NCCAA NATIONALS AT JOHN BRYAN ON SATURDAY

For the seventh consecutive year, Cedarville College will be the host for the NCCAA national cross country meet to be held at John Bryan State Park this Saturday morning. The fourth annual women's championship will start at 10 o'clock, while the twelfth annual men's championship is set to begin at 11.

In the men's division, Anderson College of Indiana is the heavy favorite to defend its title in the 20-team field. The Ravens have won the meet the last four years in a row and they have another strong club this season.

Cedarville placed second a year ago, but the Jackets will get a formidable challenge from Marion College. C.C. sophomore Rob Moore could win the individual championship as he has already won four invitationals this fall. Moore was an NCCAA All-American in 1983.

The women's crown will be up for grabs among the eleven schools entered and Cedarville has a good shot at copping the title. The Lady Jackets have already beaten defending-champion Anderson once this year and it may be a race between those two rivals. Junior Jane Romig is having another fine year and she placed third in the nationals a year ago as an All-American.

Cedarville's men's squad has already qualified for the NAIA Nationals to be run in Kenosha, Wisconsin on November 17. Jane Romig will represent the women's team in the NAIA.
