U.S. News Ranks Cedarville the Best Midwest University for Veterans

CEDARVILLE, OHIO -- U.S. News & World Report recently ranked Cedarville University as the best college in the Midwest for military veterans and active-duty service members.

Cedarville earned its ranking by supporting veterans, certifying the GI Bill, participating in the Yellow Ribbon Program that covers costs not paid by the GI Bill, enrolling a minimum of 20 veterans and active service members and being in the top half of the U.S. News annual college rankings.

Cedarville ranked in the top 7% of the 172 colleges and universities in the Midwest.

“The biggest benefit for veterans at Cedarville, besides the fact that it has a strong Christian environment, is the fact that it has experienced people handling veteran concerns on a daily basis,” explained Keegan D’Alfonso, U.S. Marine Corps veteran and 2019 Cedarville graduate.

“We are very thankful for our men and women who serve, or have served, in the U.S. Armed Services,” said Fran Campbell, registrar at Cedarville University. “We have made it our goal to smooth the transition for military personnel from military life to college life, and we are committed to doing everything in our power to help them succeed.”
