This biographical picture book tells the story of the man who created the system for naming plants and animals. This book holds lovely watercolor illustrations, scientific names of plants and animals and a bibliography in the back of the book for additional reading, as well as actual quotes from Carolus Linnaeus himself. This book is a perfect addition to the middle school classroom or a home library for homeschooling parents. This story is somewhat lengthy, consisting of 40 pages and is therefore recommended for older children.

Highly Recommended Tesla Klinger, Centennial Library Intern
