Winik, Thayer named 2011-12 CU Athletes of the Year

Record-setting sprinter Alexa Winik and standout distance runner Evan Thayer were recognized as the 2011-12 Cedarville University Athletes of the Year during the Athletic Department Honors and Appreciation Dinner on April 12, 2012 in the Callan Athletic Center.

Yellow Jacket coaches and senior student-athletes along with a notable list of guests including University officials were in attendance at the annual event.

Winik, a senior from Windsor, Ontario, wrapped up her career as the finest sprinter in Lady Jacket track history. She graduates with six school records to her credit.

Winik was tabbed the NCCAA Indoor Outstanding Track Performer of the Meet for the third time in four years. She posted victories in the 200, 400 and 4 x 400 relay and additionally was an All-American in the 55 meter dash.

On the outdoor circuit, Winik was the 400 meter dash champion at the University of Cincinnati Relays. She was a multiple NAIA and NCCAA Outdoor All-American during her career and was an NAIA and NCCAA Scholar-Athlete.

Thayer, a senior from Naperville, Ill., departs CU as one of the school's more accomplished distance runners in track and cross country.

He was the cross country squad's #1 runner in every meet in 2011 and was an NCCAA All-American after placing 3rd in the national meet. He guided the team to a runner-up finish.

Thayer earned the prestigious NCCAA Wheeler Award in cross country. He also repeated as a scholar-athlete.

On the track, Thayer was the NCCAA Indoor Champion in the mile with a meet record time of 4:12.65. He achieved multiple All-America honors both indoors and outdoors, was an NAIA and NCCAA Scholar-Athlete, and also owns three school records.

Thoughts from the AD.....

Hi Yellow Jacket fans,

As I write this note, we are completing the NCAA Annual Report, which includes our final paperwork for full NCAA Division II membership. Please pray with us and for us as we complete the membership process. It has been a busy four years since we started this journey, but we hope to gain final approval in mid-July.

Dr. Alan Geist

I would like to thank all those who have been a part of the process. Each member of the Athletic Department and many others on campus have been involved. In addition, we have had a great deal of support from current students, alumni, fans, friends, etc. I will not mention names, as there are too many to write down, but thanks to all of you! It has certainly been a group effort.

As we move forward, we are beginning to put some thoughts on paper that will provide direction for the future. We hope to develop a strategic plan in accordance with the University's Vision 2020 and take advantage of a new mission field and new opportunities. We look forward to communicating with many of you as we look ahead.

As you will see in this issue of the STING, we recently held our 2012 Honors and Appreciation Banquet. The banquet always serves as a reminder of the great student-athletes that God brings to Cedarville. We are grateful for the opportunity to get to know them and we pray that He will continue to direct our seniors as they seek His plan for their future.

If I can help in any way, please drop me a note. May God bless each of you...Go Jackets!

Dr. Alan Geist is in his fourth year as the Cedarville University Athletic Director. He oversees an athletic department that includes 16 Yellow Jacket varsity sports and cheerleading.

Future goals of the Cedarville University Athletic Department:

- Continuing to pursue full NCAA membership
- Funding additional athletic scholarships
- Purchasing new scoreboard for soccer field and track & field.
- Video streaming all home athletic events

For more information on how you can help to make these goals a reality, please call Alan Geist, CU Athletic Director, at (937) 766-7768 or Bill Bigham, CU Vice-President for Advancement at (937) 766-7810.

Compliance Corner

It is a season of change here on campus. The students have left and Cedarville is much quieter. BUT, that doesn't mean the work stops; we are looking forward to a busy summer. Just like a dedicated athlete who works hard in the summer months to come back stronger and faster in the fall, in compliance, we work to be smarter and better at our jobs. During the summer quite a few individuals from campus will attend Regional Rules seminars. These seminars are three days of NCAA rules and interpretations. Sounds exciting, right?

Drew Howard

These seminars while they may not sound exciting are very important and great to attend. They provide the necessary professional development to keep Cedarville in the news for the right reasons.

Summer time also bring the camp season. Camps are an extremely important outreach opportunity on campus but also, hard work. We compliance coordinators tend to sweat out camps for the most part. Hundreds of prospect-aged kids on campus with their parents and friends talking and working with coaches and current CU athletes, always makes the hair on the back of my neck stand up. The entire administration must work hard to make sure that camps are compliant. Discounts are only available if they are published and available to everyone. We only provide apparel and goods that are purchased as a part of camp registration or the camp store.

If you have more questions about camps or what we do during the summer check out our website at:

and follow me on twitter @CedarvilleRules

Thanks for reading and GO Jackets!

Cedarville University 2011-12 Athletic Awards

The Pete and Joyce Reese Awards were presented to women's soccer player Rachel Brownfield and baseball player Alex Beelen. The awards (formerly known as the Donald E. Callan Award) recognize four-year Yellow Jacket athletes who have shown a commitment to Christian ministry, academic excellence, leadership, and athletic accomplishment.

Brownfield, a senior biology major from Hilliard, Ohio, started all 18 games for the Lady Jackets during the fall 2011 season. She was a co-captain and led the team in scoring with four goals and two assists. Brownfield played in 73 games during her four-year CU career and posted 13 goals and six assists. She is a two-time NCCAA Scholar-Athlete.

Beelen, a senior allied health major from Holland, Michigan, is a two-time NCCAA All-American and Cedarville's career leader in runs scored. He started 217 games during his Yellow Jacket baseball career and batted .376 this past spring helping CU to a record-setting 38-13 campaign. Beelen led the 2012 team with 67 base hits.

The Don and Nedra Callan Sports Ministry Awards were presented to women's cross country/track & field performer Rachel Wong and men's soccer player Ryan Thurman. They honor student-athletes for their evangelism in and through sports activities at Cedarville University.

Wong, a senior from Dillsburg, Pennsylvania, participated in numerous outreach ministries during her four years at Cedarville. She was a volunteer & youth mentor at InsideOut Youth Ministries and served as an inner city youth camp co-director in the summers of 2009 and 2010. Wong took a medical missions trip to Haiti in 2010 and served as a missionary intern in the Central African Republic last summer.

Thurman, a junior from Cincinnati, Ohio, is planning on a career in full-time sports ministry. He has served with On Goal Soccer and was the leader of the Cedarville SAY Dribblers youth soccer club. Thurman started his own campus organization for athletics and sports ministry. He will be taking missions trips this summer to Brazil and Thailand.

The Dr. and Mrs. Duane Wood Family Award was presented to Yellow Jacket baseball player Chris Fox. The scholarship was established in 1988 to assist students who have evidenced Christian character, leadership on campus, academic achievement and varsity athletic performance. The recipient must be a full-time student with a minimum GPA of 3.3. Preference is given to students with financial need. The selection committee consists of the Athletic Director, the Assistant AVP and Dean of the College of Health Professions, and a representative of the Wood family.

Chris Fox, a sophomore from Lancaster, Ohio, transferred this past year to CU from Evansville University. He appeared in 13 games with 11 starts as a back-up catcher during the 2012 Yellow Jacket baseball season.

Fox is a Dean's List student as a mechanical engineering major at Cedarville University.

Callan Inducted into Ohio Basketball Hall of Fame

by David Jablonski, Springfield News-Sun

Don Callan was not a screamer. There are plenty of those in the coaching ranks. The retired Cedarville University men's basketball coach admits he probably yelled more than he should have, but that wasn't his style.

"I wasn't a Bobby Knight," Callan said. "I respect Bobby Knight, one of the greatest coaches of all time, but he surely did lose it at times."

Callan, now 79, once tried to counsel a young coach, a rival of his who was then at Walsh University. The advice had little effect — if you know what path the young coach's career took — but you can't fault a guy for trying.

"Bobby Huggins was a good friend," Callan said. "He wrote me a nice note when I retired. I remember telling him one time, 'Bobby, you're going to be a great coach. You've got to calm down.'"

In 35 seasons with the Yellow Jackets, Callan's career crossed paths with countless coaches, and some of them, like Huggins, went on to bigger things. Callan, however, found a home at Cedarville and never left, making his mark at the university whose arena now bears his name. On Saturday, May 19, 2012 he was inducted into the Ohio Basketball Hall of Fame in Columbus.

"It's something you never think about," Callan said. "You just never figure you're going to qualify for something like that. It's a great honor."

Callan went 578-423 in a career that stretched from 1960 to 1995. He had just one losing record in his last 18 seasons, winning four Mid-Ohio Conference championships and three NCCAA Midwest Region titles.

Callan also coached men's tennis and baseball and served as athletic director for 20 years.

"Don Callan and Cedarville University are almost synonymous," said Jeff Reep, who played for Callan and later succeeded him as head coach. "He was for a lot of years sort of the face of the university and the community. As a coach he really cared about us individually. He wanted to see us grow spiritually and professionally. He was a great role model as far as being a good husband and father."

Cedarville's current men's basketball coach, Pat Estepp, said he wouldn't be where he is today without Callan.

"He's a legend," Estepp said, "not only for what he did on the court, but so much for what he did with the missions."

Callan's legacy extends all the way to the Philippines because of those missions. Callan started taking his teams overseas in 1969 and continued doing so until the end of his career. His teams would play 30 games in four weeks and also teach the gospel at halftime.

"That probably stamped my life more than anything," Callan said. "We were like the Globetrotters, going from town to town. We identified with a church in an area and had a pastor set up games before a lot of people. We were the only show in town in many games. They hadn't seen Americans since (World War II). It was good for the kids. They had their eyes opened. We ministered in the lives of the people there, and it was very satisfying."

Dr. Don Callan gives his acceptance speech after induction into the Ohio Basketball Hall of Fame.

Callan was ahead of the game in starting those sports mission trips, and on the basketball court, he was ahead of his time, too. He played basketball at Taylor University under a run-and-gun coach, and he took that style to Cedarville.

"We did get the ball up and down the floor," Reep said. "At the same time, it wasn't chaos. It wasn't out of control. We had some sets we ran. We felt like we could play in both directions, but I think the teams were known for scoring."

Callan's career saw the introduction of the shot clock and the 3-point line, two changes that transformed the game. He will always be an NAIA man and is a member of that organization, but he helped lay the groundwork for Cedarville's eventual transition to NCAA Division II.

To this day, Callan remains a big part of Cedarville. He is a commentator on the men's basketball radio broadcasts, and his wife Nedra, who often helped her husband recruit through the years, keeps score.

"She's been a great asset to me," Callan said. "She loves basketball. If we're watching basketball, I can go to bed, but she's got to watch it to the end."

Virginia-Wise and Georgetown join Great Midwest Athletic Conference as provisional members

Great Midwest Athletic Conference Commissioner Tom Daeger announced recently that the University of Virginia's College at Wise (UVa-Wise) and Georgetown College have accepted invitations to join the G-MAC as Provisional Members, effective July 1, 2012.

UVa-Wise and Georgetown, which recently announced intentions to apply for NCAA Division II membership, are the seventh and eighth member institutions of the G-MAC.

If successfully admitted into NCAA Division II candidacy, Virginia-Wise and Georgetown will become Full Members of the G-MAC and join charter members Cedarville University (Cedarville, Ohio), Central State University (Wilberforce, Ohio), Kentucky Wesleyan College (Owensboro, Ky.), Trevecca Nazarene University (Nashville, Tenn.), Urbana University (Urbana, Ohio), and Ursuline College (Pepper Pike, Ohio).

Virginia-Wise, a public, liberal arts college, is located in Southwest Virginia amid the Appalachian Mountains with an enrollment of just over 2,100 students. Georgetown, a private, liberal arts college located in Georgetown, Ky., has an enrollment of 1,400 students. The two schools will apply for NCAA Division II membership prior to June 1. If approved by the NCAA Division II Membership Committee, they will enter the candidacy process with the goal of becoming active NCAA Division II members for the 2015-16 academic year.

"As the Great Midwest Athletic Conference continues to grow, we are delighted to add The University of Virginia's College at Wise as a member school," said Cedarville President Dr. William Brown, chair of the G-MAC Presidents Council. "Their commitment to quality education and a robust experience for their student athletes complements the current membership well."

"Our members feel UVa-Wise is poised to make a smooth transition to NCAA Division II if extended an invitation to enter the membership process," said G-MAC Commissioner Tom Daeger. "UVa-Wise has illustrated the leadership and drive to, not only meet the expectations of a NCAA Division II member, but to far exceed them and we will support them in their development through the membership process if the opportunity is awarded."

The Cavaliers currently compete in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) in the Mid-South Conference and sponsor 11 sports. UVa-Wise offers student-athletes the opportunity to compete in men's and women's basketball, volleyball, football, men's and women's cross country, men's golf, men's and women's tennis and softball. The Cavaliers have won eight conference or regional titles over the course of the past five seasons and will be adding women's golf to their sport offerings beginning in 2012-13.

"UVa-Wise clearly takes pride in serving the Southwest Virginia region and in developing an athletic program that will assist in that goal," said Daeger. "We look forward to UVa-Wise assisting in the growth and development of our conference in the same fashion and are excited about the future of the G-MAC."

Dr. Brown also commented on the recent approval of Georgetown, "Georgetown College has a long history of academic rigor and athletic excellence. They will certainly become one of the anchors of the conference as we move ahead."

"Georgetown is a terrific addition to the G-MAC membership and, if approved to enter the membership process, is well positioned to make the transition to NCAA Division II," said Daeger. "The institution shares our desire to provide a complete collegiate experience for its student athletes and embraces the role in which it feels athletics should play in that endeavor."

The Tigers will be included in future G-MAC schedules, and if approved as a NCAA Division II candidate, will gain voting status in the G-MAC. Georgetown, currently a member of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) and the Mid-South Conference, sponsors 16 sports.

Included in the sports sponsored by Georgetown are baseball, men's and women's soccer, men's and women's basketball, men's and women's cross country, men's and women's golf, men's and women's tennis, football, men's and women's track and field, volleyball and softball. The Tigers have claimed multiple NAIA National Championship titles and consistently contend for the Presidents Cup of the Mid-South, highlighting a well-rounded athletic department.

"With the recent provisional additions to membership, the G-MAC continues to develop with a goal of aligning members with similar missions in this region," added Daeger. "UVa-Wise and Georgetown share an ideal with our current members and will help the G-MAC evolve into a model NCAA Division II conference."

"Georgetown has illustrated a willingness to embrace our bright future and we are proud to welcome them to our membership."

The G-MAC, which was approved by the NCAA as a member conference effective September 1, 2012, will be working through an educational assessment program for the 2012-13 academic year with the goal of beginning competition as the 24th active NCAA Division II conference by 2013-14.

Final Men's Tennis Blog from Jared Gerber

April 30, 2012

Greetings Cedarville tennis compadres,

A wise man once said, "All good things must come to an end." And sadly this wise man was correct. Our season, pending our final team meal tonight, has reached its end. Though it's a bummer that it has come to a close, we had a great last week of our season.

Jared Gerber

Monday and Tuesday were filled with wind that forced us to cancel practice on Monday and move indoors to the spacious Doden Field House on Tuesday. The return to the field house was a wonderful reminder of how great it is to be playing outside on normal courts. Wednesday we were able to practice in between rain showers and got a solid, final two hour practice in.

Thursday began the first of two rounds in the Ohio Independent Championships (OIC). We were the two seed and played Malone, a team we beat last week 9-0. We entered the match trying to not overlook our opponents. Both teams agreed to play to decision, which meant the first team to get five points would win. All other matches would be pulled no matter the score. In doubles, we won all three matches with the scores of 8-6, 8-1, and 8-1 at numbers one through three. It was a race to finish singles with Josh at number six winning 6-0, 6-0 and Bobby at number two winning 6-3, 6-1. The other four matches were then suspended with our team leading in all four. We felt that we had played well and had gotten the job done against Malone. Walsh also won their match on Thursday setting up a rematch from the previous week.

Friday was a beautiful day for tennis. We arrived at the courts and warmed up, knowing we would have to bring our best tennis to beat Walsh. We were excited to play and confident that we had a chance to win. Doubles began with a 2-1 split in favor of the Cavs. Aaron and John fought hard but couldn't come back from an early deficit, losing 8-6. Bobby and I played some of our best tennis of the season and got a 7-2 lead before losing three games. Bobby served out the last game, ending his collegiate doubles career with a solid 8-5 win. Q and Jake's doubles opponents were a different and more skilled doubles team than the previous Walsh match and defeated Jake and Q. Though doubles didn't go according to plan, we knew there were several close singles matches in our first match that could go either direction. Unfortunately, the story didn't change the second time around. We lost in straight sets in all six slots, but again with tight scores. Many of the first sets were close with Aaron losing 7-5 and John, Q, and Adam all losing with a score of 6-4. In the second set, Bobby lost in 7-5 in a tiebreak. In all of these matches, a couple points change the direction of the set and maybe the match. Even though we lost, we knew we fought hard and were proud of our season.

One of the toughest parts about ending a season is the knowledge that the seniors won't be returning next season. We had two great seniors on our team this year in Bobby and Mike. They led our team both on and off the courts, and their example as Christian men impacted our team for the better.

Jared Gerber and his Yellow Jacket tennis teammates gather for prayer before a match this spring against Malone University.

Bobby, who I must say is the best doubles partner in the world, will begin studying for the CPA in the next months. In January, he will begin working for an accounting firm called Plante & Moran in Cincinnati, which thankfully is close to Cedarville. There are tons of great memories with Bobby including bed ball on spring break '11, doing flips in the pool during spring break '12, playing bocce ball at our hotel in Kentucky last season, and running to the ocean with the team and then Bobby and I almost getting swept away by the undertow. He's been a great friend and a huge encouragement to me through the two years I've known him.

Mike will return to Cedarville next semester to finish up some classes. He then hopes to participate in Teach for America and get plugged into a church to make a bigger impact on the community. Marriage and a family are also plans down the road. Mike always is willing to help people with their tennis game. I can remember several times turning to Mike for help in a certain stroke or for advice on a shot. His tennis knowledge is definitely an asset that we will miss next year. I've enjoyed getting to know Mike over the two years and have appreciated his heart for Christ and urban ministry. He has provided helpful advice on tennis, classes, and life.

This season has flown by. It has been great to get to know the guys better and I've enjoyed the large amount of time I've spent with them over the last three months. We have shared many great memories over the year, through spring break, practice, matches, and meals. I am excited to see what God will do in our lives over the summer as we head different directions through internships, camps, work, and mission trips. We appreciate the prayers and all the support we have been shown throughout the season.

At 'your service' (for the last time),
Jared
