Zorro and Mister Bud are both eager to go on a walk—until Zorro is forced to wear a ridiculous cape-and-mask outfit. Embarrassed by his appearance, Zorro drags along in a melancholy funk, picked on by the neighborhood dogs and an annoying cat named Slim while Mister Bud tries and fails to cheer his friend up. Only after meeting another dog at park who also wears an outfit and isn't embarrassed by it does Zorro begin to feel all right again. This book, while a bit sparse in language, is wonderfully illustrated. The theme of the story would serve as good encouragement for young children who might feel insecure because they look or dress differently from their peers. Highly recommended. Reviewed by Mollie Nelson, Centennial Library Intern.
