Friday, November 12, 1915, will long be remembered by Cedarville College, the community, and the many visitors on that day, as the inauguration of Wilbert Renwick M'Chesney, Ph. D., D. D., as second president of Cedarville College. The town, decked in gala attire of gold and blue, the college colors, and bright with many flags, streaming from business houses and residences; the visiting delegates, who had left their busy work to come; the alumni, who wished to show their love for their Alma Mater; the college faculty and students, who had been working in splendid co-operation for the success of the day, all paid their homage to him who for twenty years had given his best efforts for the life and growth of the college. A splendid enthusiasm was shown in all the events of the day. The Opera House, in which the morning and afternoon sessions were held, was filled to overflowing, the cheers and songs of the students rang out in praise of their president, the academic procession was watched with interest by the numerous spectators crowding the streets, and their every feature of the day pervaded a spirit of good will to all, enthusiasm for the college, and heat wishes for its success.

At ten o'clock the morning session, which was held in the Opera House, was opened with Rev. John T. Wilson, A. B., '08, presiding. The invocation was given by Rev. R. H. Hines of Springfield, Ohio, after which Psalm Seventy-two was sung, by the congregation, led by the students, who were seated by classes in the parquet of the Opera House.

Dr. James L. Chesnut bore the greetings of the General Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. His address was more than ordinary interest your manner of life and instruction. The first, it addresses the second, it proceeds. This is a public recognition of your distinction as an educator. You may take pardonable pride in your successes and especially that which on June 3, 1915, it met to consider the election, speaking through the consciences of the members came the message of the work of Dr. M'Chesney, and with one accord, they answered: "He is the best undertaken as it had been with dependence on God's help, with such a splendid man at the head, and with such a spirit as had been in the past, being displayed, could not but have a successful future."

At the close of each of the addresses, the students of the college sang a hymn, and the speaker, at the conclusion of the greetings, the Cedarville College Orchestra, which is under the direction of Mrs. Rusk, instructed in music rendered the "Mazurka Waltz" by Huff.

President J. Knox Montgomery, D. D., of Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio, gave the chief address of the morning. The function of the college, he said, was to lead the world, the college of Apostles which was chosen by Christ to help in the establishment of Christianity in the world, and the members of which were endowed with authority and power from Christ himself. The ideal of that college, should be the ideal of every Christian college. The man who leads the college be one who is in such close communion with the Christ that he can catch His vision, do His work and fulfill His mission. Through there be many colleges in Ohio, it is worth while to devote one life to one of them, though a small one. If that college has before it the Christ ideal. The leader of such a college must be one of splendid character, who teaches by example as well as by precept, must be a reincarnation of the Christ himself, must be a man of keen vision and wide and deep understanding of character, and who can see in the lives of the young men and women before him possibilities for great service in the world. As Christ accomplished the seemingly impossible in finally realizing the fulfillment of His ideal for His Apostles, so must the college president enable his students to realize their power in ruling the world. That power and the life really worth while could never be attained unless the Christ ideal be the center of the college. The individual life of each person. Never until then can anything really worth while be accomplished. So the function of the Christian college is to have its students that ideal and then enable them to accomplish it in their own lives.

In conclusion of the morning session, Psalm 60 was sung by the congregation and benediction offered by Rev. T. Park Jackson, A. B., of Cedarville, Ohio.

Inaugural Luncheon.
Covers for about 250 were laid at the inaugural luncheon, which was served at 11 o'clock in the dining room of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The long tables were elaborately decorated with bouquets of yellow and white chrysanthemums, candles with shades of blue and gold, the college colors, and hands of narrow ribbon, connecting the candlesticks. "Extract from the report of the Board of Trustees of Cedarville College, June 3, 1915.
The election of a President of Cedarville College was referred to the Committee on Instruction reported and proposed the name of Wilbert Renwick M'Chesney for the presidency of Cedarville College. The report was accepted and on formal motion, Dr. M'Chesney was elected to succeed Dr. Melling as President of Cedarville College."
J. L. Chesnut, Secretary of the Board.

Then followed the inauguration of the President by Rev. David McKinney, who presided at the inauguration proper. A historical sketch of the college and the subsequent inauguration of Cedarville College were given by the Alumni Association. The past had been their together, though little had been done in the past in contrast to what might have been accomplished. The future of the college had been set on a firm foundation, on which future successes could be built. He had not a first time, but he had tried it because it was available, that each one of us had more and more in mind he felt that some change had to be effected. For the last seven years he had been waiting for the opportunity to give over his position that time had come and he had better fitted to the position than the man who had chosen for it. He had on for the position and he had accepted it. He had pledged and paid loyal co-operation to Dr. McKinney as president, and McKinney in turn pledged his sympathy and cooperation and support him with untiring loyalty.

The following resolutions and answers constituted the formal inauguration:
(1) "Do you, Wilbert Renwick M'Chesney, accept the position of President of Cedarville College to which you have been elected by the Board of Trustees and, as such, have called God to do?"
"I do."
(2) "Are you, Dr. M'Chesney, desirous to serve the college in the position of President upon earth the motives which govern you in its acceptance of this office?"
"I am."
(3) "Do you promise that you will faithfully discharge the functions of this office to the best of your ability, that you will earnestly seek to advance the highest interests of the college, and that you will endeavor to whom you have been placed, that you will adhere closely to its ideals, and in all things be true to the Great Teacher, the Lord Jesus Christ?"
"I do."
(4) "Do you make these promises before God and in the presence of these witnesses, in reliance upon Christ's strength and as you desire to give your account with joy to the Redeemer's appearance and receive from him the commendation, 'Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord?'"
"I do."
(5) "I do now declare you, Dr. Wilbert Renwick M'Chesney, President of Cedarville College, and deliver to you the keys of the institution. The Lord bless you and keep you; the Lord make His face to shine upon you; and be gracious unto you; the Lord lift up His countenance unto you, and give you peace. Amen."

The inaugural prayer which was offered by the Rev. James L. Chesnut, D. D., the representative of the General Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America, was followed by the charge to the President by the Ex-President. The keynote of the charge was, "Be President. The questions hitherto decided by a higher authority will now be referred to you for solution. Decide them for yourself, you are the head of the institution, be president in deed as well as in name."
Inaugural Address.
In response to this charge and to the greetings and favors of the day, President M'Chesney spoke in a most eloquent and touching manner. He said:
"I appreciate how as never before, those words of the Apostle Paul in the Holy writ, 'I am debtor.' For all the kind things that have been said today, for all the kind deeds that have been done today, I am debtor. I wish to share these gracious tributes with my colleagues, my personal friends, my helper, who through the past years have labored with me for the cause. I wish to give my thanks to the visiting delegates, for taking the time from your busy lives to come today. Brethren of colleges, I can see a different spirit among the colleges, the spirit of Christ, binding us together for one common cause. For you, I wish his blessing. We will work together for one aim.

"Citizens of Greene County, I know almost every nook and cranny of this county, together you and I have worked for the jewels, your children, and have brought them here to be educated for the future now. Students, I love you. Let us work together as teacher and taught; there shall be no difference in our relations. Faculty, I know by the grip of your hands, that you are loyal co-workers; we shall, with God's help make for Cedarville College all we have hoped for her.
"Who her who has shared my sorrows and my joys, whose name is too sweet and precious to mention often and in public, to her and to another, the anniversary of whose death, comes around this year for the third time, I am debtor."
"To God, in whose faith I have been raised, in whose power I work, and for whose sake I pledged my life, I pay my tribute."
Following the inaugural address, the Dean, Rev. Leroy Allen, Ph. D., gave a short address in which he paid high tributes to Dr. M'Chesney, pledged the love and co-operation of faculty and students and closed with the words: "And as you follow Christ, so we will follow you."

Immediately at the close of the Dean's address, little Jean Morton stepped forward and presented Dr. M'Chesney with a floral tribute of white roses from the faculty. The college students sang their song to Dr. M'Chesney, which had been composed for the occasion by Mr. Bradford, '19, and ended it with a rousing cheer for the new president. During the song the ushers presented Dr. M'Chesney with the gifts of flowers from the classes; roses from the seniors, carnations from the juniors, yellow chrysanthemums from the sophomores, and white chrysanthemums in a tall flower basket from the freshmen. The benediction was given by Rev. Henry Cooper Foster, D. D., pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Clinton, Ohio, closed his exercises.

"The Ideal College"

Dr. McChesney's Inaugural Address

Colleges are in a period of transition. Their policy has been to emphasize the cultural aspect of education. To that end they wrought thoroughly and withal commendably. Their failure to meet the demands without and to attain the standards within, was due to hampering conditions over which, for the most part, they had no control.

Furthermore, the merits of their achievements far transcend their shortcomings. The changes, which for a third of a century, have been transforming civilization at all points, aroused the college to the necessity of their adjustment to new situations. It was a veritable Rip Van Winkle awakening. The sleep of ultra-conservatism had been broken. Proposals and counter-proposals of policy came so thick and fast that confusion reigned supreme. Opinions, for a season, prevailed against experience and reason. The unknown was accepted for the known. The untried supplanted the tried. Perilous problems presented themselves. The attainments of the past seemed to have been acquired in vain. Even scholars of note prophesied the downfall and extinction of the colleges. Nevertheless, the colleges have recovered their bearings and are sufficiently launched on both to retain the long-cherished and evened cultural creed and to provide practical training for the vocational demands as well. It is no longer a question whether collegiate education should prepare one for a life or for a living. It is now generally conceded that college graduates should be fitted for a life which includes a living.

The problem of the relation between the public schools and the colleges is clearing up. The public schools are preparing for immediate service, some, who, through force of circumstances, are compelled to stop short of a complete course. They are likewise making others ready for a prolongation of the educational life in college. Several of the states have strengthened this plan by the enactment of encouraging laws and the provisions of generous funds.

The colleges, though not leaving their standards, are meeting their present requirements more flexible and furnishing larger freedom in the studies required for admission. This part of the college over the past several years has been broken down. The bond of sympathy in a common work for the general good has created a co-operation, which is making for the highest efficiency.

The problem of the relation between the colleges and universities, so perplexing and serious, is gradually and wisely being solved. The colleges, in order to meet the just demands of the universities, are adding to their equipment and broadening their courses as fully as circumstances will justify; but not with the idea that they shall either imitate the universities or undertake their particular functions.

The colleges no longer cling to the over-conservative and narrow notions, which, so far, weakened their influence and hindered them from rendering the fullest service. The universities in their rapid growth of their own ends of investigation and extension threatened to render the colleges valueless to them and thus to deprive themselves of one of their natural feeders, and would have done so, if they had not assumed an attitude toward the colleges similar to that of the colleges toward the public schools.

The colleges with their ideals of broadening the mind, shaping the character, and fitting for a life work; and the universities with their ideals of sharpening the mind, crystallizing

Will You Read This Twice?

A very important question to-day which every housekeeper must decide for herself is whether she prefers pure, cream of tartar baking powder like Royal or whether she is willing to use baking powder made of inferior substitutes which do not add healthful qualities to the food.

One kind is easily distinguished from the other, since the laws of various States require the ingredients to be printed upon the label. If anyone is in doubt which kind is most healthful, it is worth while to ask the family doctor. Then decide.

And when once a decision is reached let no advertisement or dealer's argument or canvasser's solicitation change the decision. It is not a question of a few cents or of pleasing a salesman, it is a question of health.

If this appeals to you as reasonable and sensible advice, it is worth reading twice. And it is worth remembering.

IT PAID AFTER ALL

By WILLIAM CHANCLER

THE WORM TURNS.

Along in the summer there was published in this and other papers a report of the financial dealing of the Geiger-Jones Co., a company that had sold something like fifty million dollars of securities, mostly in this state. The company and its agents immediately circulated various reports to counteract the affect of the investigation that had been made under the "Blue Sky" law.

Of course it was necessary to attract the attention of hundreds of investors in another direction and thus blind them for a time thinking that certain requirements might be met and everything adjusted to the satisfaction of the authorities. But the conditions were so horribly rotten that the state and federal officials have been compelled to proceed in behalf of stockholders.

The bankers and building and loan people have been for sometime the target for agents of the company in that these institutions were pointed to as jealous and for that reason "knocked" the Geiger-Jones people. Following the published report last summer the agents were free to tell their clients that certain state papers, and the Herald as well, were to be prosecuted for publishing false information concerning the investigation. All such was the stock in trade of the agents as schooled by the company to combat a situation that meant an upheaval unless people could be pacified.

Nevertheless the United States government and well as the state officials continued their duties and the company seeing that there was no hope of keeping the real situation away from those who had trusted their money with them fled suit in the United States Court at Columbus Wednesday to tie the hands of the Attorney General from having the license of the company revoked. The action above brings into court the exposure and report long concealed as to the way investors have purchased stocks on false statements and representations of the company and agents.

That people have been deceived there can be no question. Dividends have been paid on stock where companies have not been in operation. How such has been done will only be known when the inner workings of speculation are made public. The Herald took the position last summer that the investing public should know these things. We stand at the same spot today. Our interest was that of a public service knowing that several hundred people in this county were investors. The only people that have been peered at the agent and the company officials. Such reports as have been circulated by the company's agent in this county that the Herald was to be prosecuted was only for the purpose of misleading the investor and restoring his confidence to continue the game or help snare some other sucker.

The time has come when every investor should know the personality of the man who holds his money, whether now or in the future. If the public is satisfied to trust money with a man that has left his wife and family to live in splendor with a "housekeeper," while relatives care for and educate those who should be nearest and dearest to them, then we have nothing to say. If that is a recommendation sufficient to convince the investor that Christian business men are to handle his money then Christianity has reached a low ebb or agents have resorted to most any old scheme to separate the unsuspecting citizen from his money.

One Ohioan out of every 29 owns an automobile according to figures given out by W. H. Walker, state registrar of automobiles. During the past week the 180,000th license was issued which is 60,000 more than were issued last year. Who total for the year ending next month is estimated at 190,000. Considering that each automobile is worth $500 the state has ninety million invested in this one means of transportation. Ohio is second now in rank as to autos while New York is first. Last year Pennsylvania and Illinois were ahead of us but we have not only taken second place but are crowding New York for first honors.

Foodstuffs Contaminated. A piece of cake was exposed for sale in Philadelphia without proper protection, then analyzed. It contained sand and coal dust, disintegrated bran fragments, human hair, wood fragments, black and yellow cotton fibers, white, black, blue, yellow and green straw partly disintegrated, cowhairs, pine and other wood fragments and bits of iron rust.

Ladybirds Destroy Lice. Ladybirds are of great service to the gardener by reason of their destruction of plant lice, among which they lay their eggs, and as the larvae come to life they feed on the lice.

For Extinguishing Oil.

For extinguishing oil fired where water is both ineffective and dangerous, flammable liquids have been recommended. In a late test near Hamburg a mixture of one quart each of caustic soda and alum solutions yielded 15 quarts of a yellowish-white foam, having a density of 0.14, and this could be sucked up and distributed like water by a hose. A basement of 30 square feet, filled with benzine to 20 inches, was fired, and was extinguished in 78 seconds with 18 gallons of the frothy mixture, and a burning benzine tank, six feet in diameter and nine feet high, was extinguished in 45 seconds. The benzine was little affected, burning as usual after removal of the froth.

FAIRBANKS THEATRE

At the Fairbanks Theatre Springfield, the attraction for Thanksgiving day, matinee and night, will be Oliver Morosco's greatest success "Peg-O-My Heart". Peg is one of the plays of which the public seems never to tire. Those who have already seen it once, go to see it again, and then again.

The play was written by J. Hartley Manners, and produced three seasons ago by Mr. Morosco with Laurette Taylor in the title role. Everyone who saw the play—and everyone wanted to see it fell in love with the heroine, and with the charm of the entire piece.

Peg is an Irish lass, with a sweet, clean heart, and mind, a witty tongue and a fire all her own. At the death of her father, she goes to England to live with her aunt, a type of the old English aristocrat. She has a son and daughter, to both of whom Peg, with her untutored manners, is at first quite obnoxious.

For a time, Peg and "dog Michael" are very unhappy in the unaccustomed surroundings. But finally the girl's innate strength of character wins for her undreamed of happiness.

No play ever written is sweeter than "Peg O' My Heart" and no play at least of modern times, has been seen and enjoyed by larger numbers of people. The play is literally known all the world over. The Company which will be seen at Springfield is an excellent one, quite up to the standard maintained always by Mr. Morosco.

JUST THE RIGHT PRESENT
Don't take chances in the matter of Christmas presents. You don't want yours, like so many others, to be received with indifference or worse, and ten days after Christmas to be cast aside and forgotten.

You take no such chance of giving "The Youth's Companion" for a year. Did you ever know of a home in which it came a guest, or of one in which it was not conspicuous on the library table or in some one's hands all through the year?

It is worth while to make a gift of that sort, and it is worth while to receive it, too. For "The Companion" illustrates the best traits in American life in its stories and sketches, upholds the best standards in its articles and other contributions, and combines the practical and informing with the entertaining and blood-stirring.

If you do not know "The Companion" as it is to-day, let us send you one or two current issues free, that you may thoroughly test the paper's quality. We will send also the Forecast for 1916.

Every new subscriber who sends $2.00 for the fifty-two weekly issues of 1916 will receive free all the issues for the rest of 1916 and "The Companion Home Calendar for 1916."

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 21

JONAH A MISSIONARY TO NINEVEH.

LESSON TEXT—Jonah 1:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I command you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.—Matt. 28:19, 20 & L. V.

The story of Jonah is one of the most famous and most interesting in the Bible. In former series of lessons more extended use has been made of the book giving time to discuss its historicity and other questions involved. This time only one reference is used and that for the purpose of its missionary teaching. We accept the record of the book literally because similar facts are recorded in profane history but chiefly because of the testimony and the usage made of it by Jesus (see Matt. 12:40; 16:4 and Luke 11:29).

1. The Prophet Proclaiming, vv. 1-4. Jonah "paid the 're' (1:3) and "out of the depth" (1:3) God delivered him that he might fulfill his God-appointed task. Even so the nation of Israel is today crying from out of the depths of its sin among the nations and will certainly be "delivered" when the king comes, that it may take its rightful place by fulfilling its God-appointed task. It is a wonderful testimony of God's grace (vii) that God's word came to Jonah a "second time." Once he ran from God's command but God is the God of the gospel of a "second chance" and a "second time" if only we repent and do his commands, but God does not give a "second chance" to the unrepentant (Num. 14:40-45). Verse two explicitly sets forth the message Jonah is to deliver even so we are to proclaim the Gospel (see I Cor. 15:1-4) not the speculations of men nor the subtleties of philosophy. The messenger of God will find his message in the word of God and will declare it. It is the word which reveals God's love, his plan of salvation, and the destiny of the saints. "By the foolishness of preaching" men will be saved. The word "preach" literally means "to cry out" or "call out" and implies that earnestness and insistence needful for a true advocate or witness of God. But the power is not in us; it is not the word of God mingled with the tears of men, or with such added to the word. The Bible is the soul winner true stuff. Nineveh, vast magnificent and wealthy could not atone for its wickedness; its greatness only aggravated its condition. Jonah did not spend any time to acquaint himself with conditions, or to do slight seeing but cried, "yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown." When he promptly and minutely obeyed and delivered God's message he at once aroused and arrested the attention of the city. He did not attempt to present "credentials," nor explain, nor defend his message. He did not seek to harmonize it with "current thought" nor give it a "modern expression." He was blunt and without compromise but gave an opportunity for repentance.

2. The People Penitent, vv. 5-10. Jonah paid immediate heed to the man who did not stir over God's warning. Had the city continued in sin, it had not been delivered. Nineveh did four things and as a result they were saved: (1) They believed, "believed God" (v. 5). All true repentance is conditioned upon accepting God in mercy" (John 12:20). (2) They evidenced humiliation (v. 6). They gave such evidence by humbling themselves in the sight of God from the king upon the throne to "even the least." There was no apparent attempt to qualify or to evade God's decree, but rather to accept it by taking a proper place in his sight he delivered from the penalty of their just deserts. (3) They prayed (v. 8; cf. 6, 7). Their prayer was intense. The kind of prayer that counts with God must also count upon God, and God is slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy" (Neh. 9:17). Prayer that is effective is (a) grounded upon the word of God (b) forsakes sin and (c) obeys the will of God. (James 1:22; 2:17). (4) They made sacrifices (v. 8). Mere humiliation and prayer does not effect a remedy unless there is a merciful judgment executed upon sin.

Did Jonah fall in his mission? Not for God's predictions of ruin are not absolute and unconditional (Jer. 18:7-10). Chapter four is the record of Jonah's penitence and of God's loving-kindness.

Nineveh continued for nearly 200 years subsequently but it was then so completely destroyed that for nearly 2,000 years its location was unknown and disputed though now yielding a rich harvest for the archeologist and Bible student.

Can a nation be stirred today? For answer witness Mott and Eddy in China. In 14 of China's chief cities during three months of 1913, 7,000 of the leaders of that nation enrolled as inquirers.

Have your class read carefully and prayerfully Psalms 2, Matt. 28:19, 20 (Golden text) and Rom. 1:16.

I. H. C. LECTURE CHARTS.

Your Chamber of Commerce should Put on a Series of Lectures With I. H. C. Charts and Slides—Get Your Farm Demonstrator or Superintendent of Schools to Give You a Practical Talk on Agriculture.

You will be surprised to see how intensely interested your bankers and merchants will be. If you want to put your organization on a higher plane, arrange a program. Give one lecture a week on any of these subjects: Soils, Corn, Alfalfa, Poultry, Weeds, Live Stock, Flies, etc. Follow each lecture with a discussion of the subject. Make your chamber of commerce an educational center, not just a "club." Your town is built on the surplus earnings of the farm. Business men in town should take a keen interest in the industrial welfare of the town's "trade territory."

There is nothing constructive in grabbing business from one community, to create new business in your own community. Have a chamber of agriculture and commerce.

If you want to make your organization a place of interest, plan a three months' lecture course. Use I. H. C. lecture charts and slides. You can, no doubt, find among the members of your chamber of commerce men who can give interesting and instructive talks on any of the subjects treated in these charts.

WHY CROPS RUN OUT.

The question is often raised as to whether crops "run out" or not. To say that crops do not "run out" would be to deny that any variations are produced by changed conditions of environment. When plants are brought into new conditions of soil, climate, or methods of farming less favorable, they will tend to deteriorate or "run out."

Desirable Qualities Suffer First Under Unfavorable Conditions. If corn is planted too thick, more or light stalks per hill) a large yield of foliage will be obtained, but the yield of grain will be small. Under unfavorable conditions the plant tends to revert to its original condition, and the particular thing for which the plant is grown and which gives it value suffers first and most.

Best Methods Necessary. It is only by the best methods of seed selection and of cultivation that the farmer can hope to maintain the valuable qualities of his crops, otherwise they will deteriorate or "run out" and it will be necessary for him to secure seed from someone who has paid more attention to the improvement of his crops.

"SEED CORN WEEK"

The Last Week in September or the First Week in October Should Be Set Aside as Seed Corn Week in the Corn Belt.

We have "Arbor Day." Would it not also be well to have a "Seed Corn Day" a day when every farmer begins the harvesting and storing of his seed for the following spring. We laugh at our grandfathers for planting their potatoes and sowing their grain "in the moon," that is, in certain phases of the moon. The value of this practice lay, not in the superstition, but in the fact that the moon exercised any influence on the crop, but in the having of a definite time and plan for the doing of various things on the farm.

If the harvesting of seed corn, like the feeding of stock, comes every day, it would be attended to on time, but it is nothing more nor less than human that the work which comes only occasionally or once a year, as in the case of the harvesting of seed corn should be put off or neglected altogether, unless there is a definite time and plan for the work.

1915 A BAD YEAR.

Indications point to trouble in the corn belt this year. 1915 is an abnormal year. Excessive moisture and cool weather has retarded the growth of corn, especially in the northern states. Corn will be late in maturing and there will be a tendency to gather seed corn late. Watch this. Don't wait too long. Don't wait till frost beats you to it. Frost bitten corn will not grow. Gather your seed corn before frost comes. Store it where it will dry out and not freeze or mold. Don't forget that next year's corn crop will depend on the seed you gather this fall.

Pick Your Seed Corn Early.

A sack with the mouth held open by a keg hoop and strung over the shoulders by a rope or strap is very convenient in gathering seed in the fall. This can be piled on the ground at the end of the rows or in the middle of the field and gathered up in a wagon or sled made for that purpose. Corn should not be left on the ground overnight or piled up in bins or cribs. In this condition it may mold or freeze.

KEEPING HOUSE IN FRANCE.

Especially Rules, and Food For One Day Only is Bought at a Time.

In the French markets you can buy any portion of food you may wish. Nothing is too small. No tradesman states if you say, "M'sieu, I want one egg" or "I will take a quart (which is an eighth of a pound) of butter." And if you ask for a half pound of meat he doesn't cut it to weigh three quarters of a pound. You don't let him, and he knows it. The French housewife has been for generations educating the French shopkeeper to sell in the way that she would have him.

It is popularly supposed by some people that there is economy in buying in bulk. But the Frenchwoman says otherwise. She says that of a large quantity some of it is almost sure to spoil, and in the end you lose more than you have gained even by your wholesale price. So she buys her butter, as everything else, just as she needs it. She has a marvelous intuition for guessing what that amount will be down to the very son. The test of her skill in housewifery, she considers, is an empty cupboard at sundown. Then she requires no ice to keep things over until the next day.

There is one thing which many an American household amounts to $1 a week, would be an unthinkable extravagance in France. There is no ice box among the fittings of the Paris kitchen. Instead, there is in every apartment the cold storage cupboard, set in the kitchen wall with shutters on the outside, through which there is always a circulation of air. A wire netting on the inside of the shutter protects the food from dust.

The cupboard is an entire success in keeping food for the length of time that the Parisian housewife requires, also, you may be sure, she would not use it, for she never throws anything away. Not to waste the smallest scrap or crumb is a fundamental dogma of her housekeeping creed. Even every stale crust of bread must be saved. It is kept in the tin can that sets on the chimney shelf over the stove. There are five or six purposes for which you use breadcrumbs—for French toast, for bread soup or for puddings, for filling poultry or in frying squabbles or "breaded" chops, or, very important indeed, is it to know that by mixing an equal part of them with chopped meat worth only 10 centimes and an egg and rolling all in a cabbage leaf to bake in the oven they serve the clever purpose of making the meat go at least twice as far again. Yes; it is some fussing to fix it. But it doesn't matter at all that this takes time. The Frenchwoman applies always but one test. "Is it cheaper?"—Pictorial Review.

An Indignant Post.

Remember the famous French post, whose greatest gift lay in writing little poems which he called squags, was particularly dependent upon the chance visits of the muse.

He was once visited by the author and academician Yennet, who said to him:

"You must have written several songs since I saw you last."
"I have only begun one," answered Beranger.

"Only one? I am astonished!" exclaimed Yennet.

Beranger became indignant.
"Humph!" he shouted. "Do you think one can turn off a song as one turns off a tragedy?"

Outlawry.
Outlawry existed in England and Scotland from very early days. Earl Godwin and Hereward the Wake were famous political outlaws. At one time the sentence was used to punish any one who would not pay the "were," or blood money, to the relatives of a man he had killed. In civil proceedings it was abolished in 1870. In the old days an outlaw could be killed whenever or wherever he was encountered, but this part of the penalty was abolished.

A Modern Solomon.
A Philadelphia police magistrate was called on to decide the ownership of a dollar bill which was found in the street by a negro and claimed to have been lost by a white man. After hearing the story of each claimant the court said:
"I believe the dollar belonged to the white man, but since the negro found it he is entitled to a reward. I therefore decree that each take 50 cents and call it a day's work."

Rusty Steel.
Onions are good for cleaning steel articles that have rusted. Rub the rust spots with a piece of onion and leave for twenty-four hours. Wash and polish with bath brush, dust, moistened with turpentine. Wash again in soda and scald with clear water. Knives that have rust spots of long standing should be plunged into an onion and allowed to stand for some time. Finish the cleaning process as above.

Wise Judge.
A Montana woman sued for divorce because her husband kissed the servant girl.
"You want this man punished?" said the judge.
"I do," said she.
"Then I shall not divorce you from him," said the judge.

Not Quite.
How is the baby getting along in trying to talk?
"Well, I must say his efforts have not as yet met with pronounced success."—Baltimore American.

Opportunity seldom comes with a letter of introduction.

Thackeray's Secret.
Thackeray defied all rules. His wonderful eye saw everything and everybody. He lived and enjoyed life with an absolutely unimpaired and childlike zest, and his brave, simple, tender spirit endured to the end. Where other men are connoisseurs of the flavors and delicate nuances Thackeray was a connoisseur of the broadest and biggest things of life—its pathos, its absurdity, its courage, its loyalty.

Gossip, Just the Same.
"De only difference wealth makes to some folks," said Uncle Eben, "is a chance to gossip on a front porch instead of over de back fence."
