Kent Amstutz hopes to expand the ministry of the college yearbook.

Christian Service Expands Staff

During the past several years, the Christian Service Department has experienced a tremendous growth in number and outreach of student ministries. To keep pace with this growth, three men have been hired to work part-time with Pastor Green, Director of Christian Service.

Dave Kisner, senior, is in charge of the "compassion ministries," which include Rest Homes, OSSO (Ohio Soldier's and Sailor's Orphanage), Bible Clubs, Jr. Church, and Four Oaks (a school and work center for the mentally retarded). New opportunities are being developed at Barney's Children's Hospital and St. Joseph's Home for Emotionally Disturbed Children, both in Dayton. Selected students will be able to work with children there on a one-to-one basis.

One major goal concerning these ministries is to publicize and let the student body know what is going on, enabling them to pray more intelligently.

Kisner is also helping Pastor Green in the Fellowship, in charge of music, songleading, and ushers. They are hoping to establish teams of ushers to serve in the Fellowship as well as at concerts, plays, and other functions.

Another innovation is a bulletin which will be printed and distributed at the Sunday services. It will include prayer requests, announcements, and a Daily Bible Reading Schedule developed by students.

Dave Lyons, also a senior, will be working with Swordbearers on the business end with scheduling, church contracts, and record-keeping. He will also be advising the four weekend teams, helping plan seminars, and traveling.

He is actively working to form a church planting team to go into a town in the area, hold meetings, and start a church. Southgate is an example of a church which began in this way.

Bruce McDonald, a 1969 graduate, is responsible for the Detention Home, Jail, and Campus Evangelism ministries. He will be training students to go to area campuses and share their faith effectively with other students.

McDonald is raising support as a missionary in Campus Evangelism. He will also be on the baseball and basketball coaching staff.

Mrs. Margaret Green will continue to act as secretary for Pastor Green as well as handling Swordbearers correspondence and MIS records.

Beth Beikert will be working part-time as a typist-receptionist, scheduling vans, and keeping the Christian Service records.

For the second year, Kathy Howell is coordinating music for Swordbearers, chapel, and the Fellowship.

As a result of the additional staff, Pastor Green will have more time to fulfill his responsibilities as Campus Pastor, especially preparing messages and counseling. He will also be working with Living Springs (a paper for residents of nursing homes), and puppet teams. Plans are to expand the puppet ministry into writing scripts and making puppets as well as performance.

There is at present a desperate need for office space and transportation. There are six people working out of two offices and hundreds of students to transport in three vans and two cars.

In spite of obstacles, the people in the Christian Service Department believe that with hard work and a lot of prayer, the possibilities are unlimited.

Registration can be a long and complicated process. This year's Freshman class found that true, barring some major changes from previous years.

CC Implements Changes In Frosh Registration

This year, Cedarville College has implemented a different form of registration for the Freshman Class.

No longer are the new students simply given a list of courses and told to make a schedule out of it. Instead, certain required classes are automatically assigned to the student. The student then discusses the classes with his faculty advisor and will perhaps drop or add courses.

What are the benefits of this new program? First, it does not limit the student's choice of classes greatly, because the freshman year is generally devoted to required classes anyway.

Secondly, students with undeclared majors are encouraged to take courses from varied fields, which could aid the student in choosing a major.

Finally, this new program lessens the possibility of a student finally coming up with a schedule, only to find that he must start over because one of the classes has been closed.

Amstutz to Edit '77-'78 Miracle

The Miracle, which is the yearbook for Cedarville College, has taken on a new editor and new ideas. This year's editor, who is replacing Val Pristera, is Kent Amstutz. He is a senior, majoring in Biology and Pre-Med. Kent has had experience in high school in working on yearbooks, but this will be his first year with The Miracle. In previous years at Cedarville he has been actively involved in student government.

Three weeks ago Kent received word that he was editor for the 1977-78 yearbook and since then he has been formulating new ideas to help The Miracle be a better extension of Cedarville as a "ministry in publicity."

One very important aspect of the yearbook is the theme. Although nothing is definite, Kent would like to have a theme that depicts the growth of Cedarville students from their freshman year through their senior year. Included in Kent's tentative theme is the idea of interaction at Cedarville. He plans to show what Cedarville has to offer spiritually, socially, and academically. This, in turn, will show the change in students in the three aspects of growth.

One other dimension that will be new this year is in regard to the staff. In order to provide incentive to stay with the yearbook and to spread the responsibility, a system of section editors will be devised. For instance, an editor will be responsible for the faculty pages, another for basketball, etc. Kent will be responsible for overseeing the entire yearbook. He believes that having section editors will provide for more group participation and the 1977-78 Miracle will not be just one person's book, but an entire group project.

The Miracle staff and advisor, Mr. Marlin Rayburn, have moved their office from the Fine Arts building to the basement of Ambassador Hall. As of this writing there is no darkroom in which to develop pictures, but the staff is looking for a suitable place.

Some of the students were wondering why underclassmen's pictures for the yearbook were taken at registration. This was done as a convenience so that it would not be necessary to set up appointments. It was also more efficient and the staff was more assured of getting all of the students' pictures taken.

New Program Calls for More Dorms

Cedarville College has begun examining a new program to enlarge and modify its facilities.

According to plans, a new dormitory will be built every year for the next five years. In addition, several improvements, including other new buildings, are scheduled for construction.

Mr. Lee Turner, Director of Development, stated that the two new men's dorms north of Maddox Hall will aid the college in "catching up" with Cedarville's increasing enrollment.

Also, there are several projects concerning issues other than housing. Mr. Turner, when discussing sessions of the Long-Range Planning Committee, spoke of these new projects in terms of priority. The first on the list of improvements is remodeling the Student Center-Gymnasium.

Several courses of action have been suggested, according to the director. The first is that a new gymnasium be built just north of the tennis courts, with the present SCG being remodeled for more cafeteria space. The current gym would be converted to two floors of classrooms and recreation facilities.

An alternative to this would be to expand the present gym, and build a new student center elsewhere.

More definite plans are expected to be made when the Planning Committee meets again this month. There will also be a feasibility study concerning the SCG situation, and Mr. Turner believes that it will be conducted in a professional and thorough manner.

Besides the new dormitories and SCG improvement, the committee is considering such projects as more library space, a new music building, a new Health Service building, and the remodeling of Alford Auditorium.

Students to Receive Weekly "Cedars"

Beginning with this issue, the Whispering Cedars will be published on a weekly basis, except for holidays and final examination weeks.

A Comment on Revival

What is revival? I think that this question is quite valid, seeing as the word seems to be used quite frequently in referring to events of the past week — specifically the Fall Bible Conference.

Spiritual revival in an individual or a group must begin with a change of patterns of living. This involves applying the standards of godliness to our lives, repenting and forsaking sinful patterns of thought and action, and determining by the grace and power of God to live holy lives. This involves the intellect, the will, and the emotions. All three play vital roles in our living lives controlled by the Spirit.

As individuals respond to the Spirit of God in the above manner, their entire existence is affected. This is revival.

All of us would like to see revival break out on our campus. Many were challenged last week to be revived. Yet revival can never be ours until we understand that it is more than emotion. It is more than walking an aisle. It is more than a one-time decision. It is total commitment of our entire selves to living lives that are holy, blameless, and in complete conformity with the Word of God. Such a commitment is not man-empowered, it is God-empowered. If we will realize these things, and determine to do them, we may well see a real revival — one that will have the lasting effects of all true revivals. —CM

Wash Day Blues

Last Sunday morning I found it particularly hard to pull myself out of bed for Sunday School. This was due largely to the fact that I had been up through the wee hours of the morning drying my laundry.

I will admit that I am a "night person" and that most of my study and critical thinking is done nocturnally; however, the question still remains — Why should Cedarville students have to stay up until a ridiculous hour doing their laundry?

The issue boils down to the obvious shortage of washers and dryers on this campus. For the nearly 150 women of Faith Hall there are four washers and four dryers, some of which are occasionally inoperable. Williams Hall is served by only two washers and dryers. Maddox women are forced to rely on machines which may loosely be termed "dryers." But perhaps the saddest commentary of all is that of seven men's residences which must share the meager and partially incapacitated facilities of Marshall and Carr.

Maybe it's simply a matter of scheduling the time that the laundry facilities are being used. Still, action needs to be taken soon lest next wash-day you observe a remnant of Cedarville students dotting the banks of Cedar Lake, beating their fine washables against the rocks in a sudsing fury. —SZ

Alpha Chi Banquet Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night, Alpha Chi, the college's largest men's organization, will kick off its annual banquet a few weeks early this year.

Because of increased enrollment, and limited campus facilities, the Alpha Chi officers and its advisor have scheduled an affair that the organization expects will revolutionize Cedarville's banquet scene.

In breaking with formal tradition of the past this year's banquet heralds a Harvest Festival theme and calls for informal but warm autumn attire.

The college family will gather under the 4-H camp pavilion in Clifton and commence the festivity at 5:30 in the evening with an old-fashioned picnic buffet dinner of roast beef, corn on the cob, and homemade bread.

The evening will be climaxed with music and entertainment provided by members of the student body.

'Our Town' Auditions Resume on Monday

Auditions for Cedarville College's fall production of Thornton Wilder's classic "Our Town" will continue on Monday evening at 7 o'clock in Alford Auditorium.

The school's new drama coach, Mrs. Rebecca Baker, encourages all students who are majoring in the field of communication arts and have experience in drama to attend the auditions. However, she does not hesitate to add that the try-outs are open to all students regardless of major or amount of previous experience.

Mrs. Baker explained that the auditions, which were also held last night, are expected to last until 8:30, and that students need not bring anything but themselves.

"The parts are not difficult," the new coach continued. "The challenge of the play is in the sensitivity of the characters and the ability to work with ideas."

The play's cast, which consists of ten male characters and six females, covers a variety of roles, ranging from major leads to bit parts.

Basically, Mrs. Baker is searching for actors who can give a thought-provoking performance. She describes them as "moldable and flexible . . . someone who will let me pull their ability out of them."

"Our Town" is Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, and the play was first performed in 1938. Nevertheless, Mrs. Baker believes that in this piece Wilder is able to "take a human life, generalize it, and at the same time draw upon the audience's imagination to fill in the details, so that 'Our Town' becomes Your Town."

Philippians 2:1-5

If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfil ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than themselves. Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.

Many legends have grown up around the mathematician and mystic, Pythagoras. He founded a school at Crotona, which was the beginning of the secret brotherhood called Pythagoreans.

Pythagoras died around 497 B.C. in Metapontum; however the cult which he had started continued on for at least another hundred years. Now this cult was particularly strange because it acted contrary to typical human behavior. Everything that was discovered was attributed by the brotherhood to Pythagoras! Now isn't that interesting? Needless to say my mind turned immediately to Philippians 2:1-5, which I have reproduced here.

I think that we as Christians can learn a great deal from Pythagoras and his followers. How many times do we exalt Christ and others first? It is my wish to suggest to you as a fellow Christian that we need to realize that it is God that has directed us here and that we need to live according to Scripture lest our sojourn and work be in vain (I Cor. 9:27).

Gospel Soloist Lyman Proves Both Informative, Entertaining

Review by Steve Myers

Mr. Ed Lyman, gospel soloist and composer, appeared in concert Saturday night, October 1, in the College Chapel.

Mr. Lyman is an experienced tenor, trained in light operatic style. The piano accompaniment for nearly all of the eighty-minute concert was furnished by Eric Wyse, a music student at Cedarville.

Lyman opened with a set of familiar gospel songs, including "He Touched Me", "Through It All", and "No One Ever Cared Like Jesus".

The audience seemed to relax somewhat as Mr. Lyman presented a medley of well-known Black American spirituals, including "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot", "Nobody Knows The Trouble I've Seen", and "Standing In The Need Of Prayer", which called for audience participation. The next segment was devoted to music about the seemingly hopeless questions that our world cannot answer. Lyman pointed out the importance of clear messages in our gospel music. He also mentioned a great neglect of many church music ministries.

To emphasize the emptiness of the natural man and his music, Mr. Lyman sang brief portions of an opera by Paggiacci, and "Blowin' In The Wind", by folk singer Bob Dylan.

Mr. Wyse was given a brief solo spot which he used to perform a short and sweet piano arrangement of "I Am Not Worthy". His own highly expressive style added much to the number.

The final vocal numbers of the evening included "Take My Life And Let It Be", sung with a taped background. Mr. Lyman closed with "The Hiding Place", the theme of Corrie Ten Boom's famous story.

Student Body Project Sale Attracts Many Students

Many came one by one, others in pairs, and some piled on top of each other as the multitude of old, used books streamed into the SCG lounge on Tuesday, Sept. 27, for the quarterly SBP book sale.

Controlling the traffic of books ranging from science to English was Scott Browne, the newly elected Commander-in-Chief of the project. His staff of sophomores, juniors, and seniors consisted of Ray Anne Moore, Mike Rae, Tina Wagner, Brad McCory, Randy Campbell, Karen Seymour, Cindy Jacobs, and Debbie Toro.

The reading lounge doors were opened to students interested in acquiring books at low, discount rates on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 28 and 29. Of course, several had to be willing to overlook some ripped and marked pages, dented covers and ink-blotted texts. After hundreds of people browsed through the assortment of books, the sale ended on Thursday at five, accumulating approximately $200.

Stratford Festival Provides Students With Exposure to Superior Drama

By Tina Wagner

Thirty Cedarville students, two alumni, and three faculty members launched into this academic year in an unusual way when they crowded into three college vans and traveled to Stratford, Ontario two weeks ago for the annual Shakespeare Festival.

English instructor Ronald ("McDonald") Grosh coordinated the trip, marking his fifth year taking students to this festival. Why does he keep going? "For those who enjoy the art of drama, chances are that you'll never see drama performed any better than you see it at Stratford."

Mr. Grosh further stated that serious professionals from such places as Britain, Wales, Australia, and the United States consider it an honor to be selected to perform for the Stratford audiences.

The excursion began Thursday evening, September 22, when the vans made their way north to Taylor, Michigan, where the group lodged for the night. Friday morning a few of CC's Michigan students joined the ranks, but three of the other girls were inadvertently left behind at the motel. Customs officials, who had received a call from the motel, informed Mr. Grosh of the situation when he arrived at the Canadian border. After the stranded girls had hailed a taxi and rejoined their friends, the entire group drove the remaining distance into Stratford, arriving precisely in time for the afternoon performance of "Much Ado About Nothing."

Following that comedy the audience received some unique schooling. Two gentlemen, who had performed in comical character parts in the play, rushed back onto the stage during the standing ovation and offered to answer questions. Their responses to queries revealed information pertaining to the theatre, Shakespeare's style, actors' techniques, and stage directions. For example, listeners seemed impressed when they learned that Shakespeare rarely, if ever, included stage directions in the writing of his plays and all the actions and gestures in the Stratford productions are added by the directors and actors.

A change of pace was in store Friday evening when the Cedarvillites watched a turn-of-the-century comedy entitled "The Guardsman."

Saturday morning found the Cedarville group dispersed throughout the Stratford area — from the small art museum to the downtown shopping area, to Shakespeare Land — each individual exploring a new place in his or her own way.

A heavier atmosphere pervaded the Festival Theatre on Saturday afternoon as the audience sat in awe during the incredible performance of the tragedy, "Richard III." That evening, Cedarville's group gathered for their final play of the trip — another of Shakespeare's comedies, "As You Like It."

Three of the four plays viewed were comedies; but, according to Mr. Grosh, there was plenty of comedy off-stage as well. One of his favorite moments occurred when, in the usual rush to distribute tickets to his students before the play began, he looked up and found himself handing a ticket to a complete stranger. "You're not with our group, are you?" he inquired politely. "Oh no," said the girl with the outstretched hand. "I just thought you were handing them out for free!"

Many of the plays for this season were completely sold out in April. The plays for 1978 have been chosen and personnel are being invited. Mr. Grosh urges all those who plan on making the trip next year to inquire at the opening of winter quarter.

New CC Professors Fill Six Faculty Openings

Six new professors have come to Cedarville this fall to fill openings on the faculty. These new professors and their departments are Charles Pagnard and Karl Stahl in Music; Mrs. Beverly Monroe and Mrs. Helen Hall in Education; and Mr. and Mrs. James Baker in the Speech Department.

Mr. Pagnard is taking the position of Assistant Professor of Music in the instrumental division. He is a graduate of Bowling Green State University with a major in music, and completed his graduate work at Eastman School of Music, where he majored in Performance and Literature. He and his wife, Elaine, have two children: Charles Gregory, who is eight years old, and Christian Martin, who is three.

Also joining the Music Department is Mr. Karl Stahl. Mr. Stahl takes the position of Assistant Professor of Music, and will deal particularly with the organ. Mr. Stahl majored in Organ, Piano, and Voice at Gettysburg College in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. He completed his Master's Degree in Organ and Choral Conducting at Teachers College of Columbia University, in New York, New York.

Jackette Spikers Show Promise; Wins Build Morale

By Mark Warren

Cedarville College's women's volleyball team, under the direction of head coach, Dr. June F. Kearney, and assistant coach, Jo Priola, commenced its pre-season activity on September 23-24 in tournament play at Otterbein College.

The tournament, for Cedarville's spikers, was successful as indicated by their win-loss tally of 5-1, and more importantly the team's morale. The players have been excitingly optimistic as they have anxiously awaited the beginning of this year's challenging season. "We are going to be tough," stated assistant coach Jo Priola. "We came back a week earlier to practice, we worked hard, and the kids have a good attitude."

Last week's battle against Capital University, the only loss suffered by Cedarville in the pre-season tournament, was "close all the way."

Optimism flared as the team evaluated their performance in preparation for regular season action. "We are inconsistent in a couple of areas, including serving, but it's just the beginning of the season," commented assistant coach Priola.

This year's team roster consists of seventeen players, nine of those being freshmen. The team's strength centers around spikers Rachael Norton, Brenda Hobar, Pat Holmes, Shawn Taylor, Val Totman, Dorene Sands, and senior captain, Judie Cross. Although the team lost three lettermen, they are anticipating a better season than last year's victoriously compiled record of 22 wins and 10 defeats.

Regular season play began here October 5, against Cincinnati Bible College. The team's next scheduled contest is the Ohio University tournament this weekend, October 7-8. "We are a little worried because there are so many bigger schools there," remarked Priola. "They are able to recruit players and consequently have experience walking out onto the court for them."

In addition to the tournament, the spikers will play this week on Monday, October 10, here on our home court at 6:30 in a tri-match against Rio Grande and Wilmington. Tuesday, October 11, they take to the road and battle in another tri-match against Defiance and Ashland.

Cedarville kickers battle for the ball in last Saturday's game against Ohio Wesleyan.

Young Soccer Team Displays Potential

By Mark Warren

The Cedarville kickers have begun their new season with a whole set of new faces. Losing 10 out of the top 12 players from last year, the soccer team must rely on newer players to carry them through its stiffly competitive schedule. Head coach John McGillivray commented, "I think there is a lot of potential there."

The team realizes that because of the inexperience behind the line the defensive game is of concern. Coach McGillivray sees the offensive unit as a strong point this year, led by co-captains Tom Benefiel, last year's top scorer, and Dave Stoner, also a returning letterman.

The '77 season is now three games old, and the team's record stands at 0 wins and 3 losses, not at all an indicator of the potential they feel is among the team. Although suffering losses to Ohio University, 3-0, Wittenberg University, 3-0, and Ohio Wesleyan, 9-4, Cedarville posed several threats.

When asked about Wittenberg's game, Coach McGillivray stated, "It was frustrating. We had a couple nice shots but just couldn't put them in the net." Statistics indicate that Cedarville outshot Wittenberg 31-12. The coach also remarked about the Ohio Wesleyan game, "We've improved, but still have to eliminate the mistakes of inexperience."

Injuries have plagued the team through the entirety of the new season. "We've had practices with four starters out," commented Coach McGillivray. "It is most discouraging when you want to practice, and know what to work on, but don't have the men. That's not an excuse because we have capable players. It just hurts your depth."

A very positive and important aspect of this year's team is their goal in maintaining their solid Christian testimony. They feel good attitude is directly related to good playing and therefore have emphasized their spiritual growth as a team, as well as their emphasis on winning other athletes to Christ by their firm testimony before, during, and after games.

The soccer team's next engagement for battle is this Saturday, October 8, in their first conference game, against rival school, Walsh College. Cedarville and Walsh, during the last four consecutive years, have split the NAIA District 22 championship games, winning two each. The game should prove crucial for our soccer team.

Cross Country Team Opens '77 Schedule

By Fred Greetham

The cross country team is off and running as the 1977 season is underway. The team has three meets behind them as of now. They finished eighth at Indiana Central, eighth of 14 at the meet in Marion, and finished first at Earlham.

This year's team is made up of 13 members, led by senior co-captains Bruce Henslin and Brian Hull, an NAIA All-American last year. Behind the two seniors there are two others back from last year's team: sophomores Craig Colas and Dale Shaw.

Shaw, who showed much promise as a freshman, has been somewhat hampered by injuries at this point in the season. Junior Mark Streitmatter, and sophomores Danny Rowe and Tom Yater, round out the upperclassmen roster.

The remaining members are all freshmen who have shown good promise thus far and give good indications for the future. These freshmen are: John Lennington, Andy Wind, Sal Clark, Dave Sugg, Dave Begley, and Curtis Gutwein.

Field Hockey Dominated by Veterans

By Fred Greetham

The 1977 Cedarville College women's field hockey team should prove to be both interesting and exciting. 15 players return from last year's team plus several new recruits that will help solidify this year's team.

Coach Maryalyce Jeremiah cites several goals for this year's team. Among these goals are to play above .500 for the season, to win the Ohio Valley League, and to finish in the top eight in the state tournament.

Coach Jeremiah feels that some if not all of these goals may be achieved, due largely to the enthusiasm and dedication shown by the team thus far. During the summer the team as a whole logged roughly 2,000 miles on the road, in preparation for the season. The coach points to the forward line as one of the most prominent strengths of the team, as the entire forward line from last year is back. Another plus is the returning of last year's MVP. Inexperience is the lone word singled out for the weakness of the team, due largely to the younger players in the backfield.

This year's team is comprised of 19 players, led by senior co-captain Andrea MacDermid, and junior co-captain Sue Kuntzelman. Other team members include: Mary Harris, Debbie Selden, Becky Trittipoe, Barb Roth, Ruth Cornell, Sue Kulp, Diane Moore, Dana Treese, Elaine Gregory, Becky Kuhn, Krisi Frey, Crystal Anderson, Patti Mullican, Cheryl Carlson, Debbie Kearsley, Carol Morgan, Cindy Castle. This year's manager is Carolyn Napier. Serving Coach Jeremiah as an assistant is Pat Davis, the former No. 2 goalie in the United States, who played in 25 international matches.

The team's current record is 2 wins-2 losses-and 2 ties. This year's schedule is figured to be the toughest in Cedarville's field hockey team's history, therefore with the more difficult schedule the best should be brought out in the team. The next home game is Tuesday, Oct. 11, against Ohio Wesleyan.

Jackette Sue Kulp hustles to help bring home another victory.
