Matthews Lectures On 'Certainty'

Dr. Victor Matthews, Professor of Philosophy at Grand Rapids Baptist College, lectured on "certainty" during the Student Senate In-Forum, April 28-29.

Dr. Matthews discussed "That Which is Important to God" in chapel on Friday, and "The Search for Certainty" and "The Provision Of Certainty" in two other seminars.

The basic theme of the series was apologetics, defined by Dr. Matthews as "presenting the truth in the broadest sense possible" or "a reasoned defense of Biblical Christianity." He explained that preachers, Sunday School teachers, and witnessing laymen are all involving apologetics when they present the Gospel.

"Certainty," according to Dr. Matthews, is vitally involved with apologetics. To communicate the truth, Christians must first possess the Truth. He stated that all Christians have an unlimited potentiality for fulfillment ("Certainty"), which must be worked out. Unfortunately many Christians become obsessed with the search for fulfillment and create idols. This "certainty" begins with a solid basis for the assurance of Salvation (not just feeling), and should be implemented in all areas of life. "There are no 'neutral areas.'"

Dr. Matthews referred often to his childhood as a great influence in his concern with "Certainty." His father was very antagonistic, but his mother took the children to Sunday School, where he accepted Christ as Savior and surrendered his life. He later attended several Bible colleges and became a pastor. Yet, "My hunger and desire for God was like a great, empty hurt in my life; at times I thought it would kill me." Slowly, through much study and prayer, he developed his views on "certainty" he presently holds.

This great conflict in his life has generated a concern to aid other Christians in these areas. Dr. Matthews incorporates this in the classroom as well as his preaching and lectures, and feels there should be a stronger emphasis in churches as well, possibly by the sponsorship of lectureships in addition to evangelistic meetings.

Dr. Matthews has received an A.B. from Calvin College, a B.D. from Grand Rapids Baptist Theological Seminary, a Th.M. degree from Calvin Theological Seminary, and an S.T.D. from Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary. He is much in demand as a speaker, and has written Growth in Grace, Confessions to a Counselor, and Neo-evangelicalism. His goals are to "become a better teacher and put it all down on paper."

'Pygmalion' Opens

The Village Players' presentation of Pygmalion, by George Bernard Shaw, opened last night to a receptive audience. The play revolves around the attempt to civilize the rough Eliza Doolittle.

The play will be performed again tonight and again tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. Any available seats will be on sale one hour before curtain.

Enrollment Increasing Steadily

While Cedarville students were diving into the hectic month of April, a record 81 potential students expressed their desire to become a part of the madness by sending in their applications. By May 1, 435 applications had been received, with 358 students accepted.

According to John Street, Director of Admissions, the number of applications received this year is running slightly behind that of last year; however the surprising number received in April indicate that the students are sending them later than usual. The total number of returning students won't be known until after registration, but a full enrollment and a long waiting list are anticipated.

When questioned about recruitment strategies, Street said, "The best recruiters for Cedarville College are our students. They go out and tell other people about the school. We don't need a strong recruitment program."

In addition to the usual ads in Christian publications, however, there are some other ideas being implemented to encourage prospective Cedarville students.

Telethons have proven to be a valuable recruitment tool. On two evenings in March and April, 4-6 Seniors were selected to make telephone calls to students who had partially applied, requested applications, or decided against coming after being accepted. The purpose of the calls was to answer any questions or provide further information about Cedarville College. In general, the response has been favorable. Another has been scheduled for May.

Cedarville College receives ACT and SAT scores from students indicating an interest in attending. Letters, catalogues and viewbooks are sent to these students. Anyone visiting the college is encouraged to visit with the Director of Admissions to answer any questions, and representatives from the college will be talking to Senior classes of Christian high schools in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan.

Musical groups, gospel teams, and others that travel from the school on weekends and during the summer are also a big asset in promoting Cedarville and its various programs.

Street said he has been greatly pleased with the number of applications from transfer students and those exhibiting academic excellence. In the future, he would like to see more students coming from more areas of the country, especially the South. Anyone have friends in Mississippi?

Stevens Takes Post at GR

Mr. Dan Stevens, Cedarville College's Alumni Coordinator, will be leaving Cedarville College in the middle of July and moving to Grand Rapids where he will be the Director of Adult Education at Grand Rapids Baptist College and Seminary.

Teaching a homiletics course and Foundations of Christian Education at the college level, along with teaching one semester of Christian Education of Children on the seminary level are among his new educational duties.

Believing the Lord has been leading in his life the last ten years to achieve this goal, the educator and his family are excited about the new changes in their lives. Preparation began when Stevens graduated from Cedarville College in 1969 with a sociology major.

He then studied at Dallas Theological Seminary. Obtaining his master's degree (Th.M.) in Bible exposition in 1973, he decided to continue preparation by doing his doctoral degree in adult education at Ohio State University. At this time, Mr. Stevens has completed all course work and is working on his dissertation.

Stevens believes that as Alumni Director, his knowledge in writing and graphic arts has been greatly enhanced, and that this has given him preparation skills in audio-visual media in Christian education. Stevens also has been active in the teaching of Sunday School classes from nursery to adult.

Increased Accountability

As students here at Cedarville this past year, we have had the privilege of sitting under some tremendous teaching from the Word of God from Chapel speakers, from professors, from Sunday school teachers and pastors, and from friends. This teaching has involved various areas of our lives, and has made us aware of implications from the Scripture on different realms of our lives.

This being the case, we have gained something more than our knowledge. We have gained accountability. We are now responsible before God for how we apply the knowledge that we have gained and how we demonstrate that knowledge before the world and the children of God. Accountability is something that few people are willing to accept, unfortunately. Most of us would rather have knowledge and with that knowledge have a number of patented excuses as to why we do not live according to our knowledge — acting instead as if we were ignorant.

We know the demands that the Word of God places upon our uses of time, upon our conversations, on our actions toward others. The question is: to what extent is this knowledge going to affect our living? The majority of us will probably stick to our rather simple pattern of knowing and not doing, but before we resolve to do this, we should remember that God knows what we know, He knows what we do, and will judge us on that basis.

Keep Cedarville Green

Last week, Whispering Cedars ran an article concerning the new horticulturist hired by the school. The article mentioned his efforts concerning the improvement of the campus grounds, as well as future plans for landscaping. And indeed, one can really notice the changes in the forms of bushes, flowers, and string-bound saplings all over campus.

Cedarville's campus has never really been marked as an eyesore because of litter or overgrown lawns. In fact, most visitors to the college remark that the campus is exceptionally well-kept and clean. Much of the credit for a beautiful campus must go to the maintenance department, but the bulk of thanks needs to go to students who care. Of course, one could argue that there is not an abundance of litter here (i.e. cigarette butts and beer cans) that could make any difference, but candy-bar wrappers, scrap paper, and the multitudes of intra-campus mimeographs could add up to quite a mess if left in the wrong places. The reason for a clean campus, then? People care about where they live (while they are here), and like to see it looking nice. And it's worked in Cedarville.

So, now that these improvements are being made, don't slack up on the job! I've never been much for the "Keep America Clean and Green" slogans, but in this case it applies. Next time you go for a walk, take time to appreciate the cleanliness of your campus. And if by some chance you come across something that isn't growing or fastened to the ground, pick it up and place it in a nearby circular file — the campus will then wear its new improvements with pride.

Senate News

By Rick Jones

The April 26 meeting of Student Senate was to have been the last this year; however, to insure that all work in progress was properly completed, President Scott Anderson scheduled a special meeting for May 10.

A study has been made of the three largest soft drink companies in this area, and all three charge the same price, about 23c, per can. The results of a study by marketing research students will be studied to help Senate in deciding whether to stay with Pepsi or switch to some other brand.

The proposed by-law was re-introduced to allow the student body to determine how much money could be spent on Student Senate. The motion was amended to allow Senate to determine the amount of money to be spent, but the by-law was not approved.

A proposal to the administration has been composed concerning the subject of women students wearing pants. The proposal would allow them to wear pants from December 1 to the end of winter quarter except at certain special functions.

During the open forum session this reporter was advised to voice any opinions concerning Senate not in this column, but in a letter to the editor. Later, a motion was passed that the discipline committee study Mr. Duncan Fields' letter to the editor expressing his opinions about Senate. (See Whispering Cedars, April 21, 1978.)

There was an ice cream social after prayer meeting. No vote was taken concerning it, and it was not announced until the meeting.

WCDR Raises $7,712

Share-A-Thon results are in!

WCDR, Cedarville College's radio station, successfully raised $7,712 for operating expenses on April 28 and 29 by means of Share-A-Thon pledges.

During these two days regular programming was set aside while air time was devoted to making listeners aware of the financial needs of a station carrying a full broadcast schedule.

Dane Rohm, station manager, admitted to being a little disappointed at first that the Share-A-Thon goal of $15,000 had not been met. He went on to say, however, that, "since I've had time to reflect, I think it's a good start." He thought of it as an educational process for the listeners as to the needs of the station.

General manager, Paul Gathany, also felt the results indicated peoples' concern about programming. He considered the Share-A-Thon foundational in the sense that it allowed listeners to understand the station's dependence upon them.

Some 250 pledges were made ranging from $1 to $500. Cedarville residents contributed 92 of these pledges. Dayton area residents composed the second largest group of contributors while other calls came from as near as Xenia and as far away as Fort Mitchell, Kentucky.

Although no decision has been reached as yet, Rohm said the remaining operating expenses of the station may be met by cutting back on expenses and/or continuing to make appeals on the air for contributions. According to Gathany, a last resort may involve the station taking out a loan.

Viewing the Share-A-Thon as a viable means of raising money, Gathany thinks the station may hold another one next year. This Share-A-Thon will probably extend for three days, however.

Gathany and Rohm expressed sincere appreciation to the many people whose work made this year's Share-A-Thon possible.

Work Day Set

Many of the people in the community of Cedarville have formulated specific ideas about Christianity and many others are still formulating them. Unfortunately, it seems that a general air of 'indifference' (hostility in some cases) has been present toward Christianity in Cedarville for some time. It would seem logical to assume that we students, faculty and administration have made a substantial contribution to this prevailing attitude, especially when one considers the ratio of students to townspeople.

The basis of the work day is to establish a better testimony in the community by showing the townspeople we really care.

The project will be similar to last year's Work-A-Thon, but the total emphasis will be on community relations.

IN YOUR OPINION

More on Senate

Dear Editor,

At the Student Senate meeting on April 19, I presented a proposal to the Senate, that would have had the effect of limiting Senate in the area of spending funds on themselves, to an amount that would be set by the Student Body in the fall of each year. To say that their response was cool is an understatement. While I was reading the rationale behind my proposal, some members of the Senate engaged in conversation, and one tried his hand at making and flying paper airplanes. The purpose of this letter is to reprint that speech so that the student body can read it, and I might add, so that those Senate members too busy to hear it, can see it. Here is the text of my speech.

In recent months, this Senate has voted itself the following items: two pizza parties, and an expense paid trip to a baseball game. After speaking to several students, including some Senate members, and looking into what our own constitution says on the matter, I would like to challenge this disbursement of funds for activities that solely benefit only the members of this group.

We must not, we cannot forget that we are the representatives of the students, not just a separate entity unto ourselves. By the very nature and implicit definition of Student Senate as seen in Article I of our constitution, it is obvious that we exist solely to represent the students. Any system of government, that is based on democratic principles, holds as one of its most basic premises, that government exists "of the people, by the people, and for the people." If I may paraphrase this to fit our setting, "of the students, by the students, and for the students." It is not to be, "of, by and for the Senate." We cannot allow ourselves to violate this trust and responsibility by not truly representing our student body and working together for their common mutual benefit.

The crux of the matter is this: are we truly serving the students by using their money to fulfill our own desires? Are we truly working for their mutual benefit when we are the only ones involved in enjoying the benefits? I, and the students that I have talked to, do not feel that this is legitimate and fair representation.

We dare not allow ourselves the liberty of the rationalization of our actions. It is true that as Senators we receive no salary for our efforts, but I do not recall at the time of election any mention of one, so why should we vote ourselves a hidden one? Less than two months ago we contested bitterly and at length over the matter of paying the typist of the little black book more money. Some claimed that the person knew how much work there would be, and he should accept the money agreed on previously. When we bring ourselves in as the recipients, however, we are more than happy to grant the funds.

We should not, and we cannot allow ourselves justification by pragmatism. Pragmatism, no matter how enticing and exemplified in decisions around and concerning us, must not become our basis for thought, our controlling motive. We argued bitterly against the administrator for using pragmatism in their defense of the existence of CZ, yet we won't place the same boundaries on ourselves.

We tend to crucify the administration at the slightest hint of an inconsistency, but we fail to look in our own back yard, which is littered with examples.

Many of the arguments that attempt to justify these actions can be summed up like this. Senate is in total charge of all the monies it receives, both from the school and from the profits of the pop machines, and is free to use some of these funds on themselves as they are not set aside especially for the students. I challenge this dichotomy of funds. The question to answer is not the origin, but rather the expenditure of these funds. What money is the Senate's and what is the students'? If we realize our true relationship to the students we claim to represent, I feel that this dichotomy can no longer exist. We are not as I stated earlier, a separate entity unto ourselves, and we must not act like it. The funds

Any Jobs in These Majors?

By Ron Phillips

Part V of a Series

The majors being discussed this week, English and science/mathematics are two with which it is relatively difficult to find an entry-level job. These are not vocationally-oriented fields of study, and many students use them solely as a foundation of knowledge on which to build.

The department of Science and Math offers three majors, those being biology, chemistry, and math. In addition, they do handle a medical technology program. This is a vocational program, preparing a student for graduate school, eventually leading to work as a lab technician. The field of medicine in general, however, is a very competitive one at the moment, as there is a current nationwide flocking of students into medical programs.

The most open field for science and math majors is, of course, teaching. There is an acute need at the present time for qualified science teachers in Christian schools. Also, teaching at the college level would require graduate work.

Jobs for majors in biology and chemistry are rather difficult to find, although some may be opening at the present time. Jobs are available as chemists, microbiologists, and lab researchers, along with a wide variety of jobs with cities in fields such as water treatment or drug or chemical sales.

A field that is ever-increasing is that of environmental services. This field is opening due to our dwindling resources, pollution, and related problems.

Entrance into graduate school is usually not a problem to a science major with adequate grades. Women also have an equal opportunity in the field, although they are in the minority at the present time.

The English department offers one 60-hour major, in addition to its teacher training program. It is not a vocationally-oriented major, outside of the realm of teaching, and many use it as a base or foundation for graduate study in another field. Thus, English is often described as a pre-professional major.

Two specific professions which are aided by sound training in English are law and medicine. Specialization in these two fields during the years of undergraduate work is unnecessary, and sometimes even harmful. Graduate schools in these professions are increasingly searching for students with basic communication skills. Most university undergraduate programs do not produce students with a broad basis of knowledge, and communication is usually the area found to be lacking.

Some grad schools are beginning to offer an American studies program for English majors. This is a type of interdisciplinary study, giving students a broad background of learning in the humanities, preparing them for jobs in teaching or in some type of government work.

Business is a field opening up to the English major. Here again, it is found that undergraduate business administration courses are too specialized, and graduates lack the basic skills necessary to communicate with people. Many industries prefer a person with a liberal education whom they can train for the job themselves. While they may be used in writing positions, such as editing and copywriting, an English major can also move into the areas of personnel, computer programming, information and analysis or nearly any phase of business.

Graduate school is an advisable option for most English majors. In this way a student can pick up vocational training, using his English as an excellent base.

Overall, though, the English major is not vocationally-oriented as such. It is a major offering breadth and width, along with a great deal of mobility.

Media Production Center Offers Aids to Students

By Kristine Karsian

Entering the library with caution, your eyes quickly scan the room for familiar faces. Seeing none, you walk past the circulation desk towards the back of the library. At the microfilm projectors you turn and check if anyone is watching you. With the coast clear, you dart around the corner, open the door before you and jump quickly inside. Safe at last!

Once inside you try and rationalize with yourself. Of course secrecy is the only way. What would you have answered if someone had questioned where you were going? If you had tried to explain, the reaction would have been wide-eyed disbelief.

"The Media Production Center?! What is that?!"

Gulping hard you would have replied, "It's where you can make transparencies, duplicate papers, copy tapes —."

"Oh, that place for education majors."

Well, not exactly. The Media Production Center is a service available to all college students and faculty where they can design and make various types of communication material.

For example, you might want to have some transparencies to aid in your teaching Sunday School. With one-to-one assistance in the media center, you can make three types of transparencies.

The easiest way is to write directly on the plastic film with special transparency pens. The color lift is another method in which a clay based picture is printed on the film. Thermal film is the third way transparencies can be made.

The policy of the Media Production Center is to offer unlimited help and free use of all the machines, tools and equipment. Charges in transparency making are only 60 cents for the film and 20 cents for the cardboard mount.

Your M.I.S. prayer letter could be run off in the media center. For 10 cents you could pick up a spirit master (carbon paper for the ditto machine), type your letter and then run it off for just a penny a page. If you use the copier often, a package of the paper is available for three dollars.

Maybe you have a picture of your sweetheart that you want to show off, yet keep in good condition. The media center can solve that predicament too. With the drymount machine the photo can be mounted on firm cardboard. Afterwards you could plastic laminate it. This entire process would cost less than 25 cents.

Other facilities in the Media Production Center include a light box to aid in tracing, two different sized paper cutters, a drafting table, IBM and primary typewriters, lettering equipment, and various tools such as knives, felt-tip pens, rulers, T-squares and more.

Although the center is tucked away in a small niche in the library, it provides a vital service to faculty members and students alike.

Senate receives should be utilized for the mutual benefit of all the students, not just for one small part, known as its Senate.

With the above in mind, I would like to propose an addition to the By-laws of the Senate to read as follows:

XV. The Student Senate shall not have the power to appropriate funds for the expressed benefit of Senate, above an amount to be set by a majority vote of the Student Body in the fall of each year.

When I finished reading the above speech, did Senate promptly act on it? No! They did the "sensible" thing and adjourned. In the week that followed, myself, and two other Senate members supporting me, were consoled and adjured to just forget the whole thing. These more "mature" Senate members wanted things left just as they were, a wide open expense account.

At the following meeting, Senate rather embarrassedly took up the proposal, amended it to allow Senate to set the amount, (effectively removing the value of the motion). Then they voted it down, overwhelmingly. I do not feel that this vote represented the true consensus of the students of this campus. Will we sit back and allow the Senate to use our money for its own uses? I should hope that reason will overcome apathy and that students will respond, and that action will be taken.

I would like to invite any student with a question or comment to write me at box 1251, or call me at ext. 217. Most of all though, come to the Senate meeting in Science Center 105, at 5:30 on May 10. Come and let your feelings be known.

Sincerely yours,

David James Sugg
Senate Member

We will be meeting in the chapel on Sat. May 20th at 8:30 a.m. to get organized to start work at 9:00 a.m. At 12:00 there will be an outdoor lunch (weather providing) served at the lakeside for all students. In the afternoon we will be working from 1:30 to 3:30. Sign up sheets will be posted in the gym lobby several days before May 20th. Selection of jobs will be on a first come first serve basis.

Womens Softball Team Keeps Up Winning Efforts

By Teresa Galbreath

During the last two weeks the women's softball team has continued its winning ways, and as of last Tuesday their season record stood at 14-2.

On April 25 the women overcame Ohio Wesleyan in a doubleheader, 3-1 and 33-7, a game which was called after five innings. Sue Kulp and Vicki Butler each contributed a homerun to the victories. Batting over .500 were Susie Riegle and Sue Kulp who both had four hits in seven AB's and Vicki Butler who was five for nine.

Cedarville trounced Central State 11-3 on April 27. In this game Brenda Hobar slammed a homerun, while leading hitters were Susie Riegle at two for two, Vicki Butler with two for three, and Sue Kulp batting three for four.

Last Saturday the softballers split a doubleheader with Rio Grande, winning the first game 9-0 and losing the second 5-3. Sue Kulp had four hits in six AB's, and Kim Hill went three for five.

In a doubleheader last Monday, Cedarville smashed Sinclair 28-10 and 15-1. Both games were called after the fifth inning. Vicki Butler, Sue Kulp, and Brenda Hobar all socked two home runs, while Sue Kulp was seven for nine and Brenda Hobar was seven for eight in the batting department.

For the season the team's batting average is .420, and Sue Kulp leads in home runs with seven. The three leading hitters are Kim Hill with a .516 average, Brenda Hobar with .580 and Sue Kulp with a .594 average.

Today Cedarville faces Miami University in an away game at 4 p.m. Tomorrow Cedarville hosts the Ohio Valley League tournament.

Jackets Try for NAIA Tourney

The Cedarville College Yellow Jacket baseball team has won five of their last six games while pushing their overall record up to 12-6 and their Mid-Ohio Conference record to 8-4. The Yellow Jackets are bidding for a berth in the NAIA District 22 playoffs which will follow the regular season. Currently, they rank fourth in the District 22 behind Rio Grande, Central State, and Malone with the top four teams qualifying for the playoffs. The Jackets are also holding down second place in the MOC, behind league leading Rio Grande.

The Jackets started their battle for the playoffs with a bang against Walsh College last Friday as they ripped Walsh 9-3 in the first game, and 13-3 in the second game.

In the first game the Jackets ten hit attack was paced by Fred Greetham with a single, double, and triple in four at bats, and Dan Fullmer with a two for four game. Ted Grovatt and Dwain Hill each had two RBI's for Cedarville. Sophomore Bill Baldwin made his first appearance of the year on the mound and went the distance to get the decision for Cedarville.

In the second game Dave Stewart and Scott Carr homered while also collecting five and four RBI's respectively in pacing the Yellow Jacket 15-hit attack. Stewart in addition to the home run also tripled and singled. Greg Greve also had a good afternoon as he went three for four. Randy Meister went the route for the Jackets in picking up his second win against two defeats.

On Saturday, the Ohio Dominican Panthers came to town in a key intra-conference doubleheader. O.D. picked up a quick 1-0 lead as their left fielder hit one over the left field fence with two outs and none aboard. The score remained 1-0 until the top of the seventh when the Panthers were able to push another tally across the plate, making the score 2-0. The Yellow Jackets had stranded eight runners on base through the first six innings as they came to bat in the bottom of the seventh.

Pinch-hitter Dave Merkh hit one into the hole at short and was safe at first as the Dominican shortstop was unable to throw him out. Scott Carr, also a pinch-hitter, beat out an infield single setting runners on first and second with none out. Leadoff man Wes Rowe battled the Panther pitcher and coaxed a walk, loading up the bases.

Second baseman Dan Fullmer then hit a slow roller to the shortstop who was unable to make a play anywhere as Dave Merkh crossed the plate with the first Cedarville run, making the score 2-1 with the bases still loaded. Centerfielder Fred Greetham then shot a single past the drawn-in infield driving home Carr with the tying run and Rowe with the winning run. Randy Gagwin went the route on the mound and hiked his record to 3-1.

The second game was all Ohio Dominican as they picked up 2 runs in both the first and second innings and led through three 4-3. From then on the Panthers took over and coasted on to a 10-5 win. Starter Dave Lawhead took the loss for Cedarville.

On Tuesday Freshman Dave Lawhead came back and evened his record at 1-1 as he stopped Urbana 5-4, in the first game of the doubleheader. Dwain Hill paced the offense as he collected three hits in as many tries, while also knocking in two runs. Also adding hits for the Jackets were Rowe, Fullmer, Greetham, and Greve.

In the second game the Yellow Jackets notched their record up to 12-6, (8-4 in the MOC) as they defeated the Blue Knights from Urbana 8-1 behind the three-hit pitching of Randy Meister. Meister picked up his third win against two losses as he held Urbana to one run on three hits, while striking out six batters.

Wes Rowe, Fred Greetham, and Dave Merkh all collected two hits apiece for Cedarville. Rowe drove in three of the eight Jacket runs. Also adding hits for

CC Swings a Winning Racket

By Dan Green

The men's varsity tennis team has seen much action recently, and has come out on the winning side.

Friday and Saturday, April 21 and 22, Cedarville traveled to Michigan to play in the Hillsdale Quad Match. Spring Arbor, Hillsdale, and Tri-State of Indiana were all there to give Cedarville the toughest competition this season.

The team was victorious over Spring Arbor, 5-4. This was a sweet win for Spring Arbor had defeated Cedarville early in the season. Hillsdale was first on the schedule Friday afternoon. They proved themselves worthy as they defeated Cedarville, 8-1. This was a close match with five matches going three sets. Tri-State wound up the weekend and was defeated, 7-2.

Wilmington was next, Monday, April 24. They were defeated by Cedarville, 9-0, but showed much improvement over last year.

Wednesday, April 26, the Yellow Jackets traveled to Mt. Vernon for a dual-match. Another victory was gained, 9-0. This was a very significant win as it chalked up the two-hundredth victory for Coach Murray Murdoch. Coach Murdoch holds an excellent 221-22 win-loss record for his 13 years of coaching at Cedarville.

From 1972 to 1976, Coach Murdoch had an 88 match winning streak, and his teams have not lost a dual match to an NAIA District 22 team since 1967. The team showed their appreciation to their coach by presenting him with a plaque during a chapel service.

The annual Mid-Ohio Conference tournament was held at Mt. Vernon College last weekend, April 28 and 29. Conference teams present included Mt. Vernon, Rio Grande, Walsh, Malone, and Cedarville. Cedarville took first place with 34 points. The second place team was Walsh with 19 points. Gallian, Poole, Stairs, and Lynch were honored All-Conference in singles; and the Erny-Stairs team received this honor in doubles.

Monday, May 1, the team traveled to Ashland College. Cedarville was again victorious, 6-3. This boosted the record to an impressive 12-2.

The Junior Varsity saw action last Saturday, April 28, as the team was divided into two teams for an Intra-Squad Match. Some tough matches were played and many went three sets. The match ended in victory for the team headed by Dave Bergandine.

This Saturday, May 6, the varsity will host Wilmington College for a Cedar Day of tennis.

Cedarville's women's tennis team was hosted by Toledo University last Saturday, April 29. The factor of playing tough large competition was shown as the team was defeated 8-1, with Patty Harding at the number six spot being the only victor.

Findlay College was the opponent Monday May 1. The Cedarville women took a victory here, 9-0.

Tuesday, May 2, the team went to neighboring Central State. In the first meeting of this team, Cedarville took a decisive win, 9-0. This meeting was beneficial, as Coach Pam Diehl took advantage of the weaker opponents to give her reserve players some playing experience. This time the score was 7-2, Cedarville.
