HENRY FORD OVERSTEPPED HIMSELF

There is an old saying that every man talks too much some time in life. This might be applied at present to a recent statement of Henry Ford that "The average man won't really do a day's work unless he is caught and cannot get out of it." This week Henry issued a press statement relative to unemployment, economic conditions and the depression. In the opinion of most people Henry covered more ground than he probably intended.

He no doubt knows the manufacturing game with mass production, organization and finance as it relates to his business but dealing with a sociological problem is something else. He evidently has misjudged the situation. There may have been times in the past years when men did not want to work all the time but we see nothing unusual about that. As Ford has directed his remarks to the present setting we take him at his spoken word. He is wrong when he says men really do not want work.

PROPOSED TAXING HIDDEN WEALTH

The special joint taxation committee of the Ohio Legislature has proposed a tax on bank accounts. One of the promises under the classification plan was such a tax that we can have relief on real estate. At the hearing before the committee this week some new sidelights on the question were brought out. It has been argued that wealthy people would be caught with big accounts that are not now taxed.

The hearing developed that wealthy men who have a desire to escape taxation do not need any kind of legislation for they have the knowledge as to how their money can be handled regardless of any tax law. The Kentucky classification plan has failed to bring out this kind of hidden wealth. A survey on the part of bankers shows the average commercial account is less than $100 each day of the year. The average non-commercial account average is less than $50 each day. Thus a tax on bank accounts would catch the poorer citizens while the wealthy can have hundreds of thousands on deposit in New York City or some neighboring state that would not be taxable. It has been said that the largest income tax payer in Ohio, whose tax is more than a million each year, keeps his bank account in New York City. It has never been revealed whether he paid any tax on such an amount in that city. Taxing bank accounts may after all place the load on the small business man or even the farmer.

ENCOURAGING PUBLIC SPENDING

One of the problems confronting state and national leaders as well as citizens in general is how to curb public expenditures. Each session of Congress finds new demands for public expenditures and states as well as the smaller taxing units face the same problem.

The economist has about definitely come to the conclusion that we raise our governmental and particularly state funds by unseen methods, or what might be termed the painless route. Tariff duties, corporation taxes constitute the chief source of government revenue other than income tax. Tariff and corporation taxes are added to the cost of goods sold and the consumer pays the bill. If there is a profit above a certain amount the government cuts out another slice and this is reflected in the cost of goods to the consumer. States place heavy taxes on corporations and frequently join with counties and local taxing districts in taxes on real estate. Real estate passes part of it to the renter on that class of property but the land or home owner has no such opportunity.

The reason we have much public spending we are told is that only a comparatively few states financially support the government. For instance Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Illinois contribute more income tax to the government than all of the southern states combined. To bring the same situation home the northern rural counties in Ohio not only contribute to support of their own schools but are heavily taxed to support the schools in the southern part of the state in the so-called poor counties. Here we find public school building paid for out of state-aid funds. Teachers in most cases get higher salaries than are paid in Greene county. This is manifestly unfair under the present Ohio system. It is such a plan that leads to wild spending both by congress, state legislatures and school boards that do not directly levy a tax on the property in the district served.

There is much contention about the legislature at this time over the cost of our school system and the state department of education is being condemned for methods of operation. School patrons in the state are becoming more interested due to the fact requirements are causing a financial strain in the counties that in the past that have not objected to supporting the schools in poorer counties. We see no great need for disturbing our county school system as a whole at this time. At least no better plan has been offered as yet. Some counties are no doubt spending more money than necessary under the county unit plan but it is for the school patrons to right that wrong.

The painless method of collecting tax money is wrong in principle and leads only to conditions about which people complain, the constant increase of governmental cost. With tax collections coming more directly from every citizen there is going to be more care exercised by all officials. It has always been our contention that every tax measure whether, city, school, county or state should be subject to the approval of the people. If the electors authorize it there can be no complaint. Governor White was right when he suggested the welfare program in Ohio calling for a $25,000,000 bond issue to build new state-prisons and hospitals should be submitted to a vote of the people for their approval. We have never lost confidence in the judgment of the electorate but somehow politicians and material interests never want to give the electors the opportunity of an expression.

One of the most interesting exhibits even given in Ohio was the National Flower Show last week in Cincinnati. It was the first time that city has had the opportunity of holding such an event as it must take its turn with sixty other cities. Consequently it is going to be some years before the show gets back to Ohio.

Every kind of flower known evidently was on exhibit. Even flowers that ordinarily do not bloom until mid summer and fall were found in great numbers by exhibitors from all sections of the country. To find hundreds and hundreds of the most beautiful roses of all varieties, some with stems more than five feet in length and perfect buds and buds in full bloom, some measuring more than four inches in diameter, were wonders to more than 250,000 people that attended the show in Music Hall during the past week.

As for gardens there were many of the desired and popular rock gardens with all kinds of rock plants, ferns, evergreens and moss. In addition there were many formal gardens such as you would expect to find in Italy and many of the foreign countries. In addition were the various lily pools, fountains and all the attractive ornaments necessary to complete the modern garden. One rock garden was formed from twenty tons of rock trucked from Greene county expressly for the exhibit.

The wonder of the show is how florists have been able to cultivate flowers to bloom out of season. The well-versed florist knows just when to take up the plant, root or bulb in summer or fall. To give it the rest period such as nature requires it is frozen and kept in cold storage the proper length of time. It is thawed in the earth as nature would do it and then planted in a hot house where everything known in a scientific way is done to produce the bloom at the right time. The art of feeding plants by using fertilizer of the right kind is a master piece of work for the florist.

The same can be said for the care of the lawn for the grass in great plots in the gardens was a perfect piece of work and looked as if so much green velvet had been placed on the floor. It was not only a wonderful show but an educational treat. The florist only aided nature in doing its work on a scientific schedule, much to the gratification of everyone who attended the show.

United States Marshal Paul H. Creswell is host to a Federal jury from the Cincinnati Court at the new Netherland Plaza hotel in that city. The jury is hearing a case wherein a former Cincinnati banker is being tried on charges of violating the banking laws. It is one of the newest hotels in the midwest and one of the finest in the country. Marshal Creswell evidently has full swing about the institution. It was our pleasure to take a tour through the hotel by permission of the management. The jury has a special dining room furnished fit for a king and the twelve men serving, there are no women on a federal jury, seated at the table six to a side. Two deputy marshals sit at one end with Mr. Creswell at the other, as host for the United States Court. The case will probably continue another week or three weeks in all. The jury sleeps in single beds six to a room with a deputy marshal, but the rooms are amply large. Mr. Creswell has a private room nearby.

The Ohio House of Representatives by almost a unanimous vote on Tuesday favored the Secret-Bostwick bill which if passed by the senate and approved by the governor will provide for a different division of gasoline taxes in Ohio. The state has been taking 62 1/2% of the gas tax but under this bill would get only 52%. Representative Secret, Noble county, made one of the finest speeches on the floor of the House that has been heard this session. It was one that had been carefully prepared and had an appeal for he presented the arguments and facts in support that were convincing.

Representative Bostwick, Madison county, also spoke in support of the measure. As a result counties will get more money for county roads, townships will have their amount increased and municipalities will also benefit.

As could be expected there was some opposition to the bill but it came from outside sources. The material and supply people as well as contractors had a strong lobby against it. These people know full well they will have no opportunity of getting a slice of several million when road work or street work is handled by the smaller taxing districts. Experience has proven that our state highway system, especially under the former administration, and probably some others, has expense by the appointment of politicians as inspectors and given jobs under various titles. At present there is some demand for a legislative investigation of the highway department during the past few years, and all reports are true the state may be startled by some of the revelations that can be uncovered. In view of the fact road money has been collected from the motorist it will be interesting to learn just what the investigation can produce.

All That Glitters Pullman Plans Cancer in Heat Mexico's Wise Welcome

"All that glitters is not gold." That is how Shakespeare has it. Not "all is not gold that glitters." Whichever way you put it, the late Nixon-Nierdingler would now agree with you. An amusement promoter, he was violently interested in a lovely little lady whose admirable exterior won the title of "Miss St. Louis" in a beauty contest. He married her, promising to make her famous all over the world. The little lady has just shot and killed him at Nice, in France, telling the police he accused her of "having an Italian lover" and showing cruel finger marks on her throat.

French justice will attend to all that. We remind young gentlemen, "all the beauty of the world, 'tis but skin deep," and you never can tell what you will find a little deeper. A plain old-fashioned girl, with a white dress, a blue sash and a ribbon or a hair comb in her hair, is perhaps the safest prospect, even though she may not be "Miss Anybody."

The president of the Pullman company, D. A. Crawford, has arranged for pullman car conductors to earn "extra money." They will get commissions on sales of upper berths, sales of a whole section to one traveler on favorable terms, also an allowance for convincing passengers that they want better accommodations than those reserved.

This will start salesmanship among pullman conductors, increase the incomes of many, and perhaps promote similar profit-sharing elsewhere. It pays to give men a cash interest in their work.

Encouraging news for those studying the world problem of cancer. Investigators at the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research discover that a certain type of cancer in hens contains its own healing agent. Scientists hope for a similar discovery in the human form of the disease.

When this writer visited the Rockefeller institute with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., some time ago to see the famous Doctor Carrel perform an operation for removal of tubercular tissue in the lung, scientists had transplanted cancer in a hen to make it grow. At that time transplanting and growth had been successful only once. On the other hand, scores of white mice and rats had transplanted cancer that had grown bigger than the rest of the animals' bodies.

The fight against cancer is slow, but sure, and will be victorious in time.

A young Mexican genius, Augusto Novaro, musician and mathematician, has discovered a new harmony, based on mathematics. His method is complicated, but simpler than Einstein.

More important, to the world and to Mexico, is the Mexican government's welcome to a large colony of Slaves, presumably Russians, dissatisfied with the Soviet system of government. Lands will be provided and Mexico will make them prosperous, while they contribute to Mexican prosperity.

Washington officials say the soldiers' "bonus money will soon be spent for new goods, little of it spent to pay old debts."

We believe that buying new goods to the extent of a billion dollars or thereabouts will do more than anything else could to stimulate prosperity.

Paying off old debts would also help.

Good news from Europe tells of an increasing demand for automobiles, which will mean more employment for workers in the United States.

Makers and buyers of automobiles are interested in other news, only rumor as yet, which says that one of the big manufacturers will deliver cars hereafter with no charge for freight anywhere.

This will make a difference to buyers and to manufacturers. The latter make a considerable profit on freight charges, running into millions a year, because automobiles are shipped knocked down, and freight charges are approximately what it would cost to ship a car sitting up on its four wheels.

The War department announced the allotment of $75,000,000 for river and harbor work. The Missouri river gets the largest allocation, more than $40,000,000. This will put a good many men to work.

In the last ten years, India's population has increased thirty millions, another serious responsibility at the door of Great Britain. Since the British took control of India, its population has more than trebled.

This increase is due to the British, preventing famines, checking plagues with sanitary measures, in spite of protests by natives, who thought the gods could be appeased by tutting the throats of goats, and spilling the blood on the ground.

Britain has also increased Hindu population by preventing marriage of little girls to full-grown men, which does not lead to healthy families, and by improving the water supply.

Thrill For 11 Year Old Cleveland Girl

Eleven-year-old Ruth Pocock of Cleveland will not believe that tomorrow never comes.

She got the biggest thrill of her life in speaking to her Uncle Karl Pocock, a passenger on the Red Star liner, Belgenland, in the Indian Ocean nearing the port of Colombo on the island of Ceylon.

In Cleveland it was 5 p. m. Wednesday, but down there in the Indian Ocean where the huge steamer was steadily plowing through the brine it was 3:30 Thursday morning. Her uncle told her so over a telephone circuit 9,600 miles long—that she was speaking literally from today into tomorrow.

Then she asked him to bring her a china dog from some far port to join her collection of 149 in the cabinet at home.

For two weeks, The Ohio Bell Telephone Company at Cleveland had been waiting for the signal from American Telephone and Telegraph Company, officials at New York. Never before had a ship-to-shore conversation been carried on over such a great distance and for two weeks' efforts of telephone men to establish a connection with the liner had been futile.

Then, weather conditions changed and radio signals pierced the ether into the distant waters. A circuit was established that provided clear, distinct transmission, according to Donald B. Pocock, Ruth's father, who received the call at his home, 17208 Edgewater Drive.

First, the transatlantic transmitting and receiving equipment near London, England, established a connection with the ship. Then, New York and London were joined, adding an additional 3,600 miles to the circuit. From New York to Cleveland, it was a simple matter.

The radio leap from London to the Belgenland traveled nearly 5,000 miles, establishing a record for ship-to-shore conversations. The ordinary range is but 750 miles.

Two calls passed between the ship and Cleveland, one to the home of Donald Pocock and one to the office of Manning F. Fisher of the Fisher Bros. Company. Each call cost $41.25. Karl Pocock was asleep on the Belgenland when the call came through and had to be summoned from his bed. With his wife and daughters, he is enroute on a trip around the world.

Explains Simple Tractor Repairs

Early Adjustments Help Increase Returns From Tractors

By making a few simple adjustments in the early spring the tractor may be made to pay greater dividends throughout the operating season, according to G. W. McCuen, chairman of the department of agricultural engineering at the Ohio State University.

It is essential, he says, that the valves of the tractor motor be reset and reground before spring work starts. Properly seated valves increase the power of the motor. A new gasket is also a good investment as it will save much time in case the old one is used and fails at the peak of the rush season.

The additional power from properly adjusted spark plugs is another dividend paying proposition, he states. The average plug in a tractor fires about 500 times every minute, or 3 million times every ten-hour day. For the best results, plugs should be adjusted so that the distance between the points is approximately one thirty-second of an inch.

The points of the breaker box on the magnetos work but if they are not more than a sixty-fourth of an inch apart when fully opened, according to McCuen. A wider gap sometimes makes it difficult to start the motor.

During the past year, he asserts, there seems to have been considerable complaint about a gummy residue from gasoline. If such a gummy substance is in the carburetor, it is best to remove the carburetor and clean it thoroughly with either paint remover or a strong lye solution. The carburetor is then flushed out and put back in place.

To clean the radiator and the cooling system, it is a good idea to fill the radiator with a solution made up of 1 pound of lye to 10 gallons of water, or 1 pound of sal soda to 8 gallons of water, which is strained in order to remove any undissolved crystals. The motor is started and the solution allowed to circulate for from five to fifteen minutes. The radiator is then drained. Another application is made if one is not sufficient to clean the radiator. If the radiator is not thoroughly flushed with water, the residue of lye or sal soda will cause it to foam over when the tractor is used.

Develops New Oats Variety

Record Yields Made in Tests With New Franklin Oats

Out-yielding all other varieties in a series of tests at Wooster and Columbus, Franklin Oats, a newly developed variety, promises to increase oats yields in scores of Ohio counties, according to R. D. Lewis, extension specialist in farm crops at the Ohio State University.

Developed by H. L. Borst of the department of farm crops, the new variety will be distributed for the first time this spring. Franklin oats, Lewis points out, originated as a plant selection made in 1922 from the Fulghum variety. It has longer and stiffer straw than has the Fulghum and matures slightly later than this popular variety. Franklin oats has white chaff and red kernels. The head type and chaff color of the new variety make it rather easy to identify and to maintain pure seed stocks.

Franklin has produced greater yields than has Fulghum in tests conducted at the county experiment farms and at Wooster and Columbus. The new variety is particularly well adapted to southern Ohio, but will probably give superior yields in all sections where Fulghum has been found to be adapted.

Fields of foundation stock were carefully inspected last year, Lewis states, and seed is available for distribution to farmers desiring to produce the new oats variety.

Outlines Rations For Baby Chicks

Specialist Lists Two Profitable All-Mash Rations

Tests and experiments show that a well balanced all-mash ration will help baby chicks in making rapid, economical gains at the least expense for labor, states R. E. Gray, extension specialist in poultry at the Ohio State University.

By this method, he says, the ration may be properly balanced so that the feeder need not attempt to balance it by regulating the amount of scratch feed the chicks receive. The all-mash method is also more sanitary because the chicks consume all their feed from feeders and do not eat from the litter.

A good all-mash ration, Gray suggests, consists of ground yellow corn 70 pounds, wheat middlings 20 pounds, meat scraps 5 pounds, poultry bone meal 4 pounds, and 1 pound of salt. With this ration skim milk, either sweet or sour, or buttermilk is given to drink instead of water. Other forms of milk may be substituted if liquid milk is not available. If dried milk is used, it is best to add it to the ration at the rate of 10 to 15 per cent of the ration. Where the ration is fed to chicks in confinement, it is a good idea to replace about 5 pounds of the corn with an equal amount of good quality alfalfa leaf meal.

Another good all-mash ration, he points out, consists of ground yellow corn 55 pounds, wheat middlings 15 pounds, wheat bran 5 pounds, meat scraps 12 pounds, dried milk 5 pounds, alfalfa leaf meal 5 pounds, poultry bone meal 2 pounds, and salt 1 pound.

Chicks prefer a mash which is rather coarsely ground. Ground wheat, Gray says, may be used to replace middlings and bran in the ration. Cod liver oil helps in preventing rickets and should be fed at the rate of 1 pint to every 100 pounds of feed.
