Summer '88

Only Fear the Lord and Serve Him

On June 4, 1988, as their college career came to a climax, the Class of 1988 considered this scripture verse as President Paul Dixon, in his commencement address, challenged the 369 graduates to serve the Lord always.

Only fear the Lord and serve Him in truth with all your heart; for consider what great things He has done for you. 1 Samuel 12:24.

Rev. Vernon Miller '63, received an Honorary Doctor of Letters degree. He serves as Executive Editor of Regular Baptist Press and Editor of the Baptist Bulletin. Summer '88

Three Hundred and Sixty - Nine New Alumni

At the 92nd annual commencement of Cedarville College 369 graduates received their degrees and joined the ranks of the Alumni Association. Of the 31 majors offered at the College, those with the most graduates were elementary education, 59, business administration, 51, and nursing, 44. The College awarded the associate degree in secretarial science to 13 students and the one-year Bible certificate to three. Graduates who were commissioned as second lieutenants in the military were Raymond Washburn, U.S. Army, and Randy Amos and Deborah Borleis, U.S. Air Force. Senior class president Timothy Beach of East Randolph, New York, presented, on behalf of his class, two gifts to the College. The first, 88 trees of various kinds, which were planted on the campus during spring quarter. Leigh Hunt '54, director of the physical plant, expressed deep appreciation for this gift. "Paul Ware, head groundskeeper, and I were concerned about the older trees on campus dying without being replaced; so we contacted a few people and were hoping to receive a few trees in the next couple of years. We were surprised and elated when the class officers explained their proposal of shade trees, flowering trees, and evergreen trees. The Class of '88 will be remembered for this gift. I'm looking forward to the changes these trees will make in the years ahead. They will add a great deal of beauty to our campus."

The second gift, given jointly from the Class of '88 and the Class of '63, is the Second Generation Investment Fund. This endowed fund will provide financial aid to children of alumni who attend Cedarville College.

The Class of '38, celebrating their golden class reunion, remembered the College with a gift of $6,040 to be used for campus directional signs.

The College conferred the doctor of letters degree on Rev. Vernon D. Miller '63 of Glen Ellyn, Illinois. Miller is executive editor of Regular Baptist Press and editor of the Baptist Bulletin. He and his wife, Alice, have five children, all of whom graduated from Cedarville College with honors between the years of 1977 and 1985.

The Faculty Scholarship Award was presented to Cory Neumann, a chemistry major from Galion, Ohio. Neumann's grade point average was 3.99.

Twins ToniLynn and TerriLynn VanBeveren of Levittown, Pennsylvania, and Daniel Hale of St. Louis, Missouri, received the President's Trophy for their testimony, leadership, sportsmanship, and academics.

The Alumni Association welcomes each of the 369 new members of the Association, congratulates them for a job well done, and wishes them Godspeed.

A Word With Alumni

Dear Alumnus,

When the Alumni Council met in April, we reviewed the objectives of both the College and the Alumni Association. We discussed the importance of communicating to you the broad scope of opportunities available for alumni to serve their alma mater. One of these opportunities is financial support.

This may be a sensitive area for you. Perhaps communicating to you the mission and objectives of the Annual Fund Office will help to produce greater understanding and interest. Please take a few minutes to read the articles regarding the Annual Fund Office on pages four and five.

Through the Alumni Association and Office you benefit from the general fund on a regular basis. The monies received by the Alumni Office from the general fund are used to publish the AVISO and to send you information about Homecoming, class reunions, the Summer Enrichment Conference, and local alumni gatherings. Our goal is to serve alumni in the best ways possible while being good stewards of what God has entrusted to us.

I hope you have a joy-filled summer. Be certain to put Cedarville College on your travel schedule and plan now to visit the campus or participate in one of the alumni functions.

Rejoicing in Him,

Gary Kuhn

Editor's note: In its continuing endeavor to expose students to alumni and to give alumni the opportunity to encourage students, the Alumni Council has begun a new program—Chat with Alumni. These sessions are designed for a small group of students studying the same major or interested in a particular vocation to talk with an alumnus who is working in that vocation or profession. In previous "Chats," Dave Dernlan '77, pastor of Grace Chapel in West Liberty, Ohio, spoke to Bible majors and Joan Cochran '62, a nurse from Willoughby, Ohio, addressed the nursing majors. In April, Ken Oliver '86, was one of four alumni who met with communication arts majors. The following is his report on that "Chat."

A Broadcast Student-Industry Seminar was held on campus April 22 under the sponsorship of the Alumni Office, Department of Communication Arts, and the Broadcast Club.

Four broadcasting alumni participated in the program which was designed to give students an opportunity to interact with communications professionals and to gain practical insights on career preparation. Each of these alumni serves in an area of specialization offered under the college's major in broadcasting: management/sales, video production, and broadcast journalism.

Representing broadcast management was Wayne Shepherd '73. After graduation, Wayne began his career as an announcer for the Moody Broadcasting Network and now manages Moody's Broadcast Programming Division in Chicago.

Also in broadcast management, but with an emphasis in sales, was Dan Poole '80. Dan is general sales manager/partner at radio station WCM in Ypsilanti, Michigan. Before becoming involved in the purchase and operation of WCM, Dan was a sales representative for WYFC, WAAM, and WWJ/WJOL.

Representing video production was Sue (Scott '83) Childress. Sue has been an assistant producer at MPTV (Maryland Public Television) and now serves as segment producer for Motorweek, a weekly program produced at the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting and distributed nationwide by PBS.

Finally, in my capacity as news editor for the recently merged Mutual Broadcasting System and NBC Radio Network in Washington, D.C., I represented broadcast journalism. Though not that long out of school ('86 Cedarville, '87 M.S., Miami University), I assured students I had the requisite sagacity of a returning alumnus by sharing my conviction that I have been aging in dog years since assuming overnight editor duties last year.

The seminar opened with a panel discussion on career preparation. Each panelist described the route he or she had taken in pursuing a career and also shared some of the soul-searching that was a part of making career decisions. Panelists fielded questions from students on a wide range of issues. Among them were perceived strengths and weaknesses in the curriculum, the relative merits of graduate education, on-the-job ethical considerations, the importance of gaining practical experience through internships, and cultivating mentoring relationships.

After the opening panel discussion, each alumnus conducted a session focusing on specific career guidance concerns in his or her area of expertise in broadcasting.

The seminar was very meaningful and rewarding to students and alumni alike. Future seminars with the Business, Psychology and English departments are being planned. Alumni, be prepared to answer the call to participate!

Cedarville College Trustees met on April 7 & 8. When the meetings were concluded a few of the decisions made directly affected students. A total 5.72% increase in tuition and room and board will be in effect starting with the fall quarter. This increase is far below those of surrounding colleges who will have increases the next school year, most in the 12%-14% range. It was also decided to build a new mens dorm similar to Willetts and it might be air conditioned.

President and Mrs. Paul Dixon jogged the first mile of the 101 mile Student Body Project Relay. Over $13,000 has been received for this project which will provide lighting for the soccer field and track. Alumni are encouraged to support the students in this endeavor. Please designate your gift to the Student Body Project.

The Annual Fund - Making the Difference between Mediocrity and Quality

An interview with Jeff Brock '84,
Senior Annual Fund Officer at Cedarville College

Annual Fund Office Staff: Jan (Spradlin '73) Greenwood, donor accountant; Carla (Womack '84) LeMaster, data clerk; Jeff Brock '84, senior annual fund officer; Sherri Watson '86, annual fund officer; Michele (Wozniak '80) Smith, office manager.

Sherri Watson leads the telemarketers by example.

Q. We're hearing more and more about the Annual Fund. Is this something new at Cedarville?

A. The Annual Fund, known to some as the General Fund, is that part of the general operating budget which is needed in excess of tuition and fees. The Annual Fund Office, however, came into being only a few years ago. It consolidated several programs at the College and developed some new ones to minister more effectively both to our students and to those who give monetary and prayer support to the College.

Q. Would you state the purpose of your department?

A. The purpose is four-fold.
1. REINFORCEMENT: To maintain for students the quality of their education and to keep their financial burdens to a minimum.
2. ATTRACTION/SOLICITATION: To provide opportunity for alumni and friends to have a significant part in the ministry of the College through their gifts.
3. MINISTRY/EDUCATION: To maintain a positive relationship with alumni and friends of the College; to educate them about the importance of the Annual Fund to the College.
4. SERVICE: To serve the interests of alumni and friends of the College.

Q. Is there a gap between what the student pays and the actual cost of his or her education?

A. Yes. In the 1987-88 school year, it amounted to about $650 per student.

Q. In bridging this gap, what things does the Annual Fund provide for our students?

A. The Fund helps to provide and recognize competent faculty and staff. It furnishes educational resources such as computers and library books and enhances our student aid capabilities. It also helps with funding such activities as residence hall programs, Christian Ministry programs, and chapel services. And it helps maintain facilities. These areas mark the critical difference between mediocrity and quality.

Q. How does the Annual Fund minister to churches, alumni, and other friends of the College?

A. CC regards fundraising from a holistic, stewardship perspective. We care primarily about the donor and about the stewardship needs he or she or even a church may have. We want him to know the benefits he brings on himself as well as to the College when he sends a gift. We know from Scripture the blessings a person receives when he gives with a joyful heart. In addition, when he gives to CC, he becomes part of a winning team, one which is accountable and gives the greatest return possible from each dollar given. And a gift to CC gives the giver involvement in the lives of every student here. The gift is multiplied 1800 times over as our young people go out to serve Christ in the world.

Q. How do you communicate your concern and opportunities for continued involvement to those who give to the College program?

A. Through three media: mail, telephone, and personal contacts. Through our telemarketing program, we thank every donor by telephone. We're also making more personal visits. These methods are a channel for immediate feedback, and we really value input from our donors.

Q. Who makes these phone calls and visits?

A. We have a great group of students who meet several times each week to make the calls. Our Development staff conducts visits and sends letters.

Q. Do you do something special for alumni?

A. We presently have six alumni who are Annual Fund consultants. They provide input on how best to serve our alumni. They also help us implement our alumni phonathon and the mailings which we send to alumni three or four times each year. (See accompanying article by Byron Shearer.)

Q. What special giving programs does the Annual Fund Office maintain?

A. We are now responsible for three programs. Two of these, the Torch Club and President's Associates, were developed about ten years ago, while Charter Society came into being during the Centennial year. There are currently 543 Torch Club members, 151 President's Associates, and 22 in the Charter Society.

Q. You mentioned student telemarketers. How do you make our students aware of the Annual Fund?

A. In conjunction with the Communication Arts Department, we go into the Fundamentals of Speech classes and give a persuasive speech about the Annual Fund for the students to critique. Next year we plan to work with the Language and Literature Department and take written reports and letters to the composition and professional writing classes. These activities not only acquaint the students with the Fund but also give them a class project. We also use almost 200 students during our phonathon effort.

Q. Is the Annual Fund Office involved in other activities?

A. We maintain all the mailing lists of the College — not only addresses, but also the personal information involved with these lists. We also process and acknowledge between 15,000-17,000 gifts to the College each year.

Q. Jeff, what brings you the greatest joy as you direct the work of the Annual Fund Office?

A. Ministering to our students and to alumni and various donors on a personal basis — knowing that what we are doing is making a difference in students' lives. The Annual Fund really does make the difference between mediocrity and quality at Cedarville College.

Cedarville's media presentation, "Reflecting the Image of God," received one of three gold medal awards from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). Other gold medal winners were Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and Northeastern University of Boston, Massachusetts.

Judges evaluated the objectives of the presentation and how well they were achieved, as well as content, script, soundtrack, photography, budgets, and use of resources. Admissions Director Dave Ormsbee '78 supervised the production of "Reflecting the Image of God."

John Oswald and Kim Fordyce were named male and female Athletes of the Year by the Yellow Jacket Club. Oswald placed 25th in the NAIA national meet and 7th place in the 3-mile run earning all American honors. As a catcher for the fast pitch softball team, Fordyce led the team with a .964 fielding and a .346 batting average and was named first team WBCC.

Alumni Provide Feedback

"Oh, brother, here's another letter from Cedarville. They probably are asking for more money." This may or may not be your response when you receive correspondence from the College.

A new subcommittee of the Alumni Council called the Alumni Annual Fund Consultants (AAFC) is taking a good look at these and other reactions to the fund raising efforts of the College.

Two factors led to the development of the AAFC. First, the tremendous success of the Centennial Campaign showed that Cedarville alumni can provide much needed help for an ever expanding facility and record-breaking student body enrollment. Second, the growing membership of the Alumni Association increases the need for involvement and representation in a number of specialized areas. Therefore, through the suggestions and help of the College Annual Fund Office and the work of the Alumni Council, the AAFC has become a reality. This subcommittee of the Alumni Council is another cooperative effort between the Association and the College for mutual benefit.

The consultants, who meet six times a year, provide feedback concerning alumni attitudes and reactions to college fund raising. They also seek to assist the Annual Fund Office in helping more alumni understand the needs of the College. They are reviewing the current systems and evaluating the present strategy with the view of developing an effective multi-year plan for fund raising activities.

Representing a variety of college class years and many different walks of life, the group attempts to accurately represent alumni attitudes and to be a channel by which other alumni can share their thoughts. The AAFC is open to suggestions and seeks to represent the Association with the goal of enhancing the ministry of the College.

From the Heart

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me..."

It was December 21, and I was making some last minute Christmas gifts. My husband Ron, a semi-truck driver, was working the night shift. Although he has driven over 350,000 miles in the past three years without a serious accident, I felt a prompting from the Holy Spirit to pray for Ron's safety on the road. I distinctly remember saying, "Lord, if Ron is ever in an accident, please keep him safe, but especially protect his head..." When I finished praying, I looked at the clock. It was 11:10 p.m. I picked up my crafts and continued working on them.

At midnight the phone rang. As I went to answer it, I thought, "That must be Ron calling to say he misses me!" But the words I heard were words that every trucker's wife hopes she never has to hear. "Ron has been in a very, very serious accident and is injured very, very seriously. You need to get to the hospital right away..." Ron was being flown by helicopter to the Tampa General Trauma Unit, the leading trauma center in the southeast. I'd never felt so helpless in my life. My husband might be dying, and there was nothing I could do. I didn't even know how to get to the hospital.

I called some friends to go with me to the hospital. During the hour-long drive I struggled with the Lord: "Why? Why my husband?" In the midst of my pain, God gave me the grace to do the hardest thing I've ever done. I bowed my head and surrendered Ron to Him. "Lord, Ron is Yours. I love him very much and I need him. But if You want to take him home, then Your will be done. I know You do all things well." A real peace flooded my soul, and I was so grateful that Ron's testimony at work was an evidence that he was ready to meet his Lord. My friends in the car had been praying, and we began to recall memory verses and to sing praise to God. The joy of the Lord was my strength!

After I arrived at the hospital, I had to wait six hours before I was finally allowed to see my husband. He was in ICU, surrounded by machines — a respirator and stomach drain with tubes in his nose and throat, heart monitor, blood pressure monitor, bandages and a cast around his arm and shoulder. He looked so good to me! My Ron — God had given him to me twice. How gracious of Him. We hugged as best we could amid the tubes and machines. Ron couldn't talk because of the tubes in his throat, so our skills in sign language proved valuable. The first thing he signed was, "The Lord saved my life." What sweet words! When most people would have been cursing or crying, my husband was praising his Lord Who had walked with him through the valley of the shadow of death. He spared Ron's life. It wasn't good driving skills or the will to live; it was and always will be the Lord our God, the Giver of all life.

The following day I went to see Ron's boss and the truck. As we discussed the accident, he told me how it took an hour to get Ron free from the wreckage. It took so long because Ron's head was pinned inside the truck. "What time did you finally get his head free from the wreckage?" I asked. "Oh, a little after 11:00." The exact time I had been praying! I didn't even know anything was wrong, but God did. He heard and answered my prayer.

A few days later I saw a copy of the police report. It said, "The officer was called to the scene to investigate a vehicular homicide." They thought Ron was dead at the scene! An officer had walked around the wrecked truck repeatedly saying, "I can't believe that man is alive. This is the worst wreck I've ever seen!" Someone else picked up Ron's Bible, covered with diesel fuel and dirt, showed it to the officer and said, "This is why that man is alive. He believes in the Lord."

In the hospital, Ron was being treated for a collapsed left lung, contusions of the lungs and heart, a compound fracture and dislocation of the left arm and shoulder, cracked ribs, burns to the throat, stomach and lungs from ingested diesel fuel and multiple cuts and bruises all over his body. He had a large bruise around his waist where the seat belt had held him.

Ron is still at home recovering from his injuries, but God has been so good to us. He has met all of our needs. He has shown us that He alone is sufficient and will walk with us through the fire and the deep water when we delight in His way.

Alumni Profiles

Frances Bradley -

A Teacher Remembered

The teachers you best remember and most respect are those who encouraged you to follow a dream, who did not laugh at your ideas, who made learning so much fun you forgot how hard it was. Frances Bradley '30, who has taught young children in Xenia, Ohio for 58 years, is such a teacher.

From her humble spirit flows a love for young children. Always striving to instill in her students an enthusiasm for education, she stressed enjoyment in learning rather than drills. She often took the children out of the classroom to give them opportunities to see and experience life beyond their small world. She valued each student and, just as her first grade teacher influenced her career choice, Miss Bradley influenced several of her students to enter the teaching profession.

Since her retirement from the Xenia City School System in 1978, Miss Bradley has tutored individual students and helped organize a preschool, where she currently is teaching. During her long career she has taught as many as three generations from the same family. She has no regrets for spending her life in education and remarks, "I enjoy teaching. If I didn't enjoy it, I wouldn't be doing it."

Thomas Wedge - Satan Hunter

Few people realize the devastating and wide-spread effects of Satanism today," says Tom Wedge '81, "Every state in the union is touched by it." Wedge is involved in exposing Satan worship and occult practices to law enforcement officials and to the general public. His desire to expose the evils of Satanism stems from his work with young people. "Parents and law enforcement officials usually know the dangers posed by alcohol and drugs," he says, "but few realize the destructive influences posed by devil worship."

A comprehensive Bible major and sociology minor at Cedarville, he also graduated from the Clark Technical Police Academy in Springfield, Ohio in 1986 and took advanced criminology classes at The Ohio State University.

Wedge is involved in law enforcement as a probation officer for the juvenile probate division of the Logan County Common Pleas Court. He also teaches a course on the criminal investigation of occult-related crimes at the Ohio Peace Officers Training Academy in London, Ohio. Since Wedge cannot separate his teaching about Satan from the truths of God, part of his class material deals with the theology of God and angels. Wedge uses this material when he speaks to law enforcement officers and other groups across the country, which affords him the opportunity to share the gospel. He and his wife Brenda operate a residential treatment center for troubled youths in Bellefontaine, Ohio.

His information about devil worship comes from personal research and from involvement in the investigation of over 200 criminal cases, two of which were capital murder cases.

As a result of his experiences, Wedge began to write a handbook for law enforcement officers about Satanism. He felt so strongly about the need for other people, especially parents, to be warned about devil worship that he wrote a 224-page book entitled The Satan Hunter.

Wedge stresses the importance of Christians getting involved in the fight against Satanism. "Statistics prove that Satan is doing a good job. We need young people who are willing to pick up the cross."
