

1-21-2022

Loud

Katie L. Milligan

Cedarville University, katiemilligan@cedarville.edu

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.cedarville.edu/cedarvillereview>

Part of the Poetry Commons

DigitalCommons@Cedarville provides a publication platform for fully open access journals, which means that all articles are available on the Internet to all users immediately upon publication. However, the opinions and sentiments expressed by the authors of articles published in our journals do not necessarily indicate the endorsement or reflect the views of DigitalCommons@Cedarville, the Centennial Library, or Cedarville University and its employees. The authors are solely responsible for the content of their work. Please address questions to dc@cedarville.edu.

---

Recommended Citation

Milligan, Katie L. (2022) "Loud," Cedarville Review. Vol. 21 , Article 15.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.cedarville.edu/cedarvillereview/vol21/iss1/15>

---

Loud

Description

This abstract poem recalls a dream-like experience during a night drive.

Creative Commons License

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-No Derivative Works 4.0 License.

LOUD

---

KATIE MILLIGAN

sometimes, i live a moment

so loudly

that i can feel the rain in my fingertips when i remember it.

when you ease onto the on-ramp and the white lines come alive, a firefly rendezvous in the dark, and the sound of the motor against the concrete tunnels of I-79 is so loud

that it echoes in the hollows beneath my ribs, in the space between my knuckles, then i look at you with fireflies in my eyes because you are just so invincible—noise personified—and i swear that fireflies are coming out of the exhaust, i swear that we leave earth.

and maybe we only get one of these moments in a lifetime, and i think that would be kind of sad, because because my ears still buzz when i think of how the wind felt coming through the window, how powerful the engine was, how powerful i am and how the street signs bowed in reverence.

but i guess i'm trying to say that if i only get one loud moment, i'm glad that it was with you—because to me, the sound of you is deafening