Election Campaign Hits Cedar-What?

DIXON AND GRIER quietly and unsuspectingly race to their party rally.

The Cedar-What? All Campus Convention will be held this election year on November 10, 1972 at the Gym-Student Center.

Four years ago the Cedar-What? Party was formed by Alpha Chi as the theme for their annual all-school banquet. This year, being another election year, the party tradition is being carried on.

Cedar-What? is based on the small, unique town in the southwest corner of the State of Ohio, according to Randy Brown, Alpha Chi President, where-in lies Cedar-What? College.

The 1972 Convention will culminate the efforts of the candidates and their campaign workers. This year's candidates are members of the faculty: Conservative — Jim Phipps and Dwayne Frank, and Liberals — Patsy Dixon and Jim Grier. At the convention the candidates will give their speeches; there will be demonstrations, live TV monitors and college entertainment, to name just a few of the happenings. Also, there will be representatives from the various states — shock, anxiety, frustration, etc.

In the days before the convention there will be campaigning done by the candidates in impromptu fashion in front of the Gym-Student Center.

There will be posters placed in various places on campus to notify all students of more convention news and details. Alpha Chi would like to encourage all students to get involved with their favorite candidate and support them in the coming Cedar-What? Convention.

PHIPPS AND FRANK, the People's Choice, meet all the people.

Accreditation Consultant Will Make Suggestions

Dr. George Arbaugh, Cedarville College's North Central Consultant, will be on campus Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 1 and 2. Dr. George Arbaugh, who is a professor at Augustana College, Rock Island, Illinois, will be going over a report which has been prepared by the faculty.

Cedarville is presently a "Recognized Candidate for Accreditation" in view of the North Central Association. This allows the school three years to apply for full accreditation. The N.C.A. Consultants help the candidating schools to get ready to apply for full accreditation.

The report prepared for Dr. Arbaugh contains suggestions, plans, and accomplishments concerning the weaknesses gleaned by the consultant from the Examiner's Report.

The weaknesses, according to Dr. Johnson, Academic Dean, seem to include the same central concept, "Can an institution which is committed to a strong emphasis on religious dimensions, which is 'conservative' theologically, and which has a relatively homogeneous student body and faculty, provide opportunities and the environment for students and faculty members to encounter and discuss a wide range of opinions and views?"

The report continues to list some of Cedarville's weaknesses and then applies suggestions or explanations of these weaknesses.

As our consultant is here, he'll be going through this report and will be engaging in other activities to show us how Cedarville can get ready for applying for full accreditation.

Registration Forms Foil Many As Students Start Sign-Up

"Oh, no! More forms! Cool, Joe... which address? Why do they put seven a.m. on these things?" The sounds of winter pre-registration will begin on November 13, after student-faculty conferences of Nov. 6-10. This year's pre-registration period will be five days, rather than eight as last year's, in order to make better use of secretarial help. Time to register is 8:30-11:30 or 1:30-4, on the second floor of the Administration Building. Seniors will receive their schedules through intercampus mail on Nov. 6, and register on Monday the thirteenth; juniors on Tuesday; sophomores on Wednesday, and freshmen on Thursday and Friday along with any special students.

Changes to note include the offering of American State and Local Government, to be taught by Dr. Cleveland McDonald, and the genetics course taught by Dr. Baumann, previously offered only every other year. In the science department, one course to watch for this coming spring quarter will be a course in Radiation, which will replace Advanced Microbiology. One final change to note is the switch of Man and the Arts, based on Art and Music in History, from the music department to the Interdisciplinary Studies program.

Pi Delta Provides Campus Guides

"And this is our post office," points out a student host, guiding a group of tourists through the Cedarville College campus.

This student guide is a member of Pi Delta. From the Greek word, "pandocheus," Pi Delta literally means "one who receives all comers," an innkeeper or host (Lk. 10:35).

The purpose of Pi Delta is to serve as official host or hostess for all visitors and prospective students of Cedarville College.

Membership is limited to upperclassmen with a scholastic average of 3.0 or better and with a willingness to serve the college. Consideration is also given to the student's spiritual maturity and personality. New members are added by invitation only.

Gamma Chi to Sponsor Women's Social Sunday

This Sunday, November 5, 1972, at 2:30, Gamma Chi is sponsoring a tea in honor of Mrs. James T. Jeremiah. In addition to honoring the President's wife, this social is also being held for the purpose of acquainting the women of the student body with the faculty and staff women and the wives of the faculty and staff.

The activities scheduled for the tea include an introduction of the faculty wives, a talk by Mrs.

Jeremiah, and a challenge given by one of the faculty wives. This first year event, which Gamma Chi hopes will become a tradition, will be an unusual and pleasant time for those who attend.

Gamma Chi asks that all R.S.V.P.'s be returned to Box 759 by November 3. Anyone not receiving an invitation and wishing to attend may do so by returning an R.S.V.P. to the afore mentioned box number.

Cedarville Artist Lecture Series Schedules Miami Orchestra

As part of the fall Artist Lecture Series programs, the Miami University Symphony Orchestra will be appearing on November 7th in Alford Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

The orchestra, conducted by Dr. George Seltzer, consists of approximately 100 musicians performing 10 to 20 concerts a year. A student committee governs the orchestra, chooses its programs, and determines the nature of its concerts.

Dr. Seltzer has been associated with Miami University since 1949 and assumed the position of conductor in 1948. He is also associate dean of the School of Fine Arts and holds associate professorship in the Department of Music. Dr. Seltzer holds three degrees from the Eastman School of Music at Rochester, New York Bachelor of Music, 1948; Master of Music, 1949; and Doctor of Musical Arts, 1956.

A Method of Avoidance

At various points in our relations with friends we find ourselves in the midst of a conflict or disagreement. We are in that conflict for a number of reasons — we are the cause, we are the busybodies, we care for one of the participants, the list goes on. To avoid the emotional stress involved in a disagreement as a result of reasons number two or three, there is a permanent solution.

By becoming involved in a situation we are forced to state a bias that is likely of no ultimate importance to us and can greatly hurt or offend another. The answer: if we are not the cause of the problem, or we are not the solution, we should not be involved!
—J. E.

Random Thots

by Judy Johnson

During the summer I read Eric Berne's Games People Play, which deals with some of the manipulative devices we use in our interpersonal relationships. Along with giving me an insight into the human psyche, the book also suggested to my mind some of the games we as Christians play.

One of the seemingly more popular games at Cedarville College is "See How Unspiritual I Am." This game can be played most effectively in a group of students, because the rewards are greater. The object of the game is to profess or actually indulge in a coldness toward the things of God, and to ridicule or make light of any "S.G.'s" on campus.

The game may be played from several different aspects — sleeping through chapel, showing no interest in Christian Service opportunities, carelessness about church attendance, or mocking the things of God. These things are not always a sure indication that someone is playing the game, and the game may take other forms, but these are some of the signs of the game.

My own version of the game is to see how many days I can skip my devotions. It's the most rebellious action my conservative background will permit me, and even at that I do a poor job of it. I think my record is not quite a week before my loneliness, frustration, and misery send me back to Him.

The question is, why do we play these little games? In Berne's book, most of the games were planned to increase one's sense of importance. But as Christians, we are to be instruments of the glory of God. Are our games really necessary?

Council Comments

As a means of serving the whole Cedarville College student body, the Student Council has provided a taxi service for everyone.

The purpose for this taxi service is to assist students who can't find rides to where they want to go, (in the vicinity that is.) This taxi service is made available to areas such as Vandalia, Dayton, Springfield, and Xenia.

Any student desiring a ride such as this should call the college switchboard, and set their desired time, three days before they anticipate using the service. The taxi rates are available at the switchboard. When a student leaves on vacation, if he desires to use the taxi service for returning from the airport or bus station, he must notify the switchboard before he leaves.

Below is a table of the rates per person to their specific destination: (each individual rate is per-person.)

Per-sons	Van-dalia	Day-ton	Spring-field	Xenia
1	$6.50	$5.50	$3.50	$2.50
2	5.00	3.50	2.00	1.50
3	4.00	2.50	1.50	1.25
4	3.00	2.00	1.25	1.00
5	2.50	1.50	1.00	.75

To help illustrate the chart; if three people wish to go to Vandalia, then it would be $4.00 per person. The more students going, the less the charge per person.

The driver of the van or car will have taxi service forms to be filled out by the rider. The form must be given back to the driver before departure. A

Remember Thy God In Your Youth

Paul Dixon, Pastor Joseph Stowell, 1200 young people, and Cedarville College will come together on November 4 for the 1972 Swordbearers' Conference. Highlighting this event will be two rallies conducted by Paul Dixon; student-led seminars, and Pastor Stowell speaking with the youth leaders and adults.

The students of Cedarville College will play an important role in the success and impact of the conference. Many eyes will be turned our way as the campus will come alive with junior high and high school students. They will be watching our actions and reactions. The simple friendly acceptance of these visitors will play a big part in the success of the day.

Many hours of work are involved in presenting a conference. The student body should look upon this not as an inconvenience but as another opportunity to serve the Lord. Each individual should anticipate the satisfaction that will be received by helping others. Approximately 200 to 300 students will be actively involved by being counselors, seminar leaders, guides, and by housing guests. However, the remaining number should be equally involved in prayer and friendliness. As one committee member, Becky Canine, stated, "It will take everybody's part, whether just through a simple smile or being a counselor."

The thrust of the conference is to help the young people develop a better relationship with the Lord. One goal is to help the young people realize the practical application of Christianity in everyday life. This will be achieved through encounters with the students and in the training sessions. The sessions will be: Youth Involvement in the Church, Quiet Time, and Politics and the Christian. A special emphasis will be placed on Quiet Time in hopes that the youth will be able to see the need of a daily walk with the Lord and how to go about it.

Many decisions concerning salvation and perhaps a future college will be made during the conference. Many of those decisions will depend upon the students' co-operation and willingness to help. As Doug Schroder, chairman of conference committee, summed it up, "The conference is another opportunity to serve the Lord."

Missionary Opportunities Open for Summer '73

Brazil, South America, will be the destination of 13 Cedarville College students this coming summer as they serve the Lord under the college Missionary Internship Service (M.I.S.).

This vocal or instrumental ensemble, under the leadership of Dr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson, will be fulfilling the purpose of M.I.S. as they travel to Brazil in June to actively work with ABWE missionaries there. Musical ability is a requirement for students applying to go to this field and, though not required, a knowledge of Portuguese will be helpful.

Dr. Don Callan will be traveling with eight basketball players to the Philippine Islands and Hong Kong for 45 days of games, clinics and witnessing. Again a musical talent is important for the 8 men as well as an ability to give testimonies before large audiences.

Knowing French is not required but is helpful for the M.I.S. applicants planning to work in the Central African Republic at the clinic, printing press and mission school and as mechanics.

Australia will present a different kind of challenge for the Cedarville students. Because the work to be done in this field is canvassing and establishing new works, only male students will be going to Australia.

A five-week camp Vacation Bible School ministry in the Hawaiian Islands has been opened for M.I.S. applicants and four students are needed for five weeks working with youth in Hong Kong.

A new addition to the M.I.S. program is the chance to student teach in the foreign countries. Persons in the program must be approved by both the M.I.S. committee and the Education Department and will be allowed to raise all needed finances except tuition fees.

The final M.I.S. offering for summer 1973 is with the Missionary Apprenticeship Program of ABWE. In past years, students have gone to Spain and Peru under M.A.P. and both fields are open again this summer.

Cedarville students may secure applications for the M.I.S. programs from Pastor Greens office. A fee of $5 is required with each application turned in to Pastor Green and this should be done as soon as possible.

The Beauty of Spring

by Ken Wimer

creative corner

Is it a time to hate, or a time to be kind?
Is it just a change from the other season?
What is it, what is it's reason?

Spring can be moments of laughing and fun,
That depends on the moods of everyone.
It can also be a time to cry,
It can't keep fate from those that die.

So there it is, another season to come.
It can't control man, make him whistle or hum.
It can't stop him from living on,
To greater heights that he must spawn.

Instead it is there, for the beauty of man.
It is there, for folks to relax if they can.
It is there, to ease the weary at heart.
And comfort those, from whose loved ones they part.

The flowers bloom, and add a smile.
The wind sighs, and pollution leaves for awhile.
Trees blush, and turn deep shades of green,
While new root push us so they can be seen.

God gave up Spring that we could explore,
The things that nature has in store.
Through this we can share God's greatest love,
And find real peace from heav'n above.

As the plants sprout, and begin to grow,
So we as Christians should try to show
All those others around our being,
That faith is believing without seeing.

When it rains and the ground gets wet,
We as Christians should cease to fret
Because during the time of our deepest trials
God "rains" on us blessings and smiles.

Through this we remember the beauty God's giv'n,
And remember he's prepared a place in heav'n.
That as the plants continue to grow,
Of His love we must show.

Then I Found Christ!!

by Ken Wimer

Life was dark, and the road was long,
My feet were weary and my mouth was dry.
My mind had no thought- and my heart no song,
It seemed as though I was doomed to die.

Then I found Christ, new light He gave,
New strength I have new love I show.
That God had sent His Son to save,
And rescue me from the debt I owe.

Now when the road seems long and hard,
And people laugh and scorn at me.
I turn to Jesus now and say, "Lord,
Thanx so much for saving me.

Then I found Christ, new hope He gave.
A new life to live and share with Him.
Because He saved me from the grave,
I'll sing to God with song and hymn.

As I look ahead to the coming King,
When He'll take me to my glorious home.
I ask all others to do the thing,
That saved me from that Satan's dome.

That is to find real peace with Him,
And let Jesus fill your sight.
To push you away from things so dim,
To things that are so bright.

Portuguese Coed Speaks of Christ Changing Her Life

Teresa

by Linda Hulsman

Among the foreign students at Cedarville this year is an enthusiastic and unique Portuguese girl, Maria Teresa Henriques Rodrigues Bahia dos Santos, better known as simply Teresa.

The daughter of an army colonel, Teresa attended an exclusive boarding school in Lisbon for military children during her teens. Quite typically military, life was strict and systematic down to the letter. Teresa inwardly rebelled against this system, and ideals of freedom began to take root in her mind.

After graduation Teresa began an extremely interesting job as tour guide for tourists in Europe, mainly in the country of Spain. In this position she met many different types of people from varied cultures, and became intrigued with the idea of leaving Portugal to see the rest of the world.

Meeting an interesting American for the first time (her previous impressions of middle-class American tourists had been rather dubious), she decided to travel to the U.S.A. Over-ruling her parents' vehement objections, Teresa set sail for America.

"At first," says Teresa, "life was terribly exciting and fabulous. Everything was new and different, and there were new things to discover all the time. But then life just became a routine again, one day after another exactly the same. And I found people here were just the same as those back home."

Discouraged, Teresa nonetheless vowed not to go back. She had set out to show her parents she could make it, and make it she would.

Living in Maine with a rich, Catholic family she had known previously, Teresa attended Bates College, studying languages.

A while after beginning studies at Bates, she came to know another foreign student, a Brazilian lady, and as time went on the two became quite close. Teresa, watching her friend, soon noticed she was quite remarkably refreshing and different. Her husband had left her to raise their child alone, and many troubles had plagued her, but in spite of it all the Brazilian student was always smiling and constantly happy.

One day Teresa asked her, "What is it that you've got that makes you so different? Here I am, discouraged and having no meaning in living. Why aren't you the same way?"

"I have Jesus Christ," was the simple answer.

"Forget it," Teresa replied. "I know all about that religion bit. I've been to church all my life, and know that stuff doesn't work."

Her friend, however, refused to give up. She invited a pastor of her acquaintance to come and talk to Teresa. The pastor in turn wrote Harry Bollback of Word of Life, telling him Teresa's story. Soon a letter came inviting her to a week at Word of Life Island.

Still skeptical, Teresa went to the Island. "I found," she says, "that everyone was like that lady. They walked around all the time with Bibles under their arms, smiling. It was really weird!"

By the end of the week, though vowing from the first it would never happen, Teresa accepted Christ.

Trusting God to supply the money, she applied to the Word of Life Bible Institute. Soon after, Teresa received a letter of acceptance.

Telling the Catholic family with whom she stayed that she, an atheist, was going to a Protestant Bible School, of all things, was going to be a problem. The day before she was ready to leave, Teresa broached the subject.

Her host was shocked and amazed. "What is the world do you want to go there for?"

"Remember that camp I went to?" replied Teresa. "Well, my life was changed there. Jesus

WCDR Returns To Air Nov. 13

"As a radio service of Cedarville College, this is WCDR-FM, Cedarville, Ohio." It is the hope of Mr. Paul Gathany, general manager of WCDR, that this sound will be heard by November 13, the target date for WCDR's return to the air. Before this date, however, a lease for the new tower which has been holding up progress for the station for several weeks must be approved.

Three phrases will reflect the new emphasis of WCDR-FM this year — "serving Dayton-Springfield; this is Christian educational radio;" in addition to "as a radio service of Cedarville College." The increased broadcast radius provided by the new four-hundred-foot tower allows WCDR an outreach into these metropolitan areas. Behind-the-scenes emphasis for all staff or staff members-to-be is QUALITY. Wayne Shepherd, last year's student manager and now program director for the station, feels very optimistic about the caliber of personnel, and believes this effort to achieve consistently high quality will not be discriminatory, but rather will provide a more satisfying experience for anyone who wishes to become involved.

Mr. Phipps Is Member of Board

Mr. James R. Phipps, chairman of the speech department, has been a member of the State Consultancy Board of the Ohio Speech Communications Association since March of this year. As the consultant for the high schools of southwestern Ohio, Mr. Phipps works for improved curricula in these schools. For example, the not-too-distant future may see speech courses taught exclusively by teachers certified to teach speech rather than English, as is virtually the tradition.

Another activity of the State Consultancy Board is the setting up of library resource centers to dispense information to high schools upon request. Currently there are such centers at Akron and Miami Universities.

Members are decided by recommendation from a member of the Association and consideration by the Board itself.

Dean Instructs "Right to Read"

This year at Cedarville College a new program has been started by Mr. Thomas Loper. The program? — "Right to Read."

Mr. Loper spent four years looking into the reasons for student drop-outs. He began to notice a pattern in the study habits of these students. A large majority of those flunking or dropping out of school had either poor development of study skills or were slow readers. Mr. Loper started to investigate several methods to improve study skills of students. He brought back to Cedarville the "Right to Read" workshop material. All of the freshmen class were involved in the program this fall.

The program involves three major areas: broad basic skills, individual attention skills, and student tutors. The workshop requires six hours to complete and drills students in regression, fixation on a line, budgeting of time, and speed reading.

It is the hope of the college that the "Right to Read" program will help those students who have academic problems because of poor reading habits. If interested, see Mr. Loper.

Council continued

CRAIG AND MARTY begin packing for their up-coming move.

Two Alumni Head For Port au Prince

Port au Prince, Haiti will soon become the home of former Cedarville students Craig and Marty Stillwell.

Under the sponsorship of Caribe-Vista Program, an outgrowth of Honey Creek Christian Homes in Michigan, the Stillwells will act as parents for about 8 juvenile delinquents.

Their departure date is set for November 7. The children range in age from 14 to 18 years old, and, in many cases, have been in serious trouble with the law. According to Craig, the children are sent to Haiti as an alternative to delinquent homes in the States. "The 'culture shock' method is used to make the kids dependent upon those in authority — Marty and myself," he commented. This gives them an opportunity to be of real help to the kids.

The home has to project a total Christian atmosphere. Marty explained that "if the kids don't see something in us that they want, they won't listen to any help we would try to give."

Usually at the completion of the nine month stay in Haiti, the majority of delinquents have accepted Christ as their personal Saviour.

Marty explained that the roles of mother and father would be "very accentuated. Most of these kids' parents were in a lot of trouble themselves, and the kids didn't have much of an example to follow. So Craig is to be the authoritarian and disciplinarian and I am the 'dispenser of sweets'. But, both roles are very Biblical."

Activities with the children will include, for Marty, sewing and cooking with the girls to help them develop their creativity. Craig will be working with the boys in soccer, tennis, and other activities.

Both Craig and Marty cited two main reasons for their moving to Haiti. Their main interests "have always been in that type of kid" and they were looking for work in that area. Also, both felt that God had given them a real peace about the move after much prayer.

Craig remarked that the role of parents poses the biggest problem, for they will have to get used to having a lot of kids around. Marty said she would miss the Christian fellowship in addition to experiencing a bit of culture shock herself.

Tennis courts, a swimming pool, horses, scuba diving and mountain climbing include some of the "fringe benefits" during their stay in the West Indies. Craig is a 1972 graduate of Cedarville, while Marty previously attended the College for 1 year.

Teams Help Promote College

Promoting Cedarville College is such a big job in which faculty members and students share.

They do this through the ministry of "Cedarville College Day" teams. Each team includes a faculty member and two students.

Through preaching, testimonies, music, discussions, and a special slide presentation, the teams present to churches throughout Ohio, Cedarville College and the work that the Lord is doing here.

As a result of the presentations, the college hopes to recruit students and gain financial support.

Jacket Sports

Harriers Lead Jacket Pack

by Jerry Gilyard

Cedarville College should be proud of the Cross Country Team for an impressive day on Homecoming. The team showed much determination to capture the first place team trophy and six individual trophies.

The team was led by the top three men; the first being Paul Beck who is a freshman. Paul had an outstanding high school time for the mile run, which has tied our college time at 4:20. Paul has the ability to break this time during track season. As for cross country, he was slow starting usually finished fifth. But the last four meets he has been number one. In the homecoming meet Paul took the first place individual trophy beating Defiance's top runner. Coach King feels Paul will be a good runner in years to come. Paul is a P.E. major.

The second place runner was John Hutchinson, a sophomore from Albany, Ohio. John ran only a few meets in high school, however last year he had a good year. This year he's the most improved runner. He has placed first, second, and third. John will be missed in the next three meets because of injury. Also he runs long distance on the track team. John's major is math.

For the number three spot there was a tie between Ernie Welborn and Steve Read.

Ernie Welborn, a senior, comes from Mentone, Ind. He runs cross country as conditioning for track. In high school his time in the 1/2 mile was 2:03.0. Since being at Cedarville his time in the half mile was 2:03.0. Ernie has been to nationals in track for the last two years and plans to return to challenge for the top five places.

Freshman Steve Read is a missionary's son from the Philippine Islands. He attended Faith Academy which is a Christian high school. He has been running since eighth grade and was captain of the team.

Since Steve has been running for Cedarville he has placed in the top five.

As for Coach King, he feels that all the runners are doing a good job. In the last three years, Coach pointed out that the teams record is 26-4. He would like to see the program expand, which he is scouting for new prospects. He would like more support from the student body because the team likes it and needs it. The next home meet will be conference meet, November 4. So let's back the Harriers to the Championship.

Women Volley Into Season

This year the Women's Ohio Valley League, of which Cedarville is a member, began the volleyball season in a manner which is a little unusual. The league tournament was held first this year instead at the end of the season. Participating in the tournament which was held at Wilmington College on October 24 were Mount St. Joseph College, University of Cincinnati, University of Dayton, Cedarville, and a newly added league team from Ohio Dominican.

Cedarville's volleyball team, anticipating the early start to the season, has been practicing since the beginning of October. Also a help to the team is the fact that all the girls on the Varsity team played intercollegiate ball last year.

In the tournament Cedarville drew to play the University of Cincinnati, and although Cedarville lost, they looked strong. With continued practice and teamwork they should be a tough competitor for the coming year.

Last year Cedarville had a good season which culminated at the State Volleyball Tournament where Cedarville tied for fifth place in the state of Ohio.

Teresa, continued from page 3

means everything to me now." "He means everything to me, too. That's why I go to mass on Sundays."

"But Jesus is more than my Sunday God. He's my everyday God."

"Where are you going to get the money?"

"God'll get it for me."

"Now, Teresa, you're too intelligent to believe that stuff. I'm sorry, but we just can't let you go."

So Teresa went upstairs and prayed and prayed. And packed. "Lord, if you want me at Word of Life, make them say 'yes' before I even ask again."

The next morning at breakfast her hostess began, "Teresa, we've talked it over and we've agreed to let you make your own decision. You can go pack now."

"I already have! I knew you'd say that."

A missionary couple she had with not even a dollar in her pocket, off at Word of Life. By the time she got there a fee of $250 was due. Again she prayed. And prayed.

As she was getting out of the car, the driver handed her a check for, you guessed it, $250 exactly.

All year it went like that, money coming in from unbelievable and often unknown sources. Then when summer came, Teresa owed $600 on her bill. Without payment she could not graduate, and her transcripts could not be sent to any other college. Deciding to drop out and work to make up the deficit, Teresa went to the office to request her transcripts.

"They're not here," was the reply. "A few moments ago a man came in and paid your whole bill."

Her next step was to decide to attend Cedarville. The immigration office, however, had other plans. Teresa had been in America one year and eight months as a tourist, on a visitor's visa, and they were beginning to suspect she wasn't intending to leave. An ultimatum was issued. Either she had to have $12,000 in the bank or return to Portugal.

Harry Bollback did all he could to have the decision rescinded, but to no avail. Finally Teresa gave up and packed her bags to return home. Then one night Mr. Bollback got the immigration bureau on the phone, and he, Teresa, and the registrar of Cedarville all pled with them to let Teresa stay. With those three and the Lord, who could resist? Teresa got her student visa.

"It is so good to be alive, now," Teresa exclaims. "My life is so exciting. Everything in my entire life has worked out in a perfect way to lead me to God. And for someone with as rebellious of an attitude as mine to turn out to be a Baptist, they'd have to be crazy. The last thing I ever thought I'd be was that!"

Her parents still don't believe it. About money, they ask, "How in the world do you pay?" About the rules, "Are you connected with nuns or something?" Hardly.

Teresa is presently a psychology major, and plans to use her gift for languages, combined with her major, to go into counselling as a missionary under Word of Life in Europe.

"My life," she says, "is like a puzzle. Every day the Lord puts in a new piece. Sometimes I ask, 'Lord, what are you doing? That one doesn't fit at all!' But it always ends up a perfect fit."

Speakers Provide New Insights

by Chris Rufener

"Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name . . . worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness." Ps. 96:8,9.

An opportunity which is rarely regarded as such is chapel. Offering a time of praise as well as learning from God's Word, chapel can be an added blessing to the Christian entering Chapel in an attitude of prayer.

Cedarville College provides occasion for spiritual blessing with this quarter's chapel speakers. Bringing messages will be visiting pastors, professors, Dr. James Jeremiah, and others.

Dr. Jeremiah, president of Cedarville College, selects chapel speakers through personal contacts and suggestions of mission boards, faculty, staff, and many others.

Speakers representing the faculty will be Dr. Allen Monroe, Social Science, and Dr. Robert Gromacki, Bible.

Also speaking from the college will be the Director of Development, Mr. Lee Turner.

Other speakers on the fall schedule include Mr. Clyde Prince, Executive Director of Regular Baptist Children's Home; Mr. Don Kinzer, Western Ohio Representative of Word of Life Fellowship; and Rev. Wendell Kempton, president of ABWE.

Just introduced in the Wednesday chapel hour is the President's Chapel. Dr. Jeremiah has planned messages as well as informal question and answer periods with a medical doctor, a black minister, and a missionary.

The day before Thanksgiving has been set aside as a time of praise.

Student Council will be in charge of chapel Nov. 30, and on Dec. 8 athletic awards will be presented.
