Student Government Elections Today

Slavens and Vitarelli Offer a Platform of Service

Campaign Staff

Joe Slavens and Chad Vitarelli have run a campaign for Student Government President and Vice-President which has informed and enlightened the Student Body concerning the possibilities of what S.G.A. and Cedarville College could be if given the opportunity. "The Big Picture" has been an attempt to inspire students to expect more and receive more from not only themselves, but also their representative body - S.G.A.. In previous S.G.A. administrations, the focus has been inward. The last few years have seen the internal restructuring of the Executive Committee, and the Senate. We have also received and ratified a new constitution for Student Government. These past few years have been invaluable in preparing Cedarville College for the task that it is called to do. However, now it is time for Cedarville College to take its place among the truly effective student bodies of our nation.

"The Big Picture" is a plan to accomplish this goal. Joe and Chad desire to represent the concerns and causes of the students, organizations, and groups to the College Administration and to other public authorities. They will also establish programs that will represent the college around the nation. For example, they will encourage attendance at the National Right to Life Rallies and other opportunities for organizations and individuals to express their concerns and questions in a meaningful way. Under Joe and Chad, student government will be the facilitators of such programs. They plan to ensure the opportunity for any student to attend these conferences as well as represent Cedarville College in an official capacity.

The also believe in service. By encouraging senators to make S.G.A. their top extracurricular priority, they can increase active participation and eliminate the inefficiency and waste that accompanies a large executive committee. Joe and Chad will also encourage S.G.A. to become an effective training ground for future service in our communities and churches. Being actively involved in Student Government next year will allow opportunity to grow both in competency and vision.

Joe and Chad do not feel that there is an over-emphasis on Christian ministry within their campaign. They both believe that there are many opportunities for service both for the student body on-campus, and for the community off-campus. S.G.A. will be a facilitator and organizer of these activities. No one organization holds the monopoly on being actively involved in the cause of Christ, whether through the Christian Ministries Department or the activities made available

Heldreth and Calvert Seek to Represent Student Opinion

by Heldreth, Calvert
Campaign Staff

When Becky and I say "Back to Basics", we mean that SGA needs to get back to doing its job. According to the SGA constitution, the job of SGA is to represent students, provide different projects and services for students, and develop opportunities for students to gain leadership skills. In the past few years SGA has strayed from these tasks due to budget deficits and other problems. Last year, under Paul and Scott's leadership SGA started to return. We would like to complete this.

We feel that the primary job of SGA is to be the voice of the students to the administration. At Cedarville College the only official way for students to communicate with the Administration is through SGA. In the past there have been instances where SGA has had the opportunity to do this but has not. Becky and I feel that unless we are willing to voice student opinion (whether it is popular with the administration or not) we won't be doing our job. We realize that the administration will not respond positively to every opinion that students have, however at least they will hear it and that is the first step. We also realize that it is very easy for us to make these vague promises. That's why we've advocated so many specifics in our campaign. We've given specific programs that we plan to implement in order to achieve our goal of being the voice of student opinion.

Obviously, until SGA knows what student opinion is it can't represent students. To solve this problem we will add a new Student Input Committee to SGA. The sole purpose of this committee will be to find out what the students think. The committee will be responsible to respond to the mail that SGA receives in its new E-mail box. We feel that an E-mail box will give everyone a quick and easy way to contact SGA. We will also be creating a new Off-campus Committee. The purpose of this committee will be to form an off-campus organization that will eventually be independent of SGA. This will provide a formal institution that can always represent the interest of off-campus students. No matter what happens, whether it be the cafeteria or other issues, this organization will be able to be the official voice for off-campus students. This is very important because an increasing number of students are living off-campus who need a way to have their voice heard. We will also create a Multi-cultural Committee. This is an entirely new idea for Cedarville College, but we think it is an idea that is long over due. Cedarville has changed a lot over the last fifty years and we feel that SGA needs to start changing too. The world around us is filled with many cultures and more and more, Cedarville is being influenced by this. By providing a Multi-cultural chair, we not only increase the input other cultures

Local Entertainment

by Paul McGrady
Staff Writer

As the quarter winds down, here are a few reminders of the entertainment/social activities that are still available:

The Shakespeare Film Festival finishes its quarterly schedule this Friday, March 5. The showing is at 6:30p.m. in the ENS Auditorium.

Concert Chorale is in concert this Sunday, March 8. The concert will be held in the James T. Jeremiah chapel. Take advantage of this opportunity to enjoy Cedarville's most prominent touring group.

On Tuesday, March 9, Wendy Herr will present her Junior Music Recital. The program will begin at 4:30 p.m., and will be held in the Chapel.

For off-campus entertainment ideas, call 1-463-3825. This informative hotline has up to date concert and presentation information that is available to all, free of charge.

Special Florida Section: For those who are heading south for spring break, here are a few helpful suggestions to make your trip safe and fun.

1. Call ahead and confirm your reservations before you leave.
2. If you don't have a credit card for emergencies, borrow one from your parents.
3. Make sure you bring along your AAA card, because if you don't have it on your person, it slows down their reaction time.

4. Try to make all of your calls home either collect or on a calling card - some hotels will charge ridiculous rates for a simple call.

5. Make a copy of your itinerary and send it to your parents. This isn't so they can keep track of you, but so they can help you more easily if you run into trouble.

6. Carry a set of jumper cables and a jack in the car at all times.

7. Buy your suntan lotion in Georgia - its usually cheaper.

8. Make sure that you take an airboat ride in the Everglades.

Be careful as you drive and have a good time. Remember that we represent Christ in every activity.

through campus organizations or S.G.A..

Joe is excited about the opportunity to serve as your Student Government President next year. As the main organizer of S.G.A.'s many involvements, he will be directly responsible for its finances and activities. His training on S.G.A. this past year has prepared him to "take the reigns" for the upcoming year. His committee, Social and Cultural, which has the biggest budget of any S.G.A. committee, has been successful this past year. It has prepared Joe to work within a budget, to delegate, and to have concern and respect for the opinions of others. He is excited to use these skills on your behalf next year.

Chad has been trained to represent the interests of Cedarville College locally and nationally through Kingsmen Quartet, Jamaica Team and touring with College Admissions. He is also in touch with the needs and concerns of his fellow students and has been trained through the medium of class government to represent those concerns to the proper authorities. Both Chad and Joe realize the immensity of the involvement of their offices and are thankful for the opportunity to be involved in your lives in this very special way.

A vote for Joe and Chad today is a vote for progress. S.G.A. and the Student Body of Cedarville College has an amazing amount of talent. It is time for a Student Government that is willing to work hard to focus that talent into involvement opportunities that benefit ourselves and our society. "The Big Picture" is the next logical step for Student Government and Cedarville College. S.G.A., under Joe Slavens and Chad Vitarelli, will grow as Cedarville College grows.

Joe Slavens & Chad Vitarelli - S.G.A. President and Vice-President - "The Big Picture"

Clinton Administration Surprised by Public Opposition

by Marc Marsdale
Contributing Writer

Bill Clinton finished up his first full month of the Presidency with a bang—he announced before the nation and Congress that he would go back on his promise not to tax the middle class. He said he couldn't help but ask the middle class to "contribute" to the healing of our nation economically.

The public, for the most part, knew what was coming. And wealthy Americans, who Clinton said he will demand the most of, don't seem to mind. Still, people aren't pleased to hear they will be giving even more money to the government. Unfortunately, for Clinton, the rest of his first month went about the same way.

*First, the search for an Attorney general. Zoe E. Baird, Clinton's first nominee for the position, stepped down from the nomination process after she admitted to hiring illegal aliens as domestic workers. The public opinion was strongly against Baird's approval. The next nominee stepped down for the same reason. Many Democrats saw this as a big blow to the new administration.

*One of Clinton's first acts as president was to lift the gag rule on abortion counseling at federally funded clinics. At the same time he vowed to push the controversial Family and Medical Leave Bill through the Congress.

*Clinton named his wife, Rodham Clinton, to the unprecedented post of "health care czar". She is the first lady in charge of restructuring our nation's run-a-way health care system. Critics worried about her nomination and her ability to handle one of the biggest problems of the country.

*Probably the biggest disappointment for Clinton and his crew was the huge cloud stirred up when he proposed the military's ban on gay and lesbian soldiers. Clinton, faithful to his campaign promise, announced that he would try to lift the ban. The White House was flooded with calls, the overwhelming majority against lifting the ban. The president compared it to not letting Americans into the military. Clinton admitted the strong response from the public surprised him and that he wasn't ready for the opposition.

The above points set president's approval rating and probably sent his blood sure straight through the roof. It has been a rough start for the president, no doubt there. Where will he go from here?

Back to Basics

in SGA, but we also help our campus learn more about an increasingly diverse world. Since SGA is aware of student opinion, we have to voice it to the administration. We plan to do this in a variety of ways. First of all, we plan to begin sending a copy of every resolution passed by SGA to the administrator. While this is being done now, we feel that if this is done it will help the administration, as a whole, hear student opinion. Also, we feel that SGA should present a report to the trustees. Currently, they find out about student life through randomly selected groups of students. By giving them an official report from SGA they will receive a specific report from the entire campus. They will know what the student was on every big issue of the year. Unless the administration and the trustees are aware of what

SGA is doing, the voice of students will not be heard.

Becky and I also feel that "Back to Basics" means we need to account to students for the projects and services that SGA performs. SGA budgets and spends over $30,000 per year, and when vending is included SGA handles over $70,000 per year. For example, the biggest event of the year for SGA is Homecoming. Because this is such an important event with so much money involved, we feel the Vice-President should be in charge. Becky would be directly responsible to students because you were the ones who elected her. She was Co-chair of Homecoming last year, and for the first time in the history of SGA Homecoming did not go over budget. This basically means that no other programs lost money because of Homecoming being too expensive. Her experience in this area will once again guarantee a quality Homecoming based on fiscal responsibility.

We also feel that students should be able to see the SGA budgets before they are voted on. This would give students time to react and really influence how SGA spends funds. By making available not only the general budget but also the budgets of each Committee, students will have a complete understanding of exactly how all SGA funds are spent. Until students know about SGA budgets and have time to react, they will never really be able to have a say in how their money is spent.

Becky and I also feel that "Back to Basics" means the development of leadership skills is very important, not only for those students involved in SGA but for everyone. Paul and Scott have done an excellent job of meeting this goal this year, and we plan to continue. We plan to allow organizations to request money from SGA to attend different events that enhance leadership skills. Currently, all money must be spent only for campus activities such as parties. We also feel that money should be available for organizations to bring speakers and other national leaders here to campus.

We also feel that leadership conferences here on campus should be available for all students, not just those involved in SGA. We would eventually like to see students from different colleges around the country attend as well. This would not only help our leadership skills but would allow SGA to gain a variety of new ideas.

We would also like to establish an Intercollegiate Student Government Board among area colleges such as Antioch, Central State, Wilberforce, Wittenburg, and Wright State. The purpose of this board would be to build bridges to other colleges. Currently there is almost no interaction between Cedarville and these other schools. The Student Government is the most logical place to start. Once we build this initial bridge, not ideas be available, but it will also open the way for interaction on all levels. Becky has had a lot of experience dealing with students from secular colleges because of her Forensics experience. She will be in charge of this project and will use all of her research and interpersonal skills to broaden the testimony of Cedarville College among these other schools.

A vote for Heldreth and Calvert is a vote for SGA to get "Back to the Basics." It means that you support increased input from students to SGA. It means that you support SGA aggressively proclaiming the voice of students to the administration. It means that you want SGA to be fiscally responsible to you. It means that you feel that increased involvement of SGA with other schools is important. And, it means that you think a continuation of Paul and Scott's emphasis on leadership is important. Vote Heldreth and Calvert and SGA will get "Back to Basics."

Well, another two weeks has passed around and once again it's time to bask in the limelight of journalism.

Today's topic, and no doubt the hustle and bustle "talk-on-campus," is S.G.A. elections. How you are saying to yourself and to those around you, "What are you doing? I thought that Glowmer concentrated on world events?" Well, usually I do. However, this year's elections Student Government may have a profound impact upon not only Cedarville College, but the world at large; thusly bringing them into my arena.

Both candidates, Shelly Heldreth and Joe Slavens, have excellent campaigns. They have informed us of the issues and have motivated us to become involved in the process. However, I would like to suggest to you a new candidate. One whose platform will appeal to students (not just the front of the Chapel). I ask, "What About Bob?"

Now this isn't the same popular Bob that we have all had the pleasure of watching on video cassette, but a different Bob. A slightly more mythical Bob. What's Right! Bob Denham. Just so you are more familiar with this lesser known, less appreciated candidate, let me share with you his theme. He has taken the best of both campaigns - "The Big Picture" and "Back to Basics." Although both of these themes sound like Michael W. Smith songs, or perhaps a fairly decent slogan for a sale at The Gap, they are catchy. Bob has taken a little from both and conglomerated (a word I learned in Principles of Geology) them into a new and exciting theme "The Big Basic." Bob's campaign platform/ridiculous promises are as follows:

1. Bob wishes to cancel all extra-curriculars in an attempt to allow students more sleep.
2. Bob feels that more than 7 hours per quarter cuts down on the natural social development that is vital to any college student.
3. Bob feels that all exclusive organizations should be merged into one large organization, open to everyone. The name should be: Theta Chi Nu Beta Kappa Epsilon Alpha Gamma Lambda Pi Phi Scifi Li Sigh. This organization should then be abolished in favor of more sleep.
4. Bob also encourages the expansion of chapel cuts to a more well-rounded number. Say about... 32 per quarter. This would allow more time for sleeping in, and would also facilitate another important college life activity - staying up till rude hours playing silly card games with your friends named "Jeff," "Chris," and

"Scott."

5. Bob also would like a few changes in the academic department. For instance, all classes before noon would be done away with. This would accomplish two things: first, attendance would be higher (and we all know that a sign of a thriving academic community is a high attendance level), and would also allow more time for students to do what they need to do the most. That's right! Sleep.

6. Finally, Bob would appreciate it if faculty would consider changing the grading scale to allow an "A" to begin at 39%. This would not only allow students to sleep well into the afternoon on a frequent basis, but would also allow less studying at night (a lot less) and more time for the aforementioned silly card games.

So as you debate as to who you should vote for in this year's S.G.A. election, ask yourself one question. What is it that I need the most? Is it E-mail from S.G.A.? Is it Intercampus "networking" to every Christian college? Is it Representation, or Facilitation? Well, If you're like me, all I really need is more sleep. After all, that's what "The Big Basic" is. A vote for Bobby Denham is a vote for the big "snooze."

Platforms Clarified as Campaigning Concludes

by Jennifer N. Shriver
Staff Writer

This year's close and exciting SGA elections are coming to an end. Posters, flyers, T-shirts, and buttons have actively demonstrated support for each candidate, and now the vote is at hand. Both candidates express concern for the changing Cedarville environment. Each candidate has presented plans to better assimilate the growing number of off-campus students into the mainstream of campus life. Concern has also been expressed to network with other colleges. One thing remains clear, Cedarville is adapting to the changing times. Joe Slavens and Chad Vitarelli have focused on change through ministry in "The Big Picture." Through different ministry endeavors they hope to provide opportunity for leadership. Shelly Heldreth and Becky Calvert have promoted change by going "Back to Basics." In this they mean that the primary function of SGA is to represent student opinions. They intend to be accountable financially to students and to create a multicultural position where different voices may be heard.

The candidates have worked very hard to represent their goals and plans to the student body. Voting will be held today in the College Center.

Joy Ranch Team

by Jennifer N. Shriver
Staff Writer

During spring break, the Joy Ranch Ministry Team, led by Andy Bell, will offer both a caring spirit and hands-on help to the faculty and residents at Joy Ranch. Joy Ranch is a home for children from many different backgrounds. Some are from drug and poverty ridden homes while a few are from wealthy ones, and everything in between. Regardless of their different economic backgrounds, the children all share emotional needs. Most who have been placed in the home have been unwanted or mistreated. Joy

Ranch is a place to renew their lives, spirits, and enthusiasm. The ranch offers a family environment for children who desperately need it. The family consists of house parents with five or six children under their care. The children are given responsibilities as well as opportunities for fun. Joy Ranch has horses for the kids and operates a Christian school on its property.

Andy, a junior Engineering major, has been on the spring break team for three years. This year eighteen Cedarville students will go and fill in wherever they are needed. Some projects include redoing houses by drywalling and painting. Maintenance and lawn care are also handled. During the week, students also go into the classrooms and present their different majors. Probably the most important aspect of the team's ministry is the time spent with the children. "The kids love Cedarville students," Andy says. They are always pulling them in all directions, demanding their time. At night, volleyball and basketball games are the main attractions. Cedarville students at Joy Ranch invest their time in young people's lives. During spring break, remember to pray for the various teams.

Master's Mission Team

by Rosanne McColm
Staff Writer

Master's Missions is one of the Christian ministry teams organized for spring break. The group of thirteen students will be going into a "boot camp" for perspective missionaries. While this does not sound like a particularly fun way to spend spring break, the people who have gone before can't seem to wait to go back. This year the group leader is Ben Ruetz. Having gone on Master's Missions before, he states, "It is really a lot of fun. The group is close-knit. You know you are doing work for the Lord." The adventurous 13 are David Bates, Noah Buehner, John Leonard, Shelly Baesen, Beverly Check, Christine Copeland, Lisa Lightly, Laura Powers, Donette Souder, and Kim Veneburg.

The program is run by Pastor Teasdal on a year long schedule. It is located in North Carolina on a 10,000 acre piece of property. The people who go there get a real taste of missions. They are in the middle of nowhere far away from civilization. They also have to do all the grunt work: chopping firewood, digging ditches, butchering the animals, small engine repair, and many other things. This is a valuable experience for anyone even remotely interested in missions. It allows each person the opportunity to see if he or she is cut out for the mission field.

There is one opening left on the Master's Missions team due to someone dropping out, so if this sounds like an adventure you would enjoy, contact Pastor Green in the Christian Ministries office.

Impact provides a place (besides the street) for the youth of the city to gather. The organization seeks to reach children while they are young, between the ages of 4 and 6, and before they get involved with area gangs.

According to team leader, Jason Young, "The team will focus on helping with general maintenance and repair of the facilities." They plan to spend their days cleaning, doing repair work, and helping with other odd jobs. In the evenings, they hope to do some one-on-one discipling, witnessing, and running Bible clubs.

The team will leave Cedarville on Saturday morning, March 13 and will return on Sunday, March 21. Pray for them as they seek to be an encouragement and help to those serving at Inner-City Impact, but also that they might clearly reflect God's love to the children they meet.

Root beer floats and Cupid's Bash. These are two activities sponsored by Delta Omega Epsilon (D.O.E.), but this campus men's organization is more than just social activities. "There's more than just fellowship," says junior Randy Joiner, the organization's vice president, "At the meetings we have testimonies and prayer requests. There are definitely spiritual bonds."

D.O.E. was organized during the 1988-89 school year by Greg Gibbs, Gary Clemmer, Sean Hanney, Jay Hidalgo, Gary Hoag and others. The goal was to have an outreach for men from different backgrounds which would develop each member socially, spiritually, and mentally and to direct each member in becoming a responsible member of the college. Dick Walker receives help from the guys during special events, as have other faculty members. Also, each spring a 24-hour softball marathon is held to raise money for the Greene County Crisis Pregnancy Center.

President Casey Wood explained that nominations for new members are held during spring quarter, and during a two week period these nominations are narrowed down to approximately fifteen new members. The group is balanced, choosing members from every dorm and social group on campus. "We don't think we're something special," stated Casey, "but it was a privilege for me to be nominated."

Junior Tim Trow appreciates the leadership of the organization's chaplain, Warren Sayre. "We have accountability partners. It was Warren's idea; it's important. He challenged the group to find partners to work with." Other officials include Brad Palmer as treasurer and Bob Burns as secretary.

Following the guidelines of I Thessalonians 5:13-14, the group strives to "Live in peace with one another...encourage the timid, help the weak, be patient with everyone." Balance is the goal that directs D.O.E. as they work to serve others in various ways.

Concert Chorale Ministers in Indiana

by Marla Perkins
Contributing Writer

The Cedarville College Concert Chorale went on tour February 24-28. This 54 member choir, directed by Dr. Lyle Anderson, left at noon on Wednesday for their concert in Winona Lake, Indiana.

On Thursday, the Chorale performed at Grace College for their Day of Prayer. This was the first time that the Chorale has ministered at another college. Grace College's choir collaborated with the Chorale for one of the numbers. Thursday evening's concert was at the Redeemer Baptist Church.

Friday morning, the Chorale ministered in a Christian school; this provided an opportunity to campaign for Cedarville College, as well as to ministry to the students.

Over the weekend, there was a performance in Elkhart, Indiana, and another in Albion, Indiana. The Concert Chorale returned to Cedarville late on Sunday Evening.

Dr. Anderson emphasized the fact that this was not a new production; as he says, "It is the culmination of an entire year of work." Their program was completely memorized. It contained a mixture of a capella, piano accompaniment, and tape accompaniment.

Probably the most outstanding feature of this group is the members of which it consists. Though this tour took them from essential classes and the assignments to pile up, they made the best of it. For their part, they considered the opportunity to get to know the members of the group better.

For those of you who are interested in hearing this group's program, they will be performing in the chapel on Sunday, March 7 at 3:00 p.m.. This concert is in place of the evening service. They encourage all to attend a "home concert."

Men's Basketball Team lost the Mid Ohio Conference games on their home territory in the past two weeks by a total of only five points. The Jackets were held in a packed gym during the Li'Sibs Weekend in a packed gym, but they could not come up with the one basket needed to clinch the victory. They lost to Tiffin in overtime, 99-98. Cedarville led at the end of the first half, 37-39. Ken Rucker dominated the hoop, scoring thirty-seven points. He pulled down thirteen rebounds. Jaden Callahan, hot at the point line, hitting four for twenty-six points. David Barnes played a solid game scoring thirteen points and nine rebounds. The Jackets lost by four points, 66-70, against Rio Grande on February 16. Once again they led at halftime—this time by thirteen points, 50-37. But Rio Grande scored sixty-three percent at the three-point line in the second half, hitting twelve of their nineteen shots, pulling up and pull ahead. All five starters scored in the double figures for Cedarville. Callahan and Helder Seabra rallied for an equal share in eight points. Helder Seabra scored sixteen points and made four steals. Mark Combs contributed fourteen points and handed out thirteen assists. David Barnes added twelve points and led the Jackets on the boards with ten.

In their final regular season home match against Ohio Dominican, the four seniors, Ken Rucker, Jaden Callahan, David Barnes, and Mark Combs, were honored. Cedarville ended the season on their home court with a 83-75 win which raised their record to 21-7 overall. It was Cedarville's thirteenth consecutive win against Ohio Dominican. Early in the game, the score was tied twelve all, but Cedarville raced ahead with fifteen unanswered points. At the half, Ohio Dominican narrowed the lead down to six points and early in the second half they came within two points of Cedarville. But the Jackets didn't play around for long; they used a 16-7 spurt to pull ahead and seal the win. David Barnes scored a career high twenty-six points to lead the Jackets. He also grabbed nine rebounds. The other starters also scored in double figures. Callahan had eighteen points; Seabra:13; Rucker:11. Ken Rucker set two new school records at the free throw line for free throws made and for the most free throws attempted in one season. Rucker is 167 for 240 at the line for seventy percent.

Ready Jackets Conclude Season

Women's Basketball Team concluded their regular season at home with a 66-56 win against Tiffin on February 13. Cedarville was behind at halftime, but it was the first game the Jackets have won this season after trailing at the half mark. The Jackets once again led by Amy Zehr, who scored twenty-one points and pulled down nineteen rebounds. Melissa Hartman shared the rebound and contributed nine points. Christine Copeland scored in the double figures with seven points. She also had seven rebounds. The victory concluded Cedarville's regular season with a 18-8 record; 8-6 in the Mid Ohio Conference. During the game, the five starters and their parents were recognized and presented with roses. The '93 season will graduate Amy Zehr, Mindy Humble, Kim McCoy, Denise Headdings, and Cinnamon Brown.

In the NCCAA Division 3 Semi-Final Play-Offs on February 18, Cedarville took a disheartening blow on the home court against Oakland City. After playing a dynamic first half and leading Oakland City 42-34, the Jackets came out flat in the second half and couldn't hold onto the game. The final score was 77-63. Cedarville struggled from the field, shooting only twenty-one percent in the second half. Oakland City hit nineteen of their twenty-seven shots from the field in the second half for seventy percent. Oakland City took advantage of Cedarville's shooting slump to pull ahead early in the second half. In the first six and a half minutes, they scored twenty-

Rucker Reflects on Cedarville Experience

Ask any person on this campus who Ken Rucker is and undoubtedly they will tell you, a basketball player. That name and description are used more on this campus than any other—students, faculty, and even residents speak daily of this senior sensation.

On game nights, crowds pack the gym to watch the nationally ranked Jackets and their star, Rucker. But during the rest of the week, Ken Rucker goes through the same motions as the rest of the student body: going to class, eating at Chuck's and just hanging out with friends.

This sometimes intimidating young man walks around the campus, to and from Brock Hall, quietly. But underneath the tough looking exterior lies a guy who is known by his friends for his sense of humor and his practical jokes.

Janet Rowland, a junior, met Rucker two years ago. "My favorite thing about Kenny is his great sense of humor. He always makes me laugh," Rowland said. "Sometimes Ken is quiet, and he makes you wonder what he's really thinking."

When asked to describe Rucker in one word, Rowland said determined. She said he goes out strong and determined, no matter what it is, basketball or school.

Bouchra Sefiane, who has known Ken for two years, used almost the same words to describe Rucker. She added "strong." "Ken is very on this senior's mind. He'll graduate this year and is going to look for a job in Business Management, in his home-town Philadelphia. Once at home, he hopes to begin working with kids in the city who need something to do and look forward to: basketball. Rucker hopes to take the place of the man who ministered to him when he was a kid, allowing Ken to play on his neighborhood team only after he came to a Bible study and memorized a verse. Ken wants to return the favor to kids like himself, and give them a direction, a hope.

When asked what he would remember most about his four years at Cedarville, Rucker replies, "I guess just hanging around with the [Tom and Greg] Peteks." The two brothers have been good friends of Rucker ever since they were all determined to succeed," she said. Sefiane stressed that although Rucker is quiet, unless you know him. He's a great person when you take the time to look past his sometimes "intimidating" looks.

Rucker himself admits that people may feel intimidated by his looks and the fact that he is a basketball player. But a quick chat at a lunch table or on the way to class and Rucker flashes that bright smile and your fears disappear.

freshmen. They can be found at most home games sitting close to the court calling out to Ken by his nickname "Sugar," cheering him on.

This young man from Philadelphia came to Cedarville, Ohio four years ago and in the course of that time touched thousands of lives, directly and indirectly. When the 1993-94 school year begins, there will be an obvious absence on campus. Ken Rucker will truly be missed.

one points. Cedarville answered with only two points. The rally left the Jackets trailing 55-44. Cedarville could get no closer than within four points, the last time was with six and a half minutes left. The loss took away the Jacket's hope for a round one home game in the NAIA District 22 Division 2 Tournament and dropped them down to the number five seed. They played at Tiffin, the number four seed, on February 25. We will post the results of the tournament along with a season wrap-up in the next issue.

On Sunday, February 21, Amy Zehr was named the player of the year in both the MOC and in NAIA District 22 Division 2. Zehr is Cedarville's first player ever to earn either of these honors. Zehr is a senior from Fort Wayne, Indiana. For her final season at Cedarville, she has averaged twenty-five points, fourteen rebounds, and she shoots sixty percent from the field.
