

2000

Daydreams

Rob Moll

DigitalCommons@Cedarville provides a publication platform for fully open access journals, which means that all articles are available on the Internet to all users immediately upon publication. However, the opinions and sentiments expressed by the authors of articles published in our journals do not necessarily indicate the endorsement or reflect the views of DigitalCommons@Cedarville, the Centennial Library, or Cedarville University and its employees. The authors are solely responsible for the content of their work. Please address questions to dc@cedarville.edu.

Recommended Citation

Moll, Rob (2000) "Daydreams," Cedarville Review: Vol. 3 , Article 13.
Available at: <https://digitalcommons.cedarville.edu/cedarvillereview/vol3/iss1/13>

Daydreams

Browse the contents of this issue of Cedarville Review.

Keywords

Poetry

Creative Commons License

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-No Derivative Works 4.0 License.

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.cedarville.edu/cedarvillereview>

Part of the Poetry Commons

Daydreams

⌘ Rob Moll

Much time has passed since I had walked the creek
That gave to me the freedom to explore
A world both great and strong, and small and weak
And full of wonders I could not ignore.
I searched for clues of people come and gone
Beneath the shade of quiet, timeless trees.
I traveled with them on their journeys long
Down rivers flowing toward the open seas.
I swam beside the fish who loved the stream
Above the rocks and stones that paved the way.
The seaweed bounced and danced as in a dream
That fleeting, paused and laughed and skipped away.
 And though the creek no longer whispers by,
 It lives in me, where daydreams never die.