St. Clair Reports On Chapel Fund

By Joyce Coleman

Cedarville College Chapel campaign gifts and pledges presently total $356,198.04. Mr. Kenneth St. Clair, College Business Manager, remarked, "Gifts should be arriving more rapidly than what they are. . ." The entire chapel project will cost an estimated $1,125,000; contributions have been averaging $12,000 each month.

Contribution sources include foundations, alumni bequests, corporations, college employees and students. Individuals and churches have become primary sources for chapel gifts.

Some of the chapel equipment and furnishing expenditures are itemized as follows: oak pulpit, $1,121; oak director's stand, $205; pews, $36,500; choir chairs, $4,000; sound system, $9,146; 7 tons of carpet, $20,000; projector screen, $972. Expenditures total $677,491 as of April 30.

With the present total of gifts and pledges, $356,198, and Walk-a-Thon contributions of over $40,000, approximately $728,800 is yet needed.

A maximum bank loan of $500,000 from First National Bank of Cincinnati through the Miami Deposit Bank in Cedarville will help alleviate these costs. However, $288,800 must be contributed.

Students are urged to continue in prayer for support of this project.

C. C. Airs Cable TV Program

By Joyce Coleman

"Cedarville Presents . . .", a 30-minute cable TV program of Cedarville College, will be aired July 15 or the first of August on possibly 50 cable systems, according to Paul Gathaney, acting producer for the program.

The purpose of the broadcast is to provide an extension of the ministry of Cedarville College.

Through this visual medium, a new audience is informed of the college, its students and standards with its qualities properly and vividly portrayed. The program is in color.

Jimmy Ray Electronics of Columbus, Ohio, provides production facilities and equipment and is responsible for promotion and distribution of the program. Air time has been provided without cost to the college.

The program's emphasis is evangelistic. Dr. James T. Jeremiah presents a ten-minute Bible message. Literature coordinated with the messages will be available to the viewing audience.

The format also includes two or three musical selections by campus groups, an interview conducted by Lee Turner, or a student testimony, closing with an invitation to spiritual salvation. Student testimonies are chosen according to the possible needs and problems of the audience.

Musical selections and group appearances are coordinated by Mr. Lyle Anderson. Audio portions must be prepared before filming and, therefore, recordings of Kathy Howell and The Abundant Life Singers were readily available for the program. Chorales and the Joyful Sound Trio will also be filmed.

The program is designed for the viewer hearing of Cedarville College for the first time and to develop audience interest. Mr. Gathaney briefly commented about the potential of the program on a commercial station.

Chapel Full for Opening

Faculty, staff, students, and friends were present for the opening service of the new chapel on May 26.

On Wednesday, May 26, 1976, the first service in Cedarville College's new chapel took place with a full auditorium of faculty, staff, students and friends of the college in attendance.

The service was opened by a hymn of praise, "To God Be the Glory," followed by a welcoming statement by James T. Jeremiah, President.

Taking part in the program were William Brock, Treasurer on the Board of Trustees; James McGoldrick, History Professor at the college; and Harold Green, campus pastor.

Mr. Lee Turner, Director of Development, presented a fund report for the chapel project and Mark Keough gave an update on the Walk-a-thon support. The Abundant Life Singers also participated in the service, singing several numbers.

The service was closed with everyone present singing "Thank you, Jesus, For All You've Done."

Food Service . . .

Worm Evidence Inconclusive

By Wendy McNiece

Further data from the investigation as to the source of the worms found in the cafeteria is still inconclusive.

The food service has not yet received an official written report, but has spoken to Inspector Blankenship, Greene County Health Department, on the telephone. Blankenship told Tom Smith, food service manager, that the worms were some kind of insect larva. However, this information has not helped to pin point the source.

As to the possibility of a hoax, it was Dr. James Phipps who made this suggestion, not Mrs. Smith. Mrs. Smith did contact Phipps by phone, thinking that he had some direct involvement with the newspaper and wanted to know if an article was to be printed about the worm incident.

Phipps explained that he did not work with the Whispering Cedars but told her that he had overheard two individuals discussing such a prank three days prior to the happening.

Since that time, Dr. Phipps has confronted the people that he suspected and they both deny their involvement in the incident. For this reason, Phipps feels that there is no further recourse that can be taken at this time.

Again, Smiths feel confident that they have done all that is possible to find the origin of these worms. Mr. Smith also commented that he hoped that Cedarville College students had not pulled the prank.

No more information is available at this time and until more is known as to the actual source, it seems impossible to make any accusations or conclusions.

MIS Students Participate in Program

By Lois Teed

A dedication service for the MIS summer '76 program was held Sunday evening May 23 at Alford Auditorium. Most of the 57 students who will be participating were present.

Pastor Green introduced each field, and a student from each gave a brief summary of fund raising results and told what they would be doing this summer. Each asked for prayer support from the student body for finances and the Lord's help in their work.

Rev. David Toro, missionary to Australia, brought a brief message. He emphasized that Christ uses the things that are considered foolish and weak. Motivation should not be of ourselves, he stated, but should come from the love of Christ.

An offering was taken which will go to help support the MIS program.

SBP Tallies Walk-a-thon Challenges

By Wendy McNiece

Approximately $44,500 has now been received in cash and pledges from the Walk-a-thon efforts, with about $37,000 of that amount in cash. Out of the $40,526 spent on the pews, $3,988 purchased choir chairs that match the other furniture. Expenses that totalled about $1,000 has been paid by the committee.

Next fall, students will vote on the use of the remaining funds. This amount will be used toward the chapel in some way. Suggestions, such as decorations or helping the Women's Fellowship pay for the organ, have been made.

Challenge totals as of May 19 show that Dr. Gromacki has brought in $1,247.50 and is followed by Dr. Murdoch and Dr. Jeremiah with $1,079.70 and $1,075 respectively.

Maddox leads the dorm challenge with $7,586 which includes Mrs. Printy's $455. Faith is next with $5,636 while Marshall ranks third with $3,065.

The freshman class is beating every class by bringing in $8,208. They have a $2,000 lead over the sophomores who have $6,180.

Connie Clithero has $430 so far, while Mark Cowell's total of $415 ranks second in individual totals.

Mark Keough, SBP chairman, commented that he was pleased to see the Student Body unified for the glory of God and feels that apathy on the campus is "becoming no more than a myth."

Looking Back

Cashing in on the nostalgia craze that is sweeping the country, it seems only fitting that we spend just a second to consider all of the things that we've seen happen around campus this year.

Therefore, I would like to present my list of some of the top stories of the year.

- 1) The student, faculty, and staff raised over $44,000 in the SBP Walk-a-thon.
- 2) A dream came true for the college family as we moved into the New Chapel for our final chapel services of the year.
- 3) The size of the student body reached a new high this year, at one point topping off over 1100 students.
- 4) Dave Delancey won his hundredth straight tennis match this year, with no losses.
- 5) Alpha Chi and Gamma Chi hosted two sumptuous banquets (this is not really BIG news, but it certainly stood out in the minds of those of us who like to eat for pleasure).
- 6) The students got Good Friday off for the first time in recent memory (a victory for the "traditionalists" as well as for the vacation-minded).

While this list is by no means exhaustive, it does at least point out some of the different "news-making" areas this year.

Perhaps there are still those who are eternal pessimists, who see no improvements and expect none. If, after living through this exciting and eventful year at Cedarville, they have not improved their own outlooks, they have little hope for future years of happiness, or at least contentment. We would be foolish to say that everything that needs to be accomplished was accomplished this year, but we should realize with hearts grateful to God that it has been a very good year for Cedarville. —CM

"And the Students Murmured..."

(This article was reprinted from the February 16, 1971, issue of W.C. It was brought to our attention by Dr. June Kearny.)

For the past two weeks, student council has been discussing in some detail a topic about which you have been complaining since you were a one-week freshman — THE FOOD. We've talked about soggy noodles, too much bread in the meat, not enough variety in the dessert choices, and whatever else is wrong with the food service. In case the members of the Student Council hadn't noticed, the condition of the food and other mistakes the food service has made, there are seven hundred and seventy-one people on campus who will enumerate these obviously "careless" errors for all and any who will listen. This reminds me of a story I once read in Exodus 15 and Numbers 11 which shows what God thinks of murmuring and griping. It goes something like this:

"And the students murmured against Mrs. Smith, saying, 'What shall we drink?' And Mrs. Smith cried unto the Lord; and the Lord showed her a machine which when she had placed it in the cafeteria the waters were made sweet.

"And the mixed multitude that was among them fell to lusting and the students of Cedarville also wept again and said, 'Who shall give us flesh to eat? We remember the grade A steak which we did eat in our own town freely; the home cooking, the personal touch, and our favorite dishes cooked when we wanted them. But now our soul is dried away; There is nothing at all, besides this surplus food before our eyes.'

"Then the faculty and administration heard the students weep throughout their classrooms and everyone in the rooms of his dormitory; and the anger of the Lord was kindled greatly. And Mrs. Smith said, 'Shall the beef and pork allotted in our budget be used to suffice them? Or shall all the fish in coolers be gathered together for them to suffice them?' And the Lord said unto Mrs. Smith, 'No, but is the Lord's hand become short? Thou shalt see now whether my word shall come to pass unto thee or not. Behold, a truck has entered into the campus with many steaks in it.' And say unto the students 'Sanctify yourselves for tomorrow, and ye shall eat flesh; for ye have wept in the ears of the Lord, saying, Who shall give us flesh to eat? For it was well with us at home; therefore the Lord will give you flesh, and ye shall eat. Ye shall not eat one day, nor two days, nor five days, neither ten days, nor twenty days; but even a whole month until it come out at your nostrils, and it be loathsome unto you; because ye have despised the Lord who is among you, and have wept before him, saying why came we forth from home anyway?'

"And all the workers stayed up all that day, and all that night, and all the next day, and they set tables for all the students.

"And they gathered the next day seven hundred, four-score and sixteen souls to partake of the food. Now there being 3000 steaks each took good helpings. And he that gathered least gathered

Don't Look Gift Horse in the Mouth

By Chuck Elliott

With the influx of well-wishing dignitaries bearing gifts in honor of America's Bicentennial celebration, one wonders where it all will end. Recently, two outstanding political leaders made their presence felt within our borders. One was French President Valerie Giscard d'Estang. The other was a leader previously known to few Americans, but lately becoming a household word, King James I of Democratic.

From the moment he stepped from his streamlined biplane (reflecting the high quality of his nation's technology) a carefree (and almost careless) atmosphere permeated the republic.

King James presented the United States with a gold plated transisterized peanut that smiled every hour on the hour as a token of his nation's regard for the U.S.

After this he went on a goodwill tour receiving much attention (to his delight) and gaining much support in his diplomatic position. With an entourage accompanying him, he greeted Americans from Florida to Texas with much success. However, despite his great successes, there has been an undercurrent of problems.

Certain situations caused the diplomatic pond to ripple at times. For example, while greeting masses in Nebraska,

King James took offense when Frank Church, a politician from a nearby state, refused to bow down and pay the King the respect he thought he merited.

The fact that President Ford refuses to recognize him at all appears to some as a minor problem also. However, the President of late has been preoccupied with internal problems, i.e. a stomach ache in Texas and a pain in the neck in California).

What has resulted in the greatest of difficulties concerning King James however, has been communication. The language he speaks is a derivation of English that is incomprehensible to most. This situation is an annoyance to some while many see his great popularity stemming from it. After all, one cannot be offended if he does not know what is being said.

The language is a hodgepodge of rhetoric (sarcastically called the King James perversion) that straddles almost every situation. Its clarity ranks second only to coal.

For example, when asked his opinion of America's involvement in South Korea, he replied that he thought the United States should not withdraw from South Korea. He added though, that the exception to this would be to do so under a "phased basis."

The King has also been known to use words so precisely that he confuses or fools his audience. Case in point — he is very much against amnesty because that means those who deserted were right to do so. However, he is very much for the pardon of deserters because that means that whether these people were right or wrong the nation as a whole forgives them.

His language is appealing to those who think they understand it because his tongue can please the most diverse of thought. He can grasp the heart of the conservative by calling for more jobs through the sector of private enterprise, but catches the liberal on the rebound by adding the idea that government should meet this need as a last resort. He becomes, as it were, all things to all men.

Other problems with the dialect include a tendency toward verbosity and vagueness. There has been an added confusion or misconception due to the length of remarks made by the good King in his conversations with the population.

Likewise, vagueness at times seems to emanate from the cavity behind his gleaming teeth. In a critical moment, King James spoke out against the more than 1900 governmental offices in Washington and said they should be reduced to 200 or less in number. The vagueness set in when no reply was made when he was asked how to accomplish this feat.

In all, the King's trip thus far has been to improve relations with the American people. In recent years, relations with other representatives from the land of Democratic have met strained reactions with the American public. This has been so much the case that little confidence has been put in this nation's chief executive.

Yet this has changed. As he continues his goodwill tour of this two hundred year old nation, a trend that was observed at a recent banquet in his honor appears likely to continue. At the banquet King James was seen to fill himself with an abundance of apple pie while his opposition ate crow.

Much Given, Much Required

Once again, it seems impossible that another school year is almost over. As we look back we have many memories of both the good times and the bad times; and we wonder how the time could have gone by so fast!

For the seniors, this is an especially important school year's end, because it is their last. They look forward with anticipation to the future and what it may hold for them. For those coming back in the fall, this is the long-awaited rest. Friday afternoon means freedom and a break from classes for a few months.

As we go home for the summer I think it is good to remember not to "forget" all we have learned over the school year. Both the intellectual and the spiritual lessons we have learned are better shared with each other than kept to ourselves. Though we often take it for granted, we are privileged to participate in a Christian learning experience here at Cedarville College. Because of this we also have a greater responsibility in our Christian life, for "to whom much is given, much is required."

So as we leave for summer vacation, let's not take a 'spiritual vacation' or a vacation from thinking. Instead, let's use what the Lord has given us in service for Him and to His glory. —KT Cincinnati's Netherland Hilton Inn was the scene of this year's JS.

Junior-Senior Banquet

By Wendy McNiece

Three hundred ten Cedarville College students, staff and faculty members gathered on Friday evening, May 21 at the Netherland Hilton Inn, Cincinnati, for this year's Junior-Senior banquet. The Hall of Mirrors highlighted the theme "Touch the Wind."

Formal pictures were taken prior to dinner which was served at about 8:30. The main course of turkey roll and dressing was followed by Bombe ice cream, which was molded mint-chocolate slices.

Dr. Murdoch, Master of Ceremonies, introduced Senior class president Jeff Bowen, who along with Sharon Franks and Kirby Lancaster, presented the Senior memories.

The Junior class received a rubber turkey as a "token of appreciation" from the Seniors. This portion of the program was closed by Jeff as he reiterated one of Dr. Jeremiah's messages from the beginning of the year.

Emphasis was put on the unique memories Cedarville College students can share because of their unity in Christ.

After-dinner entertainment was provided by trombonist-vocalist Bill Pearce who was accompanied on the piano by Jeanne Pippin, in an hour long concert.

Bill Pearce played his trombone and sang at the Junior-Senior Banquet.

Math and Science Dept. Adds New Prof

By Bob Foreman

The Science and Mathematics Department will be adding a new faculty member to their department for the 1976-77 school year. The new math teacher is Dr. Edward Braithwaite of Ferndale, Washington.

Dr. Braithwaite is presently an assistant professor of mathematics at the University of Wisconsin, located in Stevens Point.

Dr. Braithwaite graduated from Ferndale Senior High School in Washington where he was number one in his class rank.

From high school he began his college career at Western Washington State College. Western Washington College is located in Bellingham, Washington and it was here, in 1966, that Dr. Braithwaite completed his B.A. requirements in mathematics.

After receiving his B.A. degree he continued to study at Western Washington State College until he completed his Master's program in 1968.

After these requirements were met, Dr. Braithwaite then moved on to Urbana, Illinois, to the University of Illinois. It was here he completed his Ph.D. requirements for Mathematics in 1975. His Ph.D. graduate dissertation was entitled: The Converse Fatou Theorems in a Finite-dimensional Half-space.

His graduate specializations include Real and Complex Analysis. His minor fields of study include Topology, Algebra, and Differential Geometry.

Because Dr. Braithwaite enjoyed Mathematics and teaching so much, he felt as though the Lord was opening up the way for him to become a mathematics professor. He then decided to work for his Ph.D. which he completed in May of 1975.

Since completing the degree he has been teaching in the University of Wisconsin system for this past year.

Bunyan's Book

Allegory of Feudal War

By Jim Gilbert

The Holy War, by John Bunyan (author of Pilgrim's Progress) is an allegory of the Christian life as compared to a feudal war for a city. The analogy makes interesting reading, and can take several levels of meaning.

The plot, which is sometimes confusing, is as follows: Diabolus, a giant, seduces the city of Mansoul when the Prince of the city is absent. The Prince soon returns however, and takes Mansoul by force after a fierce battle. After forgiving the town for its rebellion, he occupies the town for some time. The townspeople soon become indifferent to his presence, however, due to the influence of a man called Carnal-Security, and the Prince leaves the town. The Diabolonians then attack the city again, and overtake it all except the castle. The people then petition the Prince through the High Secretary, who lives in the castle. The Prince returns and is triumphant again over the Diabolonians. Diabolus attacks the city twice more, and is severely routed each time. Many Diabolonians lurk in the city however, and are constantly hunted down and executed by the populace.

The most fascinating thing about The Holy War is its analogy to the Christian life. Some comparisons are obvious: Diabolus is Satan, Prince Emmanuel is Jesus Christ, and Carnal-Security is the complacent condition of a backsliding Christian.

But some comparisons are less obvious. For example, during the first battle of Mansoul, before the city is taken, one officer of Diabolus is slain by the army of the Prince. The officer's name is Boasting. Bunyan is trying to demonstrate how the gospel of Christ can have an effect on people and even change their behavior for the good of society before they are converted.

The analogy breaks down occasionally. It is difficult for example, to pinpoint whether Mansoul represents all of humanity, or one individual person. The town in the beginning is given dominion over the whole country by the Prince, and yet has only one will, understanding and conscience.

In general, The Holy War makes colorful and entertaining reading. It is an excellent example of allegorical writing.

Abundant Life Singers Concert in New Chapel

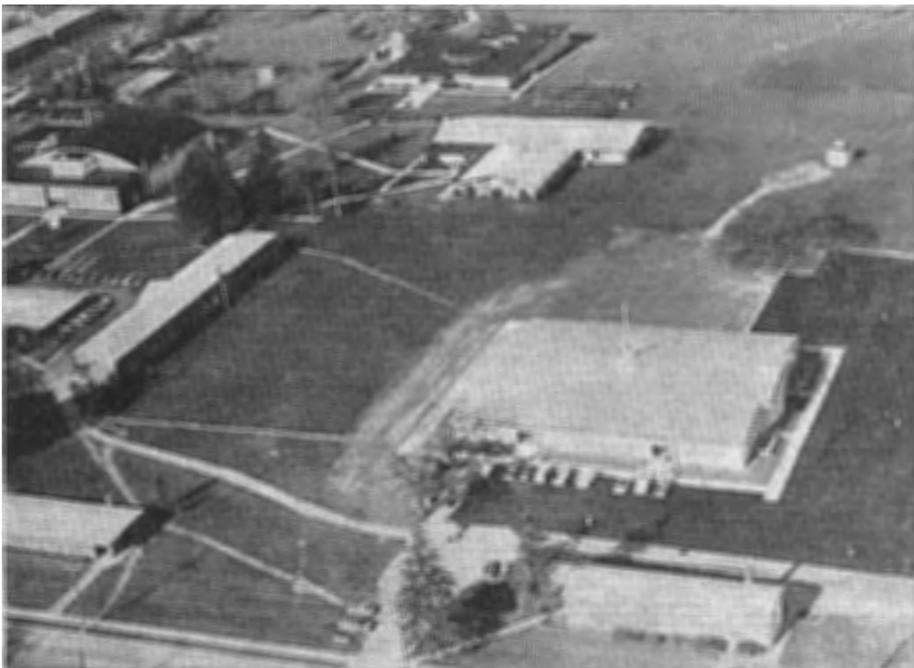

By Bob Foreman

Last evening Abundant Life held their annual school concert in the new chapel. The major theme of the program dealt with our Bi-Centennial patriotism.

Many selections from John W. Peterson's "I Love America" were chosen for this Bicentennial program. Patriotic numbers such as "Praise the Lord, Give Thanks America," "Jesus is Calling America," and "The Red, White, and Blue" were also a part of the special program.

Some new selections along with some solos and duets also took their place in the concert.

This concert had a special meaning for Kathy Howell, Ruth Goetz, and Jim Goetz. This was the final concert that they will participate in as Abundant Life Singers.

Good-bye Cedarville! See you in September.

Collegiate Singers ...

Patriotism Theme of Concert

By Chris Rufener

The U.S. flag and a red, white and blue backdrop set the scene for a patriotic panorama performed last Tuesday evening by the Collegiate Singers under the direction of Mr. Jack Payne.

The group consisted of soprano, Cathy Hulsman; altos, Patti Andes and Patty Birkenholtz; tenors, James Townsend, Garth West, and Richard Luedeke; and basses, Steve Koon, Dave Scripps, and Perry Washburn. Pricilla Taylor and Kim Stowe accompanied them at the piano.

The concert opened with several numbers set in the late seventeenth hundreds, "We Fight Not For Glory," and "George Washington's Prayer For The Nation."

The Wit and Wisdom of Benjamin Franklin offered advice on "On Being a Proper Host," "Marriage and Life," and "On Keeping a Secret" (three can keep a secret if two of them are dead).

As the singers moved into their repertoire, they began to loosen up.

A Shaker Patchwork, consisting of twelve songs, depicted Shaker life from the morning prayer, through daily life and community meetings, to the popular tune, "Tis a Gift to be Simple."

A Yankee farmer song of the early nineteenth century, "The Sow Took to Measles," provided Mr. Payne an opportunity to contribute his talent.

The group exposed their talents in "Johnny Has Gone For a Soldier," "Camptown Races," and "Shenandoah," and the audience responded warmly. Despite the imbalance of voices, the singers achieved a soft, mellow blend.

A spiritual melody, "Who'll Be a Witness For My Lord?," featured Mr. Rich Luedeke, with Mr. Dean Kool and son on percussion, Mr. John Jackson on guitar and Mr. Dan Behymer on drums.

The instrumental accompaniment also backed "I'll Take Sugar in My Coffee-O," featuring Cathy Hulsman. Both numbers were favorites with the audience.

The concert concluded with "The Patriot's Dream," based on "America the Beautiful," with Mr. Daryll Miller at the organ.

The Collegiate Singers presented a collection of twelve Shaker songs along with several patriotic numbers.

Jackettes End Successful Season

The first season of competition in softball proved a successful one for Cedarville women as they finished the campaign with a 7-2 won-lost record. Next season will bring an extended schedule of about 15 games plus a state tournament at Wright State University, according to Dr. June Kearny.

Captained by sophomore Cathy Bunton and junior Rhonda Crum, the team hit much better during the closing part of the season, said Dr. Kearny. With no seniors on the team this year, the team looks forward to improving its season record next year.

By the vote of team members, Kim Gall was selected as the most valuable player. Other awards went to Faith Whitelaw for most RBI's (16) and as the most improved player. Rhonda Crum was tops in doubles (3), Jo Priola in triples (3), and Cheryl Carey and Faith Whitelaw tied for most home runs with three apiece.

With a growing emphasis on women's athletics and a successful initial season, interscholastic softball will have an important part in the sphere of athletics at Cedarville College in the future.

Golfers Tie for Second Place in MOC Tourney

By Gary Connors

The MOC Tourney on May 10 ended this year's golf season. The Cedarville College golfers made a respectable showing with a second place tie with Tiffin, finishing behind a strong Malone team. The Mohawk Country Club in Tiffin, Ohio, proved tough as Cedarville's lowest score was an 83 by Jon Wyman. The team score was 342, 14 strokes off Malone's pace.

A second place finish was also achieved in the Sinclair Tourney, which was won by Lakeland Community College with a 304 total. Cedarville's 333 score placed them one stroke ahead of Sinclair and Chillicothe. The team was led by David Slusher with an 80 and Dale Johnson with an 83.

The results of the NAIA District 22 Golf Tournament were rather disappointing. Cedarville finished sixth out of eight teams with 479 strokes for the 27 hole championship. David Slusher and Jon Wyman were the bright spots with scores of 117 and 118 respectively.

The last two dual matches of the year were both won by Cedarville. Dave Slusher's 75 and 82's by Jon Wyman and Greg Myers enabled the golfers to drub Central State 322 to 353. In the other match, Cedarville defeated Ohio Dominican 325 to 391 in very windy conditions. The cousins, Dave and Pete Slusher, each scored an 80 for Cedarville.

Coach Al Monroe looks forward to 1977 as a rebuilding year. The team will be losing Dave Slusher, Dale Johnson, and Greg Myers due to graduation and Jon Wyman due to ineligibility. Upcoming freshmen Gary Gromacki, Tom Williams, and Tim Gunderson are expected to join returning golfers Pete Slusher and Dave Riddle on the 1977 team.

The team on the whole had a good season as the following records indicate:

- No. 1, Dave Slusher, 9-8-1, 78.6 avg.
- No. 2, Dale Johnson, 9-8-1, 81.4 avg.
- No. 3, Jon Wyman, 13-5-0, 81.3 avg.
- No. 4, Greg Myers, 12-4-0, 83.5 avg.
- No. 5, Pete Slusher, 14-4-0, 84.5 avg.

Congratulations are in order to Jon Wyman, who was named all-MOC.

On May 28 the golf team defeated the faculty. Jon Wyman with a 74, Dave Johnson, 75, and Dave Slusher, 79, were low for the golfers. Dr. Gromacki ceased play during the second nine because of hard rain. Coach Monroe continued and finished with an 88.

Team Ties Malone for District Crown

After tying for the District crown with Malone, the Jackettes tennis team resumed its winning form by walloping Central State and Wilmington by scores of 9-0 and 7-2 respectively on May 19th and 20th. By tying for the District championship, the team qualified for their season-long goal, the NAIA Nationals in Kansas City, Missouri, in which they are now participating.

Throughout the season the name of Dave Delancey has highlighted the tennis news. For four years Delancey has dominated area tennis, and during Senior Chapel on May 28th he was recognized by Student Senate for his efforts. A plaque will be presented to him while a permanent one will find its place in the trophy case.

Besides Delancey as MVP and all-conference, the team had others honored with all-MOC status. They were Ken Erny, Jack Lowstetter and Steve Stairs.

Looking to next year, the Jackettes will be hard pressed to replace Delancey and Lowstetter but will continue to possess the core for a powerhouse team. Even though Walsh enters the MOC as a top opponent next year, it appears that the long standing Cedarville tradition of winning tennis teams will continue.

Jackets End Season on Strong Note

The Jacket tracksters ended the season on a strong note with several good performances. Cedarville captured the NCCAA Nationals held at Cedarville, took second place in the MOC, placed third at the District 22 meet, and had three men qualify for the NAIA Nationals. Some team members also participated in the Pitt Relays.

Warren Gifford and Brian Hull led the trackmen to victory in the NCCAA Nationals. Hull took the mile in 4:18.1 and the 2 mile run in 14:40.6. Gifford placed second in the 440 and anchored the second place mile relay team. He had a third place in the long jump and 4th in the high hurdles. For his efforts, Gifford was named the meet's most valuable performer.

The Pitt Relays saw some great individual efforts for Cedarville trackmen. Paul Beck ran a 1:54.1 88, just missing the finals. Jon Mitchell qualified for the finals in the 440 yd. intermediate hurdles, while Brian Hull qualified for the NAIA Nationals with his time of 9:18.8 in the steeplechase.

Cedarville placed third in the District meet behind powerhouses Malone and Central State. This proved to be the last meet for all but three men who qualified for the Nationals: Paul Beck, Jon Mitchell, and Brian Hull.

At the Nationals, Beck ran the 880 in 1:52.8 and made it to the semi-finals. Mitchell finished seventh in the intermediates with a 52.8 clocking. Brian Hull became the first Cedarville trackster to score a point in the Nationals by finishing 6th in the steeplechase in 9:07.0.

A good season it was for track at Cedarville. With much strength returning for next spring, much can be expected when it comes time again to don spikes and running shoes.
