CEDARVILLE COLLEGE LISTED

Cedarville College is now listed in the Directory of Higher Education published by the U.S. Office of Education. The listing was a result of the success of alumni at graduate institutions in the State of Ohio and the overall progress of the college. Three state universities in Ohio agreed to accept Cedarville credits on an equal basis with credits from accredited colleges.

The listing is vitally significant in that it entitles Cedarville College to be a recipient of matching gifts from any business or industry in the nation with such a program. Also, Cedarville students will have greater opportunity to participate in loan and aid programs.

Prospective donors may receive a list of the companies and corporations with matching gift programs by writing to the Alumni Director, Cedarville, Cedarville, Ohio 45314.

BASKETBALL CHURCH TOURNEY

Varsity Club at Cedarville College will be sponsoring its annual church basketball tournaments on the first two week-ends in March. Junior tournament for eighteen and under will be held March 1, 2. Senior tournament will be held March 8, 9. Entry fee will be $20.00 per tournament. For more information write to Tom Duff Box 452, Cedarville College, Cedarville, Ohio.

CEDAR DAY REVIVED

Alpha Chi, a men's honorary society, is going to revive the Cedar Day tradition which was celebrated when Cedarville College was Presbyterian. This year's custom, centered around the planting a cedar tree on campus, will be held May 11th.

A variety of activities are tentatively being planned for the community, students, parents, prospective students, and alumni. An Alpha Chi sweetheart will be selected from the junior class. An all-school picnic featuring the county fair motif add a flair to the occasion along with bicycle races, road rally, powder puff derby, and an intercollegiate tennis match. Other events scheduled the same weekend are Honors Day, Mothers' Day, and the Spring play.

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK

Dr. James T. Jeremiah, President

Cedarville is a Christian college. It exists primarily for the education of Christian young people. Each student is challenged to live a Christian life, must take 24 quarter hours of Bible, and attend the daily chapel.

Since Cedarville is a Christian college, we sometimes receive the impression that we should at least offer each student a double major: one in Bible, and another in the field of his profession. This we cannot do for the simple reason that in fairness to the student he must have sufficient opportunity to have adequate course offerings to prepare him for the profession or vocation which he desires to follow. In addition to this, a liberal arts program requires that he have certain electives and general education courses for a well-rounded education.

On the opposite extreme, there are some who would counsel us to cut the requirements for Bible to the very minimum or eliminate the Bible courses entirely, making them only electives. This proposition does not seem proper either since one of our objectives is "to establish the student in the fundamentals of the Christian faith." Another objective that is vitally related to it is "to help the student to accept his responsibility in faithful Christian service." Therefore, it is our hope that the graduates of Cedarville College will find a definite place of service in our local churches. Since many of our graduates will be serving in various professions, we believe it is important that we give them a biblical education so that they can serve in these capacities.

At this point it should be emphasized that the specified number of Bible hours, required chapel attendance, and a profession of faith in Christ as a requirement for admission does not necessarily make a Christian college Christian. There must be an integration of spiritual truth with other truths no matter where they are learned. This becomes then the responsibility of a dedicated Christian faculty. Unless the teacher lives a consistent Christian life, and also shows in the classroom the relevance of biblical truth in history, sociology, science and other disciplines, all of the college requirements of a spiritual nature become only peripheral. They do not get to the center of things.

To His disciples Jesus said, "If ye continue in My Word, then are ye my disciples indeed, and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." Here Christ equates "My Word" with "the truth." Truth, however, is not unrelated to God no matter where it is learned. "God did not create one universe of physical reality and another of spiritual reality." One truth, no matter where it is found, will not conflict with another truth regardless of the area of its discovery.

A Christian philosophy of education demands an understanding of Christian doctrine or truth and the relation of it to the other areas of learning. This point of view is considered by some to be narrow and biased. One wonders in the light of this charge what an atheistic, pagan, secularized education becomes when God and the Bible are either ridiculed in the classroom or totally eliminated from it. One would think that those who boast of fairmindedness and "academic freedom" would at least attempt to give Christian truth an honest hearing. Should the Christian teacher be criticized for bringing Christ into his classroom when the non-Christian considers himself to be broadminded and then fails to give his students an opportunity for investigation in the light of biblical revelation?

That there is a vast difference in our time between Christian education and that which is non-Christian is increasingly apparent to all who will take time to give brief study to the subject. That Christian people must support Christian education if they want their young people to become acquainted with the truth that liberates goes without saying; but even so, in order to gain this kind of support constant reminders are necessary.

In an article entitled "The Future of the Protestant College" appearing in the March 1961 quarterly, Liberal Education, Earl J. McRath said, "Colleges grounded in Christian theology will find no difficulty in attracting students. If it ever existed, the time is past when they have to sell their educational soul for a mess of materialistic pottage." If it ever becomes necessary to "sell our souls" in order to offer our youth an education which will become acceptable to a materialistic age, then it is far better if all of these institutions close their doors and use the thousands of dollars invested to build more churches and send more missionaries to those who are hopelessly lost without Christ, without the Christian philosophy of education and the Christ-centered emphasis, Christian colleges are no longer Christian, and therefore have no reason for being.

GIFT ANNUITIES WITH CEDARVILLE COLLEGE

How the Gift Annuity Works

An annuity is a written agreement by Cedarville College, which provides Annuity payments for a lifetime to the person or persons named. The entire amount invested in an Annuity is invested as a guarantee that the stated amount will be paid regularly for as long as the person or persons named in the agreement shall live. At the death of the annuitant, the portion remaining becomes a gift to the college.

The Gift Annuity meets the needs of an older person who wants to make a gift to Cedarville College but needs a guaranteed income.

Illustration

Let's assume a woman, age 73, had $10,000 in a bank at 4% interest. She wanted to make a gift to Cedarville College and wanted additional income. She could accomplish both by transferring her savings into a $10,000 Cedarville Gift Annuity. Instead of 4% she would be earning 6.3% (increase of 2.3%). She would also be making a gift to the college in the sum of $3,744.89. She could deduct this on her Federal Income Tax return (—up to 30% of her income) in the year of the transfer. Any remaining portion will be carried over into the next five years, according to provisions in the current tax law. She would receive a fixed, annual income of $630. Of this amount, only $148.68 would be taxable. The remaining $481.32 would be tax-free income.

Summary of Benefits:

- *Annual income increased by $230
- *$3,744 is deductible on current tax return
- *$630 annual income is guaranteed for life
- *$481 is tax-free annual income.
- *A significant gift has been made to Christian higher education

Pictured are Dr. Merlin Ager, professor of education, and Cedarville College president of Cedarville College. Dr. Ager recently received his doctorate degree from Ohio State University.

Dr. Robert Gromacki, professor of Bible and Greek, has been nominated by his alma mater, Baptist Bible Seminary, to be included in the 1968 edition of OUTSTANDING YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA, project of the Outstanding Americans Foundation. The annual publication honors young men between the ages of 21 and 35 for their local contributions to their professions, and community and civic organizations.

Dr. Warren Webber, professor of music, has been listed in the 1968 edition of WHO'S WHO IN THE MIDWEST. He received a Certificate of Merit for distinguished service to music and education from the Board of Directors of the DICTIONARY OF INTERNATIONAL BIOGRAPHY in which Dr. Webber is also listed. Dr. Webber is a registered basketball official of the Ohio High School Athletic Association.

Mr. Allen Monroe, assistant professor of social science, played the role of Tim in the play, "Tim Whosoever," during the holidays at the New York Hilton Hotel in New York City. Some 1500 people attended the occasion sponsored by Word of Life, and more than 60 individuals received Christ as Savior after the play.

Dr. John Reed, professor of speech, presented an artist series at Grand Rapids Baptist Bible College and Seminary November 17th. The interpretative speech recital was entitled "Drama of the Mind" and included selections from the works of Service, Frost, Newman, Rostrand, and Carmichael. Dr. Reed also used his own work, "The Encounter - Jesus and John."

Miss Joy Mackay, dean of women and assistant professor of Christian education has made revisions for the second printing of her book, Creative Counseling for Christian Camps.

Mr. Murray Murdoch, associate professor of history, attended the meeting of the American Historical Association in Toronto Dec. 28-30. Mr. Murdoch also recently attended the Conference on Faith and History, an organizational meeting of evangelical historians.

CAROL REINER HONORED

Because of the thoughtfulness and generosity of former classmates and friends of Mrs. Carol Reiner, new books will be added to the Cedarville College library in her memory. These will be selected from a list of titles to be submitted by the Biblical Education Division. All will deal with the subject of missions.

This is a fitting memorial, and one that will continue to challenge and prepare young people for missionary service for many years to come. We of the library staff wish to thank Mrs. Sandra Entner, class agent of the Class of 1959, for initiating this memorial and all of Carol's friends and classmates who contributed for this appropriate gift.

A TRIBUTE TO WCDR-FM

The following is an excerpt from an editorial which appeared in The Springfield Sun, a newspaper in Springfield, Ohio. The article written by Mr. James C. Radford complimented WUSO-FM of Wittenberg University and WCDR-FM of Cedarville College.

"The growth of college FM radio stations in recent years has added a delightful source of multifarious entertainment to the airwaves.

The vast 'wasteland' of the boob-tube has hypnotized the masses for two decades and attracted barbed criticisms from Susskind and company. The television industry is running out of quality motion pictures and substituting grade-school quality situation comedies and horse operas.

The college FM stations in Clark and Greene counties, however, have provided a source of entertainment to the community and increased the liberal arts education of college students, many of whom will follow the path of broadcasting to professional levels. . .

Turning south to Cedarville College's WCDR-FM (90-1 megacycles), the listener will find a well-balanced 17-hour day of programming similar to the WUSO format, with classical and easy-listening music, forums, sacred music and church services, sport broadcasts, weather, and news.

Students are awarded one credit hour toward graduation for each three semester hours at work at the studios of WCDR.

Station manager and faculty member Paul Gathany says the 14 announcers work a strict schedule of broadcast time 'to extend the educational impact of the college beyond the classroom to the campus and community.

The station is to function as a laboratory providing practical experience for students in radio broadcasting,' he adds.

WCDR's hefty 3,650-watt coverage is geared to adult listening audiences as far north as Urbana, including Xenia, Springfield, and the smaller surrounding communities in Clark, Champaign, and Greene counties.

Much of the $5,000 yearly operating budget is received through donations to the campus station, a spokesman reports.

The Cedarville College station is also fortunate in having the services of Mr. Gathany as a broadcasting mentor. The results of his teachings are a credit to the small college of 812 students. Listeners throughout the area enjoy well-selected music, planned discussions, and a trained announcing staff. . ."

DEVELOPMENT NEWS

The state of Ohio is issuing an emergency 25 million dollar bond issue to supply colleges in the state with money to continue building programs.

A small, private college in Dayton, Ohio, became a community college two years ago. Immediately a new multi-million dollar campus was planned, and the operating needs of the college were met with tax money. This college will receive three million dollars from the state this year for new construction.

Increased support from Federal, State, and local governments to higher education makes it increasingly difficult for the private college to compete. Many are giving up the fight and becoming community or state supported institutions.

Cedarville College is committed to fulfilling its unique ministry as a "Baptist College of Arts and Sciences." To do this, we need churches and friends who are committed to the importance of Christian Higher Education.

During our 80th Anniversary year, needs of the college are being presented to the churches by 140 volunteers. Twenty-four zone chairman are providing leadership for our 80th Anniversary Campaign. During the months of November through January, the 140 committeemen have been contacting every church in the Midwest and Northeastern part of the United States. Churches outside of this area have been mailed a "Pastors Action Folder" containing materials to present the progress and needs of the college.

In the light of recent developments in higher education, will you pray and ask what you and your church can do to help.

Initial reports from committeemen are encouraging. Dozens of new churches are being added to our mailing list. Many churches have expressed the desire to increase their giving. Over sixty "will-clinics" have been scheduled in churches and pastors fellowships.

The first of two outside stair towers to be added to the Administration Building is well under way. Both towers are estimated to cost $80,000. The towers will allow better utilization of space inside the Administration Building. After the recent fire in the President's office, Mr. Russell Jenkins, the college architect, worked out an over-all master remodeling plan for the building.

The President's new office is nearing completion. Additional remodeling of the Administration Building will be completed as funds permit.
