the station for the future, as WCDR now has the distinction of being the only Christian station to broadcast with a Grade A reliable signal to both Dayton and Springfield. A total of two million potential listeners are within a good listening range which encompasses the Cincinnati area.

What lies ahead? Gathany says he would like to take advantage of the new technology available in the industry to reach more areas with the Gospel. WCDR currently has four FM translators in operation which rebroadcast the signal from Cedarville to the cities of Chillicothe, Portsmouth, and Wheelersburg, Ohio. The first translator was installed in Richmond, Indiana, in 1985 and continues to provide quality Christian broadcasting to nearly 40,000 people who live in that area.

Currently, WCDR is waiting for the F.C.C. to approve an application to upgrade the service in Portsmouth to 3,000 watts. Gathany said he hopes to increase the power in the other translator areas as well, which will position WCDR as the flagship station of a new network. In anticipation of these opportunities, WCDR has recently changed its identity to "CDR Radio." This will enable the station to promote its ministry with a uniform approach in all cities which it serves.

Gathany commends his present staff of five full-time and seven part-time employees. Their dedication to the Lord is reflected in their work as they encourage listeners to increase their love for and service to the Lord. The future ministry of CDR Radio is in good hands.

Assistant Professor of English Sandi (Welch '64) Harner will be conducting a Summer Workshop July 5-15, 1988, to help teachers pursue in depth topics on Teaching Writing: What to Teach, How to Teach It, and Why. Workshop topics include Journal Keeping, Sentence Combining, Paragraph Development, Responding to Students' Papers, and Development of the Student's Own Voice. The registration fee of $105 will include tuition for three Continuing Education Units, workshop materials, coffee breaks, and closing luncheon. For more information write to Dr. Michael Lopez, 1988 Summer Workshop, P.O. Box 601, Cedarville, OH 45314.

Sophomore cross country runner Eric Fillingner of Rochester, New York, set a National Christian College Athletic Association record (24:19) by shaving 33 seconds off the old John Bryan State Park course record (5 mile run). He becomes Cedarville College's second men's national champion, joining Dale Shaw '80 who won the national race in 1978.

Almost Like Home Cooking!

Do you remember the time you spent in the cafeteria during your college years—the laughter, the conversation, the practical jokes, reading your mail, cramming for an exam, developing relationships? What about the special banquets or the insightful discussions that influenced your way of thinking on a particular topic? Mealtime is much more than just a break for physical nutrition. It is a vital dimension of college life. This is particularly true at Cedarville College because the food service staff extends its responsibilities beyond that of preparing and serving food to caring for students much as they would care for their own families.

Pioneer Food Service, the company that has catered the College meals since 1980, is a Christian organization that seeks to meet the nutritional needs of students as well as to provide an atmosphere conducive to social and academic growth. Comprised primarily of born-again believers, Pioneer services only church affiliated schools throughout the United States. The company operates from a Christian perspective and considers food service a ministry to college students. Pioneer's full-time staff includes Chuck McKinney, director; Steve Bandi and Glenn Stahlman, assistant directors; Patty Beam, secretary/banquet coordinator; and 11 cooks and bakers. Between 170 and 200 part-time student workers complete the food service staff.

Many changes have been made to improve the quality of food service at Cedarville College since Pioneer came to campus. Moving into the old gymnasium allowed expanded dining area and serving lines. Salad bars, fruit carts, condiment bars, and a sandwich line have been added to relieve the congestion of the three serving lines, and soup and ice cream are now available daily. Every Wednesday is a special night when carved roast beef, steak, or shrimp is served. The need for formal dining on campus was addressed through the completion of the President's Dining Room. This beautiful facility accommodates up to 40 persons and is used for administrative meetings, faculty and staff dining, and small student groups. Both the Student Government Association Food Service committee and the cafeteria suggestion box provide a means for students to voice their likes and dislikes and have been a great help to the Pioneer staff.

The biggest challenge to the food service staff is preparing three nutritious, appetizing meals each day for 1,600 students. They accept this challenge eagerly and do all they can to make institutional food as appealing as possible. It is an awesome task! Betty Hawes, head cook for the afternoon shift, was hesitant to cook for so many college students when she began working at Cedarville College 21 years ago. She recalls, "I walked through the door the first time and wasn't sure I wanted to work here. But every year it is more rewarding and now I don't want to work anywhere else!" She has developed many friendships with students over the years and always appreciates the visits she has with those who come back to Cedarville from time to time.

Although the dedicated work of the food service staff is often unnoticed by those who benefit from it the most, their servant attitudes and willingness to address specific needs and preferences are undaunted. They continually strive to meet much more than just the nutritional needs of their family - the Cedarville College family.

The snack shop was a favorite place for socializing in the early 60's.

Pioneer Food Service provided the President's Dining Room to meet special dining needs of the College.

The spacious dining hall in the Student Center served the college as a gymnasium.

“Hey, Chuck, That Was a Good Meal!”

Food Service Director Chuck McKinney

Like many other college students, Chuck McKinney helped pay for his formal education by working in the college cafeteria. With a vocational goal of minister of music and youth, he did not realize at that time how the Lord would use his practical training in the cafeteria of Mount Vernon Nazarene College to prepare him for a unique ministry later. Pioneer Food Service was started by the food service manager at Mount Vernon Nazarene College and Chuck became the company's first employee in 1973. When Cedarville College contracted Pioneer to cater in 1980, Chuck McKinney came as director of food service.

Food service entails more than just feeding students. McKinney wants each student to learn to make nutritional decisions and helps educate them about what is best to eat by providing each new student with a booklet about nutrition and through monthly newsletters. He also uses a color code system to make students aware of which foods are more nutritious than others so they can make better food value choices.

Serving food that students like is very important to Chuck. He meets weekly with the Food Service Committee of the Student Government Association to decide on menus and to plan special meals such as Lumberjack Night, Greek, Italian, or Mexican entrees, a Hawaiian luau, or a banquet. He then has to order the specific foods for the meals - in just the right quantities. He says accurate production is his biggest challenge because nobody likes leftovers! He maintains careful records of how many students eat each particular entree and on which day of the week students eat more. If it is raining, for instance, students remain in the cafeteria longer, and therefore consume more food. And Monday supper is always the best attended meal. Corn, broccoli, and green beans are selected in that order as the favorite vegetables with four to five times more corn consumed than any other vegetable. Being aware of all these factors enables Chuck to execute his responsibilities more efficiently.

Chuck takes the opportunity to get to know many students with whom he works with. He remembers one in particular - the first Student Government Association Food Service Committee Chairperson, Carla (Marling '83) Griffin. She is now a Pioneer Director at Atlanta Christian College in Georgia.

Chuck McKinney is a faithful servant who feels the best compliment he could ever receive is hearing students say, "Hey, Chuck, that was a good meal," or "I appreciate the work you did tonight." McKinney responds by saying, "I'm just like everyone else; I like to be appreciated." Since his promotion to district manager for Pioneer Food Service, Chuck deals with several colleges in the area and is sincere when he says, "Of all the schools I go to, the students at Cedarville are tops!"

Vice President of Business Kenneth St. Clair has been appointed director of a new institute which will operate under the auspices of the Business Administration Department. The institute will offer instructional programs, conduct research projects and provide consulting services in church administration, church financing, and personal financial management. Beginning in the summer of 1989 the institute will provide week-long seminars on the campus.

Relationships - we all have them - have you done anything to improve yours? Consider the July 13-16 Summer Enrichment Conference, Relationships - God's Way. In addition to hearing a great speaker like Rev. David Carder, you will enjoy dynamic videos, special music, fellowship with faculty, staff and alumni friends, and the extensive recreational facilities at Cedarville College and in the area. The conference will cover topics including How to Get Your Point Across Without Puncturing Someone in the Process, Making Up IS Still Hard to Do, and Communication - Recipe for Feeling Loved.

From the Heart

“WHAT IF...?” This has become the hallmark of a company that is trying to demonstrate to the public that their people are experts who know their trade and are willing to try different ways to get the job done better.

The church also has a job that needs to be done — reaching the lost of this world with the Gospel. And the church has its “experts” — they’re called missionaries. As one in that category, may I bring to your attention a way to get our job done more effectively; a way that involves alumni of Cedarville College regardless of age or vocation.

Let’s not forget that in seeking ways to do the Lord’s work we must never leave behind the principles of the Lord’s Book. The way I am considering is quite simple. I like to refer to it as Luke describes it — the companion principle (Acts 13:13;19:29).

A careful study of Paul’s missionary journeys brings to light an interesting dimension. Although he was perhaps the greatest missionary of all time, only once did he work alone (in Athens). Every other church planting venture involved a number of “companions.” A look at the list of people ministering with Paul reveals a doctor, writers, a politician, tent makers, young people, old people, men, and women.

Back to WHAT IF... WHAT IF we missionaries actively approach lay people who have been trained in the church and in God’s Word and who are adequately supporting themselves in their professions — WHAT IF we challenge them to be “companions” on church planting ventures? That’s right — WHAT IF we ask them to relocate their families and their work into an area of the country where they can assist a church planter? What if you alumni with a burden for church planting here in the States could use your support, encouragement, and spiritual maturity in a new work. What could happen?

For the missionary and his work:

- * Personal encouragement in difficult work — a support group
- * Multiple contacts in the target community through jobs, housing, etc.
- * Qualified lay leadership which young churches need so desperately
- * Financial support through faithful tithing
- * Long term stability in doctrine and practice

For the companions or team members:

- * Personal, active involvement in planting churches
- * Use of talents and gifts where they are needed and valued
- * No deputation
- * Practical training for later ministry
- * A direct impact on missions

Because of your strong Bible training, church background, professional training, and a burden for missions, you alumni are well suited for the companion or team ministry. What a great way to fulfill the Great Commission without an investment of time and expense in language study, extensive travel, or deputation delays. Perhaps you could be a part of this companion concept as a responsible layman using the gifts God has given you.

Sound interesting? For more information contact the Alumni Office; or Baptist Missions of North America, P.O. Box 1078, Elyria, Ohio 44036-1078; or the mission board of your choice.

The two creative words “WHAT IF...” involve some risk and much commitment — but just imagine the possibilities!

Kirk '84 and his wife Joyce (Pycraft '85) Wesselink are missionary interns with Baptist Missions of North America, serving at Abbe Road Baptist Church, Elyria, Ohio.

Alumni Night

Appropriately named “Snowcoming Weekend,” “Alumni Night” has become a winter tradition at Cedarville College. Former roundballers returned from as far away as Philadelphia and Los Angeles to participate in the February 6 event. Activities began at 10:00 a.m. with a continental breakfast for the alumnae athletes. Their game began at 12 noon before a small crowd but the action was fast and the 3 point strip a factor. The Gold team coached by Vicki Butler '80, who is recuperating from shoulder surgery, defeated the Blue team by a score of 73-62. Sally Orihood '75 was high scorer for the team and game with 28 points. Karen Headdings added 18 for the winners while Lisa Campbell led the blue squad with 22 points.

More than 250 alumni watched the men take to the floor and make some great moves. Kirk Fairhurst '86 led all players in this high scoring contest with 21 points. Rich Himes '84 tossed in 19 while Mike Smart '82 added 18. Norris Smith '63 sank 5 three pointers as he coached the Blue team to a 136-94 victory. The day’s activities included a foul shooting contest. Lori Duffield '83 hit 10 of 10 from the charity line winning the women’s division while Mark Womack '82 and Tim Danube '84 shared the men’s title, each sinking 13 of 15.

At halftime of the varsity game alumni enjoyed fellowship and refreshments in the Heritage Square, compliments of the Alumni Association.

During the Centennial activities in 1987 former Yellow Jacket pepband members enjoyed their first reunion. Their second reunion was held this year in conjunction with Alumni Night. Nearly 20 alumni produced melodious sounds during the alumni game. The alumni musicians were led by band director Mike DiCuirci.

Attention, Parents: It's Free!

Few things today are free, especially college tuition, but Cedarville College extends to children of alumni an opportunity for tuition-free summer school. This opportunity, appropriately entitled Children of Alumni Scholar Program (COASP), presents a special college experience to children of Cedarville graduates.

The program was started in 1983 with four participants, and the anticipated enrollment for 1988 is 15. It presents to high school juniors the chance to earn ten college credit hours during the summer, tuition-free! Held during the first session of summer school, the program offers classes which range from Bible and English to science and history. The five-week term demands condensed classes, yet allows for biblical integration and individual attention.

A new summer school course offering for 1988 is a required philosophy class taught by Dr. Gary Percesepe, director of the Cedarville College Honors Program. Dr. J. Michael Lopez, director of summer school, believes this class not only carries a broad Christian perspective pertinent to every growing believer, but that it also provides a sense of belonging, important to any student away from home.

COASP offers the high school student a college experience which, as Lopez states, gives "greater scholarship and admission opportunities" after high school graduation. Students who take part in this program usually find both application to colleges and adjustment to college life easier than those who do not participate.

COASP not only is a money-saver for alumni, but it also provides a way for the College to thank them for their valued support. Gary Kuhn, director of alumni relations, notes that "through this program alumni have an opportunity to enrich the educational experience of their children. And they often find themselves renewing friendships with former classmates who are also bringing their high school students to summer school." Application information is available by contacting the Alumni Office or Dr. J. Michael Lopez, Director of Summer School, Cedarville College, P.O. Box 601, Cedarville, OH 45314

Domokos Appointed President

AVISO congratulates Dr. Robert L. Domokos '62, recently appointed president of Faith Baptist Bible College and Seminary in Ankeny, Iowa.

It was at Cedarville College that Dr. Domokos made his life-changing commitment to God. As a freshman he decided that he must be willing to do anything and go anywhere for his Lord. This commitment led to many different outreaches for Christ while he attended Cedarville. He was class chaplain for four years, student council president his senior year, and was involved in a variety of Christian ministries in the area. The most fruitful of all of these was his ministry with the Springfield jail team as he and two to three carloads of students went to the jail on Sunday mornings, and then during the week visited the homes of the men who had accepted Christ to meet, witness to, and encourage their families.

Dr. Domokos met his wife, Shirley Harrington ('61), while attending Cedarville. They have two children, Michael and Brenda, who attend Faith Baptist Bible College and Seminary.

Dr. Domokos continued his education and earned his Master of Divinity and Master of Theology degree from Grace Theological Seminary. He pastored two churches, Bible Baptist Church of Huntington, Indiana, and Poland Village Baptist Church of Youngstown, Ohio, before serving the past 15 years as chairman of the Pastoral Studies Department of Faith Baptist Bible College and Seminary. Dr. Domokos earned his Doctor of Ministry degree from Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, Deerfield, Illinois.

Reflecting on his Cedarville experience, Dr. Domokos says, "Because I had to work so hard for everything that I received at Cedarville, I learned discipline and seriousness of purpose." He also notes that Dr. Dixon's example as President of Cedarville College has taught him the importance of setting goals. He is presently setting many goals for Faith, one of which includes a library expansion program.

Because of the appreciation Dr. Domokos has for his alma mater, he encourages Cedarville alumni to "support the College with prayer and finances, faithfully and regularly as an expression of appreciation for their education." And AVISO encourages alumni to pray for Dr. Domokos as he remains committed to doing anything and going anywhere for the Lord Jesus Christ!
