THIRTY-FOURTH YEAR NO. 14.

CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 31, 1911.

PRICE, $1.00 A YEAR

GREAT INCREASE IN VALUES.

Unofficial information has been given out that the state tax commission will order an increase in farm values in this county to the extent of probably 60 per cent over the equalized value as completed by the county commissioners, who constitute the county board of equalization.

While this announcement is only an estimate of what will be required to bring about a sufficient revenue, yet those versed in taxation state that the increase will be more than fifty per cent. On the estimate announced, land valued at $80 per acre would be increased to $128.

In the various corporations in the county there will be some changes according to county officials. Some will likely be reduced while others may be increased. No estimate can be given at this time.

Messrs. O. E. Bradford and S. C. Anderson represented the county several days ago before the state tax commission and the former reports that the commission is determined to increase the value of farm land in this county so that the average will be $88 per acre.

Cedarville township will have an average value of $97 per acre while Xenia township will reach $103 per acre. Cedarville corporation was slated for an increase in valuation of fifty per cent but Mr. Bradford objected seriously to such values and the board finally announced that there would be no change over the equalized value as returned by the county commissioners.

The knotty problem with necktie makers is to collar new ideas, and, they have done it this Spring in unusual tones, tints and tinges of color tastefully combined.

Come and see how a knot of harmonious hue will brighten that countenance.

Survey For New Pike.

Within the past few weeks the county surveyors have been making a survey for the rebuilding of the Columbus pike. Some months ago Mr. J. C. Townsley, township trustee, circulated a petition and secured the majority of signatures from the land owners for a macadamized pike that will be about two and a half miles long, commencing at the corporation line and extending to Mr. James McMillan's residence.

While the county commissioners have not awarded the contract yet it is reasonably certain that the surveyors are gathering data for the specifications. The cost is divided as follows: state, fifty per cent; county, twenty-five; township, fifteen; and land owners ten.

This improvement is much needed and when completed will accommodate a large number of people that reside in that section of the township.

Death Of Miss Sarah Buck.

Miss Sarah Buck, aged about 86, and a former resident of this county died Monday night at the home of her niece, Misses Nettie and Nellie Buck in Indianapolis. She was stricken last Friday with paralysis.

The deceased was a sister of Abner S. Buck and Charles Buck, known to the older citizens of the county. She was the last member of her immediate family.

The body was brought here Wednesday and the funeral held from the home of Mr. H. A. Barr that afternoon at three-thirty. Burial took place north of town on the family lot. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. S. E. McMichael.

BIG RAID IN XENIA.

Great excitement prevailed in Xenia last Saturday, when at the stroke of four by the court house clock, twenty or more raiders under the direction of Prosecuting Attorney Frank L. Johnson, went after "booze" sellers in that city.

The crusade had been carefully planned and the Prosecutor was assisted by a number of farmers and citizens from neighboring towns. Each squad had a captain and six places were visited at one time thus making the raid most effective. The raiders were accompanied by three out of town detectives who have had experience in this work. The search warrants were sworn to before Squire J. A. McPherson who also swore in the constables.

In three of the places two dry loads of different wet goods were found while one or two of the other places visited escaped by the searchers not being able to find anything.

Twenty-eight affidavits were filed Monday before Mayor John H. Funderburg of Yellow Springs. Several of these were the result of the work of private detectives who have landed on several drugstores. The following is the list and number of cases:

Dr. H. Hawkins, druggist, six cases; George Galloway, two charges; William Glessinger, two charges; Michael Carroll, one; Charles Carroll, one; Dennis Carroll, one; Emil Planert, three; Mrs. Maggie Day, one; Cal Pierson, one; Brint Hurst, two; George Davis, two.

Emil Planert, through his attorney, entered a plea of guilty to three charges and received a fine and costs of $250, which was paid into the village treasury. The defendant turned a letter over to the Prosecutor that is of the blackmail order. It requested him to come to Springfield and charges found against him would be settled without prosecution. An investigation will be held.

The anti-saloon league is backing Prosecutor Johnson in this move and from surface indications the young prosecutor has many more cases in reserve against violators. Mr. Johnson was elected on promises of a dry platform and received the active support of the W. C. T. U.

Mr. Walter Hill of this place and Rev. W. R. Graham of Yellow Springs were among those sworn in as constables.

On Wednesday, Dennis Carroll entered a plea of guilty and was fined $125 and costs.

What Taxpayers Are Losing.

That taxpayers have just discovered that the election of a "Business Administration" mayor is proving rather costly and that the Anti-Saloon League must have been correct when it termed Mayor Andrew a "hoonent."

Prosecutor Johnson, in filing twenty-eight affidavits against alleged liquor law violators in Xenia, with the mayor in Yellow Springs, has sent a chill over those here who would like to have seen the money from the fines drop into the local till. There are no indications at this time that the Cedarville mayor was ever considered as a safe proposition in hearing the cases.

Town Property Changes Owners.

Several real estate deals were consummated the past few days that will bring about more changes of property.

The brick dwelling, known as the S. K. Mitchell property owned Andrew Bros., has been sold to Mr. W. B. Stevenson and wife, who expect to move to town some time this fall. The consideration also included the transfer of the old Andrew homestead on Cedar street from Mrs. Stevenson to Andrew Bros.

Smith & Clemans on Monday closed the deal whereby Mr. Frank Townsley gets the Thomas Meehling property. The consideration is reported at $3,500. This is an excellent property and well located. Mr. Townsley does not get possession until fall.

The above real estate firm, on Tuesday sold the property on Cedar street owned by Miss Lena Gilbert to Mr. C. N. Stuckey for $1150. Mr. Stuckey will improve the property and occupy it at once.

Wednesday Smith & Clemans sold the Foster Hotel property to Mrs. G. W. Harper, the consideration being $15,000. Mr. Lee Barber of South Charleston was the former owner.

Increase For Supt. Reynolds.

At a meeting of the Cedarville Board of Education last Friday evening Superintendent E. M. Reynolds was employed for five years at an increase of salary. He will receive $1,100 instead of $1,000 as formerly.

Mortuary Chapel For Woodlawn.

Xenia's patriotic citizens have undertaken the project of building a mortuary chapel at about $10,000 on a site to be selected at Woodlawn cemetery, where more than seven thousand persons have been buried. Miss Dina Roberts heads the subscription list with $1,000. Others who have subscribed substantial amounts are Judge Manger, Hon. Thomas Taggart, Hon. George Little, Misses King, Miss Gertrude Hagar, George R. Kelley, H. E. Schmidt, R. S. Kingsbury and many others.

THEATRE NOTES.

Crooks are fashionable theatre play. It may be argued that if recent success from "Hoffles" and "Leah Kleehelm" to alias "Jimmy Volantino" and "Arzene Lupin" plays that have gained popularity with one or two thieves each, a full cast of them would assure a triumph.
"The Quality of Mercy" which will be seen at Fairbanks Theatre, Springfield, Monday, April 3rd, almost fills that requirement. Its big scene is in the third act even shows a thief stealing from a thief. "The Quality of Mercy" comes here from an eight weeks' New York engagement. Few Broadway productions of the current season equalled its immediate and enduring success. Anne Sutherland and Nettie Bourne have the leading feminine roles. Other notables in the cast are Anne Wynne, W. S. Hart and Howard Hall. The piece was put into dramatic form by Forrest Halsey from his own magazine story of the same name and disposed of to Frederic Thompson.

The Fairbanks Theatre will have for its attraction on Tuesday April 4th, "Don't Lie to Your Wife," a three-act farce comedy, from the pen of Campbell B. Cased, an experienced man of New York City, deals with the matrimonial mix-up of three New York married couples an equal number of chorus girls, a race horse owner, a newspaper man, musical comedy press agent and grafting policeman. The scenes are all laid in a typical New York apartment and the piece is said to contain a laugh in every line and situation with forty-two surprises during its action. Dave Lewis, who is well known in Chicago and in fact all over the country as a comedian of sterling worth, fills the stellar role and he is supported by an excellent company of comedians and comedienne. There are four musical interpretations during the action of the piece, although there is no chorus carried. In this it resembles closely "Madame Sherry" and kindred musical successes of the present season, who do not depend upon large choruses to win public approval.

Fairbanks Theatre, Springfield, will offer on Wednesday, April 6th, "A Broken Idol," the musical farce in two acts with book by Hal Stephens, lyrics by Harry Williams and music by Eugene Van Alstyne. There is a thread of a story of course. A party of Californians visit Chinatown in Los Angeles. The head of an idol is cut off by three men during a spree, who, with fear that they have really killed a man, are making all sorts of efforts to get free from the clutches of the law. It is only at the final moment they know it was merely a graven image and the comedy situations developed are rich. There are a host of catchy songs and the cast is one of exceptional ability, including a chorus of unusual beauty.

Not Stealing.
David Belasco delicately dissected a certain playwright one evening at a dinner given by the former to some of his friends of the theatrical profession. This playwright is successful and produces many plays, but, it is admitted, owes nearly all his best ideas to others.

"One night the playwright imagined that he heard a noise in his house," said Mr. Belasco. "He lighted a lamp, went downstairs, searched his library, parlor, dining room and kitchen, then went to the butler's pantry and there discovered a masked man kneeling over the chest of drawers." "What?" said he hastily. "Stealing?" "Oh, no," replied the burglar calmly. "I'm only adapting."

Time to Make a Change.
Sir William Phelps was appointed governor in chief of the province of Massachusetts Bay in 1632. During his administration the terrible war against witchcraft raged for some sixteen months. When his own wife, Lady Phelps, was named as having exercised the powers of witchcraft Sir William began to view this whole terrible madness in a new light, and he put a stop to all trials and discharged the prisoners then awaiting trial.

On a certain summer's afternoon Mr. James Gilbert of Gilbert's bank in a town we will call Hopedale opened the telephone in his private office to be greeted by a strange humming of the wires. Then two or three voices began calling and talking. Then came one used courteous language to control and she answered respectfully. Then came a voice that gave the banker a start. It had been two years since he heard it. From the jangle of voices he made out the words:

"Auto ran over calf; pay $10; farmer won't let me get no money; hurry up. Hello, central; hello, hello! Oh, dear! The banker smiled. Two years before while fishing from the wharf and before establishing the bank a summer girl from the hotel on the hill had come paddling about in her store made canoe. He saw at once that she was a novice. He had also seen that she had not passed her canoeing year and was his style of beauty. For a young man of twenty-four who had fished a full hour without a nibble Mr. Gilbert was in luck.

Of course the owner of the canoe was bound to show off. It was only her second voyage, but she was ready to show off. She thought she knew all the canoe tricks and was ready to resent any advice. She wasn't tendered any to resent, however. The young man contented himself with taking off his coat and slipping off his shoes. When the canoe turned turtle he was ready. He snatched a long dive and came to the surface with the choking, struggling girl in his arms and reached the shore with her.

That evening he appeared at the hotel to be effusively thanked by Judge Henry, the father, and by the grateful, if chagrined, mother. Several other evenings saw him there as well, and between talking politics with the father and canoeing with Miss Kitty the time was passed very pleasantly. Something was said about correspondence when father and daughter left for their home in the city. As a matter of fact two or three letters did pass, and then Uncle Sam's cartlets failed to deliver. The young banker had puzzled a bit, as perhaps had some one else, and now, on account of the crossed wires, he was hearing her voice again.

What had that voice said? It was trying to catch some one at the hotel on the hill, but evidently making a failure of it. The owner was in trouble somewhere. It looked as if she had gone out in an auto and run down a calf and the farmer was holding her until the damages were settled. The banker thought for a moment and then ordered his auto around.

Which way? He had trusted to luck once and would again. Out of town by the west highway—over the bridge—up the long hill and then straight ahead for five miles. Far ahead he saw an auto beside the road with two female figures in it and a farmer in white attitude leaning against the fence. The females in the auto were Miss Henry and a girl friend. There was handshaking and introductions, and Miss Kitty explained:

"We were coming along at about ten miles an hour when the calf ran in front of the machine. I was willing to pay damages, but had no money, and the man here would not take one of my things."

"I hadn't taking no rings any more. Feller come along here last summer and run over my old woman and then left a diamond ring that turned out to be glass."

He was given his money by the banker.
Of course Mr. Gilbert had to call at the summer hotel that evening to talk the matter over. There was something that the young people wanted to say, but they couldn't say it until after Judge Henry had poured out his hands and remembered that he had to meet a man in the lobby. Even after he had departed the matter lingered, but it was very soon cleared up.

Two weeks later, in the banker's auto, Miss Kitty and Mr. Gilbert went spinning over the west road. So earnest was their talk that they failed to note that they were driving near the farm where the calf accident had occurred. They were forcibly reminded of the locality, however, when a hog suddenly rose from the way-side ditch in front of the farmhouse and reached the center of the road just in time to be converted into fresh pork. The farmer was leaning on, and he came out to say, and looking at Miss Kitty as he said it:

"Ding my buttons, if you haven't went and gone and done it ag'in!"
"Of course I'll pay," said the banker as he took out his purse. "How much is it?"

"I needn't say anything to the gal about it, but I'll make it an even $2."
"You are very generous," was the reply as the money was handed over.
"What was he talking about?" asked the young lady as the banker returned to the auto and they proceeded.
"That! He appears to be very sensible."

"But what was the talk about?"
"Oh, he—he said I ought to get married."
The young lady looked off into the fields and made no reply, and ten long minutes after he had spoken the banker added:

"And I think so too."
And a year later he did.

Obeyed Orders.
General Baker H. Henry in his "Memoirs of General T. J. Jackson" says that when the war between the states broke out Jackson was the professor of mathematics at the Military College of the South. He wished strongly to take command of a cavalry corps, but the heads of the institution were desirous to have him continue his teaching. Governor Wicks called out the state troops and ordered that a corps of cadets be held ready for immediate service. Jackson, then major, reported at once at the guard-room as ready for duty. General Smith said:
"Major Jackson, you will remain as you are until further orders."
Jackson at that moment was sitting on a camp stool in the guardroom with his sabre across his knees. At recollection of the meeting he was found in the same position.
"Why, major, why are you here?" exclaimed General Smith.
"Because last night you ordered me to remain where I was," was the reply.

Royal Jewels in Pawn.
The ex-Sultan Abdul Aziz pawned all his crown jewels for a million francs at the Mont de Piete a Paris, and they were only just redeemed by the Moorish government in time to prevent their being sold among other unredeemed goods.
The sword of state, which is regarded in Serbia as a sacred relic, was also pawned by a former king, while one well known European monarch found himself in such straitened circumstances that the famous house of Attenborough once temporarily had possession of all his old silver.

Queen Isabella was, however, the most famous royalty who made no secret of the fact that she raised money upon the security of the portraits of her ancestors, which hung on the walls of the palace, her Parisian home. The royal lady often declared how deeply she was indebted to her royal forbears for coming to her rescue and helping her out of her financial predicaments.—London M. A. P.

The Road to Success.
Just tack this up somewhere where you can see it:
Success consists in getting out of yourself everything that's in you. It does not consist in doing almost quite as much or a little more than the other fellow. What the other fellow does doesn't amount to a dent in a door-knob so far as you are concerned. The fact that he succeeds by laying an Atlantic cable, building an Eiffel tower, inventing wireless telegraphy or cornering the world's supply of oil doesn't make you a failure because you haven't got enough ready money to buy an automobile. You're successful when you put to some useful purpose every ounce of energy, every grain of gray matter, every mill of muscle that you've got. You're successful when you've developed all there is in you and have given that to the world.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.
