

4-26-2019

Heal

Clara Costello

Cedarville University, claracostello@cedarville.edu

DigitalCommons@Cedarville provides a publication platform for fully open access journals, which means that all articles are available on the Internet to all users immediately upon publication. However, the opinions and sentiments expressed by the authors of articles published in our journals do not necessarily indicate the endorsement or reflect the views of DigitalCommons@Cedarville, the Centennial Library, or Cedarville University and its employees. The authors are solely responsible for the content of their work. Please address questions to dc@cedarville.edu.

Recommended Citation

Costello, Clara (2019) "Heal," Cedarville Review: Vol. 19 , Article 11.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.cedarville.edu/cedarvillereview/vol19/iss1/11>

Heal

Browse the contents of this issue of Cedarville Review.

Keywords

Cedarville, creative writing, poetry, Clara Costello

Creative Commons License

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-No Derivative Works 4.0 License.

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.cedarville.edu/cedarvillereview>

Part of the Poetry Commons

Introduction

HEAL

CLARA COSTELLO

Healing.

Does Jesus even do that anymore? I've read about it in Bible stories, but what does that mean? What did it look like? Did Jesus really say, "take up your mat and walk?" and it just worked?

All they did was ask and it worked?

What if I'm not sure if Jesus can heal me?
Should I still ask?
Could he still do it?

Or what if I've asked and it's not working?
What if I pray and pray and pray, but my knees still ache and my bones still quake and my body's still broken?

Or what if my relationships are broken, and my friendships are crushed, and families are devastated all around me?

Or what about that hurt, that deep, deep pain inflicted upon me, wrought from the carelessness

or the maliciousness

of others

that has ruined me,
slicing me open and leaving me raw,
gasping for breath.

Can God heal that?
What if he doesn't?
What if he won't?

What if I still struggle with my sin, and my soul is wracked by sickness and temptation crowds me in?

Though he slay me, I will still trust him.

Where is God when I'm sinning – is he there?
Can he still heal that?

Though he slay me, I will still trust him.

What does it mean to be healed, and what does it mean to be made whole?

Though he slay me, I will still trust him.

Where are you, God?
Where are you?
Jesus, where are you?
If you are really strong to save, why am I not healed yet?

Find me in my asking, find me in my hurting,
for here I am, waiting to be found.

Though he slay me, I will still trust him.