Broadcast Major Expands Curriculum

Utilizing facilities of a college radio station, Cedarville College will offer its first interdisciplinary major next fall. The Broadcast major will involve a student with many different aspects of Broadcasting and other related subject matter as well.

According to Mr. Paul Gathany, WCDR station manager and faculty member, the Broadcasting major will encompass the areas of speech, English, social science, and business. Also for the technical-minded student, arrangements will be made, through other colleges, to include courses in electronics.

In filling the 70-hour course requirement, the student will be involved in such courses as Fundamentals of Oral Interpretation, Creative Writing, American, State, and Local Government and Psychology. Included also within the program will be courses in Advertising, Business Law, and Business Statistics.

Spring Retreat Promises Exciting Weekend Fun

Are you getting tired of routine classes, studies, cafeteria food? Are you ready for some excitement — archery, horseback riding, bowling? If so, student activities spring retreat may be just what you are looking for.

The spring retreat, April 30 to May 2, will be held at Marmon Valley Farm, in Bellefontaine, Ohio. For the low price of $10.00, you can enjoy a weekend of lodging, home cooking, pizza. In addition, you can engage in Bible study, relaxation and testimony time around a bonfire.

Evangelist Paul Dixon will highlight the weekend as guest speaker. Challenged by him and sharing with others promise a fruitful weekend. Only the first fifty to sign up can go, and time is limited.

Continuing, Mr. Gathany said it will be possible for a student to place particular emphasis on any specialized area of the program if he chooses to do so. In planning the course format, Mr. Gathany mentioned that in keeping the program as unstructured as possible will aid the student in specialization.

In completing requirement for graduation with a major in the field of communication, the student will be privileged to include many electives within his program. Electives such as Voice and Diction, Political Theory, Persuasive Communication, Philosophy and First Aid may be chosen to fulfill requirements. In concluding, Mr. Gathany said that in providing such a diversified program, the Broadcast major will be qualified not only to serve as a radio announcer, but in other areas of radio communications where needed.

Banquet Honors Christian Service Workers

More than 300 students have been invited to attend the annual Christian Service Banquet to be held Thursday April 22 in the Cedarville College cafeteria. These students have been actively engaged in various kinds of Christian service for at least two quarters. Those seniors who have completed two or more years of service for the Lord will be honored at the banquet.

One of the Christian Service groups is Swordbearers. They are presently involved in door-to-door visitation. Campus Evangelism is another group working for the Lord. Cedarville students go to Wittenberg on Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays to talk to them about Jesus Christ and how important He is in their lives. There are also projects which involve students in area churches and nursing homes as well as the OSSO home in Xenia. Several Bible clubs are also being conducted by Cedarville students throughout the community and surrounding areas.

Featured speaker for the April banquet will be Pastor David Jeremiah of the Blackhawk Baptist Church in Ft. Wayne, Indiana.

WCDR Representatives Attend National Broadcast Convention

Attending the National Association of Broadcasters Convention during the first week of April, provided Cedarville College faculty members, Mr. Paul Gathany and Mr. James Phipps with the opportunity to see and hear of the many new developments within the field of broadcasting. The two men were among 5,300 broadcasters from across the nation who took part in the week-long convention held at Chicago's Conrad Hilton Hotel.

According to Mr. Gathany, the theme of the convention was "Beginning Another Fifty" in celebration of 50 years of broadcasting. The purpose of the meetings was to hear leading people within the communication circle share their ideas and views on current matters concerning the subject.

Many exhibits were on display during the week. Mr.

Gathany mentioned that by seeing the numerous equipment displays he was able to formulate new ideas for equipment used by our own college station. Also by talking with other broadcasters, he felt that he gained many new and unique approaches to his field of interest.

Throughout the convention week, many speakers highlighted the meetings, with three being of special interest to the WCDR representatives. Mr. George Romney of Michigan spoke during a luncheon conference as did Mr. Herb Cline, President Nixon's Communications Adviser. Cartoonist Al Capp expounded with criticism of the press and policies regarding government activities within the realm of communication.

Mr. Gathany felt it was profitable week in learning of new broadcasting methods as well as gaining insight into the problems.

HAPPY, but tired, the walkers shout their glee that the long trip is just about over.

Attends Conference

Whispering Cedars, Thank you!

Thank you for the opportunity of a life time. All my life, I've dreamed of attending a professional writer's conference. Because of your backing, I was able to participate in the 27th annual Christian Writer's Conference held in Wheaton, Illinois, March 23-26.

I've been writing for nine years and in this time I've had four years of professional training in journalism.

For the past three years I've grappled with the idea of Christian writing. "Was I capable? Did I have a message? Could God use me?" These are the questions that flooded my mind. I can't answer the first question; however, two and three have been answered. Christ IS my Message. Because of a recent commitment, He CAN use me. I'm no longer my own but Christ's.

Since I was the youngest person at the conference, I was able to talk to men and women much stronger in the Word than I. Christians fully committed to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Editors of such Christian publications as "Christian Life," "Scripture Press," and many others attended.

All week, at Wheaton I felt the hand of God. He wanted me to wake up to Habakkuk 2:2. "And the Lord answered me and said, 'WRITE THE VISION,' and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it."

In closing, I can only say "TO GOD BE THE GLORY. GREAT THINGS HE HATH DONE."

Prayerfully submitted,
Jane Emerson

Smiling Activists

This article appeared in the Springfield Sun, Wednesday, April 14, 1971. We thought it was very good and would like to share it with you.

The largest demonstration by college students in this area for a long time was staged last week under noteworthy circumstances. Several hundred Cedarville College undergraduates, joined by members of the faculty and administration, marched all the way from Cedarville to Cliff Park in Springfield — and nobody was mad at anybody else.

The "walkathon" was a fund-raising stunt. Each participant had a sponsor or sponsors who paid him or her an agreed-upon sum for every mile of the hike.

It was obviously an effective idea from a financial point of view — it raised almost $20,000 for various college needs.

It was in our opinion an equally effective idea from a public relations point of view. Cedarville College is a strong Baptist institution, and a strong Baptist might prefer a term like "evangelical" to our choice of "public relations," but the general idea is pretty much the same.

In any case, call it evangelism or public relations as you will, the affair was conducted under circumstances not only remarkably well-mannered but remarkably good-natured. What seems to have impressed Springfielders who were fortunate enough to get

WALKERS pick 'em up and lay 'em down on the way to Springfield.

What About It?

Below are two editorials. Read both carefully and see if you are included. If so, we would welcome comment to the positive or negative. What do you think of our spiritual situation?

THE MEN of Cedar Park roll their log back home. Come and get it if you can.

A "Christian" School

Is Christ the Lord of our lives? Does he control our actions as we say he does? Are we sold-out to Jesus Christ?

My answer to all three would be a flat, NO!!! Oghh, a spiritual giant, a holier-than-thou, a Bible-Jack. No, just a student with two eyes and two ears.

Where do the ears fit in? Ever walk through the dorms? Rock stations like WING and WONE are heard invariably. Big deal, so what? Lord I love you, but my music is first and if you don't like it—tough. Lord you ought to know by now that rock doesn't hurt me spiritually.

What about smutty talk. Not here at Cedarville, we're a "Christian" school. Ever listen to all the 'cute' swearing that goes on in the dorms, or locker rooms? But we're not really guilty of that, are we?

Be careful little eyes what you see. Posters and suggestive phrases, so what if they're shady?

Longer hair is acceptable for Christians now! So let it hang over your ears and down over the collar. We want to look just as much like the world as possible. If we're lucky they'll never even guess we're from Cedarville.

Empty seats—where? At Sunday School, or just about any service you want. It's in vogue to miss as much church as possible and see as many movies as you can, because that really strengthens you in the Lord.

Now for the straw that will break the camel's back. Skirts—they have the strangest tendency to inch skyward. Why? Because I can't buy them long enough. I don't want anybody to think I'm not in style.

Why all of this at Cedarville? We accuse the older generation of being two-faced, when we are just as guilty of hypocrisy as they are. We say one thing and do another; to serve the One who gave all for us?

Ready for the Junk Yard

God has blessed on our campus. How? After that first editorial we're all ready for the spiritual junk yard. But are we?

Over Spring Break, three groups went out to serve Christ. Souls were saved and lives renewed to fellowship. The gals and fellows that went out came back fired-up about the reality of Christ in their lives.

Missionary Conference is evidence of God's working. Each morning faithful prayer warriors meet at 7:25. Decisions are made during the Conference as a result of the prayers of many.

God has blessed us here. Kids are anxious to serve the Lord. Fellowship is found in good solid organizations whose purposes are to glorify God. Gospel teams, campus evangelism, FWM, and others are all proof of the fact that God is working on our campus. Praise the Lord for His blessings and love for us.

Communists...Our Friends?

by Jeff Lough

The United States, for the last twenty years, has been pursuing a course of peaceful co-existence with communist countries.

We started out by helping to finance Soviet losses in their earlier years. Then we opened up trade channels and finally began making loans through the Import - Export Bank; loans many of the communist nations never had to pay back.

We are making trade agreements, nonproliferation treaties, Nuclear Test Ban Treaties, and cultural exchanges with the communist nations. The idea behind this policy is that the new communist nations will tend to be hostile, but as they mature they will peacefully fit into the family of nations. So our policy is one of the big brother watching(?) the immature outbursts of the younger brother.

Meanwhile, as we are getting to be such good friends with the communists, they are waging guerilla warfare all over the world. They are subduing millions in Eastern Europe, helping to kill our soldiers in Vietnam and Korea. They are building a society dedicated to our overthrow. If we were just brothers threatening each other with fists, ours might not be a bad policy. But I'm afraid there is more at stake than just a bloody nose.

Today we have sent a ping pong team to Red China to compete with the Chinese communist's team, and soon we are going to be sending newsmen into China. If you have thought that Red China has been an enemy of the United States for the last few years you have been mistaken. In government circles, Red China has never been considered an enemy; only a younger brother to be humored until he grows up. Red China is growing up and the United States will follow the same policy with Red China as it did with other communist nations.

Just think, our good friend Red China. I wonder how long it will be before we start shipping the starving millions in China wheat; or perhaps rocket engines: or how long will it be before we start showing Red China how we make our atomic bombs. . . I wonder.

Thoughts for Today

by Susan Leonard

Hurry up now children. Today is Easter and we mustn't be late to Grandma's house.

First, we will go to Grandma's church. You may wear your new clothes. I will be wearing the Easter Lilly your father gave me.

We will have to leave Grandma's church early to get dinner ready before the rest of the relatives arrive.

Your father bought the cutest bunny rabbit for niece, Janie. It is so fuzzy and soft. What would Easter be without rabbits?

I can't decide whether we should let the children color Easter eggs before or after dinner. Poor Grandma! Her house will probably smell like eggs for a week. One thing is for certain: the children will have to wait until after dinner before they may eat the goodies from their Easter baskets.

Oh yes, I dare not forget about the jelly bean egg hunt. It's a tradition of Easter. We parents hide the eggs all around the house. Then the child that finds the most eggs gets a prize.

Dear me! With all the rushing around and planning that must be done, Easter reminds me of Christmas.

He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. John 1:10.

New Credit Ruling Protects All

by Barry McCoy

"I'm sorry sir, but we can't accept your charge on these appliances, our credit report shows you took bankruptcy nine years ago and we can't take the risk!"

Sounds perfectly logical doesn't it? Until you find out that the man is 26 years old, makes $22,000 a year, and couldn't have gone bankrupt studying biology in High School at age 17.

So what happened? What can this man do about it? We live in a credit society. It's no secret that anything and everything can be signed for, postponing payment until a future date. It's also evident that it is our "rating" with the credit bureau that determines how much or how little we can carry on time.

Until recently a credit report was a secret invisible document that you had no way of checking into to make sure it was telling the truth about you. You also didn't know who was reading the "confidential information" it contained. If a mistake was made on your report it was impossible to try and straighten things out. All you could see was the rejection slip from the store's credit department, and the incident mentioned above might have had your name on it.

The problem has become so great that a new federal law has been enacted to protect you and your credit. It's called the Fair Credit Reporting Act, and it will go into effect April 25 of this year. Here's how it works. If a merchant denies you credit or increases your credit rates because of information on a credit report, he must inform you of this and direct you to the local credit bureau for the details.

Under this new act, you have the right to request that all the information in your file be revealed to you. If you find anything that is incorrect or incomplete the bureau must be able to prove it and show you where they received their information. If they cannot, the item must be removed completely from your file, and the correction sent, charge free, to any creditors that received the false records.

Along with this they have tightened up on who can see these reports. Unless there is a court order or you give written permission, the new law restricts access to your records to government agencies, credit, insurance, and employment agencies.

This new law appears to be a step forward in protecting you, the individual in this complex business oriented society.

That's all, see you next time, with business world.

The oracles have been proclaimed the heights of Mt. Olympus and they say that the city-state of Cedarville is quite busy. Spring has sprung and activities are really keeping my Greek friends busy.

Gamma Chi initiated nine new members Monday, April 5, 1971. The women are planning a trip to Xenia for a program of interior decorating. Also on the agenda is a "Fun Day" at John Bryan with activities and a picnic.

The gracious ladies of Kappa Delta Chi hosted a shower for their former advisor Nancy McPheeters Tuesday April 13.

Sigma Delta Kappa held a banquet for members and dates April 8 at the Holiday Inn in Springfield.

Pi Sigma Nu men are planning a "Fright Night" this quarter and they promise it will be really scary. The tutoring service for Cedar Cliff students has been initiated and is in operation on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

The men of Alpha Chi had a swimming party for members only at the YWCA in Springfield last Saturday. They are presently engaged in making plans for Cedar Weekend, May 7-8. They have ordered T-shirts, jackets, and mugs to be here this quarter. April 30 - May 1 will be a retreat at Skyview with a "Work Day" as part of the weekend. Members should now be making plans to attend this retreat.

The oracles are fading from Mt. Olympus and the city-state of Cedarville is busy carrying out its functions. Zeus wishes everyone a happy day and wants everyone to remember that the "Spirit Log" is still available and needs a change of scenery once in a while!

Work in Hong Kong

by Judy Johnson

This summer four young people, Sue Moore, Barb Cooper, Dave Jewell, and Jeff Lough, are going to Hong Kong under the supervision of the Missionary Internship Service of Cedarville College. Each of these is required to raise his or her own support, and gifts to them will be tax deductible.

MIS was begun as a service to Cedarville students. Its function is to give a short exposure to mission life to those interested in missions and also to give sort-term assistance to missionaries on the field. This summer the field chosen is Hong Kong, because Dr. Donald Callan feels that if a definite place is set, students will respond. Plans are being formed for a basketball team to travel next year. This summer Don Atherton will be serving through the ministry of basketball.

Dr. Callan has had an interest in missions, and especially missions through sports, since his college days. Two summers ago he traveled to the Philippines and Far East working in this area. This led to a special burden on his heart for Cedarville students to become more involved in mission work.

Matters came to a head last spring during the missionary conference.

Council Column

To work in Student Council this year has been a privilege for me. Now, I know that is not exactly what you would call an original opening for a newspaper article. However, the fact remains that I have enjoyed it and it has been a great privilege serving the Student Body in this fashion.

Student Council this year has really opened my eyes as far as the responsibility of the students on this campus. In the three years I have attended Cedarville College, I have never seen the Student Body respond to this responsibility as this year's Student Body.

Perhaps the area that illustrates this most graphically is the Student Body Project. You, as students, faculty, and staff have got behind me and this year's project and made it a success. Without the co-operation of the Food Service, Administration, the faculty, and this year's Student Body, could anything like the Walk-a-thon have taken place successfully?

That is what I mean by opening my eyes. Too many times I have been tempted to look in the mirror and pat myself on the back, saying, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Without the backing of you as individuals and as a Student Body as a whole, my work, all my endeavors would be in vain.

Now the time has come for you to recognize that responsibility again is knocking. We are right now in the midst of signing up for student council officers. Let's get behind these elections like never before. Let it be known that this Year's Student Council and Student Body gets things done.

Thanks,
Mike

Mid-Ohio Conference Breaks Up, Leaving Cedarville and Malone

The future of the Mid-Ohio Conference, of which Cedarville is a member, looks uncertain after four schools in the six-member league withdrew at the March 25 annual spring meeting.

Bluffton, Defiance, Wilmington and recently-crowned basketball champion Findlay pulled out of the league to join the newly-formed Hoosier-Buckeye Conference, which includes the Hoosier schools Anderson, Earlham, Hanover, Manchester, and Taylor.

The four-team withdrawal leaves the two non-football schools Cedarville and Malone with the conference. It is expected that these two schools will be asking others to join them so that the Mid-Ohio Conference might continue. Institutions being considered are: Ohio Dominican, Rio Grande, Urbana and Walsh.

Mid-Ohio competition will continue this spring, with the withdrawals effective starting this fall.

a look at the procession is the extraordinary cheerfulness that prevailed: a welcome quality in association with good works, although the campus environment of late has generally been superseded by self-righteousness or swinishness (look who was calling whom "pigs"!) or, not infrequently, both.

Perhaps the Era of Ill-Will in the groves of academe is passing, except for a few isolated pest-holes like Berkeley. But it has not as yet been replaced by any other identifiable mood; hence the Cedarville demonstrators furnished a contrast startling enough to be dramatic.

We doubt if it made any press wire services outside the state. You might call it one of those items of good news that tend to get lost in the shuffle of bad news, or anyhow disagreeable news. But we don't suppose the Cedarville people spent much time shaking their heads over that.

For one thing, when a Baptist speaks of good news he is usually thinking about the Gospel. For another, the Cedarville Baptists were intent upon performing a service for their College; almost incidentally, as it were, did it turn out to be a service for casual onlookers, reminding them of something almost forgotten in a turbulent world: that when good works really work, they remind us of how much human happiness they can generate. As Presbyterians put it in their first article of faith—and as Baptists certainly concur—man's chief end is not only to glorify God but to "enjoy Him forever."

Spring Intramurals Feature Volleyball, Tennis and Softball

Slated for this spring's intramural activities are a bit of tennis, a lot of volleyball, and a good round of slow pitch softball. Coach Walker has tried to vary the selection of sports, but yet at the same time tried not to interfere with the other activities of the spring.

Already in progress, in fact in its third night this Monday is the six man volleyball tournament. The teams are independent, made up of any six players. Two teams of the original eleven have already been eliminated in the double elimination tourney. Coach Walker decided against using power volleyball rules as most of the players are not familiar with those rules. The "dark horse" team of the tourney; that is the faculty-staff team of Dr. Johnson, Dr. Callan, and Pastor Green, to name a few is still in the tournament and fighting for the championship.

Next week the slow pitch softball league will begin. The dorms will be divided as in football with four teams from the Park, two from Williams, one from Bethel, and one from off-campus. Each team will play seven games, but no definite plans have been made concerning leagues and playoffs.

Walker also has plans for a spring tennis tournament for singles, doubles, and mixed doubles. Medicine volleyball is part of the schedule. It is volleyball played with a twelve pound ball.

A NEW SPRING SPORT at Cedarville is the "Walkathon," staged Tuesday, April 6. Approximately 650 students walked the 14 miles from Cedarville to Cliff Park in Springfield, raising almost $20,000 for the school. Despite blisters and sore feet, spirits were high, and the school's testimony for Jesus Christ shone out to the surrounding area. Truly, it was a memorable day in the history of Cedarville College!

Golfers Continue Their Improvement; Record Now 2-2

With the first four matches of the season over, the golf team has posted a record of 2-2, under the direction of Coach Gromacki.

Jim Buzzard and Jim Rickard posted individual wins while the team lost to U.D. 13-7 in the opener. Bouncing back, the team beat Earlham College in a Team Medal Match 329-344. The 329 total was one stroke away from the school record.

In the tri-meet April 8, Cedarville lost to Malone 13-7, but beat Wilmington 15½-4½. Coach Gromacki did not feel that the team played as well as in the previous match.

Cedarville has four men who can shoot under 85 and even into the 70's; because of this, the coach foresees a good year.

A quadrangular meet will be held April 13 with Central State, Rio Grande and Defiance.

Sports Focus: Success

by Glen Kemery

Spring sports here at the 'ville are in full swing, and the early results have been very promising. The track team has set three new school records, utilizing fine young prospects and a field of veterans to show evidences of a bright future for Cedarville cindermen and Coach King. Showing improvement as the season progresses, the track squad captured a three-way meet with Wilmington and Kenyon Tuesday, running away with the final score.

The tennis team is still undefeated, walloping their first four opponents quite soundly, and keeping up our tradition as tennis power in this area. Mr. Murdoch and his team members are to be commended for the excellence they have displayed on the courts thus far in the season.

The baseball team has shaken off some shaky performances to win six of their first nine games. The key to the attack appears to be their hitting power, but also important to 'Jacket success is the pitching staff, which has been shaky in some of the early games. Chances for a second-straight Mid-Ohio Conference title look very good.

Dr. Gromacki's golf squad has turned in some solid performances also, showing promise of a possible improvement over last year's squad, which chalked up the first winning season in the history of the school.

We as students of Cedarville College have a lot to be proud of. Our spring sports squads are representing us well, and deserve our support and encouragement. Sometimes it gets mighty lonely out on the field, greens, track or court, and a little encouragement goes a long, long way.

Since Whispering Cedars comes out every two weeks, it is impossible to cover all the sports events as fresh news. Therefore, I encourage you to follow the schedules and watch our teams play when they are at home. They'll appreciate it.
