Former Teacher Died Unexpectedly Saturday

Miss Eloise Farquhar, 28, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Farquhar of London, died Saturday afternoon at her home in that city, following an extended illness with spinal trouble, which at the last brought on lung complications.

Miss Farquhar recently underwent an operation for spinal trouble and never fully recovered. She had been teaching in the Osborn schools when taken ill, resigning about Christmas.

While teaching in Cedarville, Miss Farquhar suffered a broken limb on a sledding party and her friends are inclined to think injury to her spine may have started her trouble.

The deceased leaves her parents, and two brothers, Frank and Donald Farquhar, both at home. The Farquhar family formerly resided in Jamestown.

Mother's Day

Your Dollar, Taxes and Your Ballot

(EDITORIAL)

We are now in a critical situation in this nation due to economic problems. The importance of the next Congress is even greater to each elector than during the World War. With the War came business and big profits; demand for all kinds of grain and food products; demand for all kinds of grain and food products; demand for all kinds of grain and food products...

Edward E. Greiner is not a politician. Never before applied to public office. As a business executive would say: "He does not know politics." Mr. Greiner comes from a family famed for success in business enterprises. Without waiting for the draft in the World War he volunteered and returned with a record of achievements. He was placed by his father in charge of a manufacturing institution with several hundred employees. He made good after a service of several years and then became an officer and director in one of Springfield's leading banks. He soon displayed ability in that field and today is regarded one of the leading business executives in his city. In addition he has given of his time to a number of worthy civic organizations. He is known throughout his city for his generous benefactions to those in need. His employees speak of him in words of praise. In fact he has been to his city what is the need of every community—a leader of strong personality and a willing desire to be of service to all classes and all business interests.

But Mr. Greiner has something more than what we have mentioned. He has a definite platform. He comes before you voters with a promise or pledge of how he will use his energy and effort. He represents personally what is dominant in the district—manufacturing, banking and a government. He says in a published statement that government costs must be reduced and proceeds to tell how it can be done, namely: "Approximately six billions of dollars goes into the hands of public servants. If a 15% reduction was made in these salaries there would be a saving of some nine hundred million dollars, or in other words, in two years time the deficit which we are facing would be practically wiped out." Another of his platform pledges is that salaries of congressmen and senators must be reduced the same as others, including his should he be nominated and elected. He realizes as a business executive that the farmer and manufacturer is burdened with taxes and he points the way without more taxes, and this may not add to his popularity among the salary holding class but certainly should appeal to those who must bear the tax burden. With others on reduced income why should not the government apply drastic reduction as does industry?

Mr. Greiner has no political organization of professional politicians that live at the expense of the farm or home owner. He will have no bosses to instruct him how to vote and no lobbyist expecting to be paid for political favors. The paid lobbyist of today wants to tell the electors who they must vote for so that his interests can be protected at what ever cost it might be to the average citizen. You have the contrast of the two leading candidates for Congress in this district. The one has no platform, he simply wants your vote to do as he pleases if elected; the other comes before you with a frank and open statement of what you can expect if you send him to Congress. There is no assurance that Greene county will by any means give Marshall united support Tuesday, in fact he will do well to break-even as the judgment of most observers now indicates. His own county organization is making a desperate effort to exist and that with divided forces. If the Seventh District wants a free and unrestricted representative in Congress, you cannot make a mistake by approving his platform with your ballot Tuesday and place the X before the name of Edward E. Greiner. You may be watching your dollar today as never before but what you do with your ballot may take the dollar in higher salaries, more political jobs or higher taxes.

The suit alleges that the testator was not of sound mind and memory and was under undue influence when he signed the documents. Miller and Finney are attorneys for plaintiff.

EXCHANGE BANK CLOSED BY ACTION BOARD DIRECTORS

The directors of the Exchange Bank at a meeting Wednesday morning passed a resolution asking the State Superintendent of Banks, I. J. Fulton, to take charge of the institution for liquidation. A few hours later I. H. Jones, of Columbus, arrived and assumed charge, with the customary notice on the door. Thursday morning Mr. Myers, representing the department, as liquidating agent, arrived and at once began a complete checking up of the business.

Mr. Jones stated to the Herald that no information would be available until the Bank Department had time to go further into the situation. While no statement has been made by directors or former officials of the bank it is generally agreed that "frozen assets" brought about the change. The low prices of farm products and live stock has brought little net return to farmers, which affected businessmen, and all classes, preventing borrowers to pay interest or loans or to build up bank accounts as in former years. The closing of the bank brought some comment during the day but at no time was there any demonstration. The public has for some time fully realized the situation with banks and know that declining values, light money and bad credit has made all business from farm operation to the smallest retail store a problem the past year.

The first bank organized in Cedarville was organized by the late G. W. Harper back in the 30's. In 1890 the W. J. Wildman Co., started a private bank in Selma and two years later the company relocated in Cedarville in a room now occupied by the Township Clerk's office.

Following the panic of the 90's the Harper bank faced serious trouble and was taken over by the Exchange Bank.

The bank became a state bank in 1914 with a capital of $40,000; and in 1917 there was an increase to $65,000. There are forty stockholders. The directors were: Robert Elder, Edward Smith, Dr. M. L. Marsh, A. E. Swaby, W. J. Tarbox, and J. B. Rife. L. F. Tindall was cashier and had been with the bank about 25 years first as a bookkeeper.

The last statement of the bank in April showed liabilities of $322,032.22 and deposits of about $180,000.

NOTICE TO BANK PATRONS

Customers of The Exchange Bank having checking accounts are requested to call any time after this week and receive their statements for purpose of verification.

FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1932.

GOVERNORSHIP SHOULD NOT BE LOST SIGHT OF

The Herald has been much interested in the success of an old friend and fellow publisher, Clarence J. Brown, candidate for the nomination of governor on the Republican ticket. As a result of the Congressional fight we hope the public will keep in mind Mr. Brown. The Gowdy-Marshall faction of the party is doing little or nothing for Mr. Brown, other than giving him a party endorsement. Both are more interested in the Congressional contest and playing politics to elect a committee. The fact that Marshall is making combinations with supporters of Ingals in some places and Cooper backers in other places, is proof that organization support for Brown is lacking in Greene county—and it cannot be denied. For this one reason we ask support for Mr. Brown Tuesday.

WHOSE YARD STICK IS CORRECT?

This is the season of political endorsements, usually the "Bought and Paid For" brand. Not always in cash but in many other ways that reaches into the pocket of the average citizen. Much of our politics today is a "racket". Both wets-drys use it in many quarters to get something over. But speaking of endorsements, "How can the Anti Saloon League oppose certain candidates on dry grounds and publically endorse Judge Florence Allen, as "satisfactory", when she is running on a wet platform in Cuyahoga county? Those who know politics know of course that a candidate for congress or any other office could not be elected from that county unless on a "wet" platform. The League must have two different yardsticks for measuring congressional candidates.

FROM THE "STICKS" IS RIGHT

We have had a Secretary of State for nearly three terms but you probably never thought much about it even though he came from the "sticks", the kind of country found in Greene county, for Clinton county, is the home of Clarence J. Brown, now Secretary of State and candidate for governor at the primary Tuesday. Maurice Maschke, Cleveland boss, says that "Clarence Brown could not have the urban viewpoint, coming from the sticks." Maschke of course has no use for Mr. Brown as secretary of state, because the gentleman from the "sticks" fired his Cuyahoga county election board a few years ago owing to corrupt elections. To Maurice that was an infringement on his rights as a political boss.

Maschke is supporting the Hoover administration candidate, David S. Ingals, but that is no fault of Mr. Ingals. It is unfortunate that he must carry the Walter Brown label for we believe the rural sections will resent the Maschke statement in support of Mr. Clarence Brown for governor Tuesday. The national administration is going to have all it can handle without meddling in Ohio elections. The Hoover suction sweeper has swept billions of our money across the ocean to Europe, paralyzing business, wrecking farm prices and burdening the nation to feed the unemployed. From statements made by Mr. Maschke that if it takes his candidate to win Ohio this fall, we venture the statement the Hoover administration will be a millstone to all Republican candidates and Republicans had better be talking about it before the national convention, than making excuses, apologies and I-told-you-sos next November. This should be the answer to the Cleveland boss.

HOW LOBBYISTS PLAY THE RACKET

The lobbyist plays an important part in our national and state government, far more than you realize. Only those in active touch with law-making bodies really know. There is a form of lobbying that is proper. All interests have a right to have a representative to look after proposed laws that may be beneficial. The reason many organizations are forced to employ a lobbyist is for protection. There are a number of such parasites in Ohio. We have in mind a member of the Ohio legislature that introduced what was known as a "milkster" bill. It was a proposed law that would be detrimental to certain business. Shortly after the bill was introduced a lobbyist, close political associate of the author of the proposed law, calls on a Springfield business man to represent his interests, on the belief that he could kill the bill. When asked what his fee would be he was told $5,000.00. That same year this lobbyist purchased a $30,000 home in an exclusive section of Columbus, his first home. It was a co-incident that during that same session the author of the bill we refer purchased a fine home in his city. The lobbyist boasted to a friend following adjournment of that session that he had made $60,000 that year.

He is told to pay the bill and like it. Once having acquired such a taste of socialism then a talker who whom you must vote for.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Cedarville Herald:

I wish you had published more of the history of Massias Creek Church. What you gave was highly interesting and I recall attending a service there probably about 1908-9. As remembered the house was full of people and Dr. H. H. George preached the sermon. As we turned off the Xenia pike, Rankin Bull's carriage had just turned the corner, and we had a fine time trying to keep in sight of his fast trotters.

The first Kyle picnic was in a grove near the Massias Creek Church. We boys played "Bull-pen" on the church lawn. But our belts were too tight for special feasts. My Mother was a member of that congregation in the 1840's. It does no good to be sorry, but we are all sorry when an old church where God was worshipped passes away.

Sincerely,
F. M. FOSTER.

New York City.

Dear Editor:

I feel like you should be complimented on your editorials and the column "Copper Kettle". Both are informative and create discussion and that is what the public should have. You evidently have no use for the demagogues and who should have? The whole world seems to be pestered with them. "All that glitters is not gold" and to get an inside view of conditions is worthwhile to me. The amount of noise raised about this and that is nothing more than the cry of our office holding class to keep the mind of people off the real issue—lower cost of government. Our people have been busy spending the past few years and let control of government pass into the office holding class and now we must pay the bill with higher taxes, which means higher cost on all we must buy.

I was disgusted several days ago when I heard a farm speaker over the radio trying to inflame one class against another class. He even said Jesus Christ, Patrick Henry, Jane Adams and Abraham Lincoln were radicals and the thought came to me that neither were demagogues. What we must have from my viewpoint as a farmer all classes united for one common cause, or we never will lift ourselves from this economic turmoil.

What we need and must have is a little more faith in God; a little more of the old-fashioned home-training for our children and banish much of the selfishness in the world. We are suffering too from the betrayal of certain financial interests that have a back-door entrance to high government offices. Some of these days the demagogues in Congress will be sent back home to stay and we should not send new ones there.

These are trying times and I think we have good reason to believe it is one way of punishment the Almighty is using to check us and give us more time to think of our future. The poor we will always have and they have had little to loose but how the unjust profits of many that made their living in the stockmarket have withered until Charles Schwab, steel magnate, said "there are no more wealthy men in this country." If this is a punishment we must accept it just as they did in Bible times. After all it may be a blessing that we must pause to take stock of ourselves. We are all suffering from individual negligence in permitting our government control to be held by those who profit in politics. The reward from such a plan is the same today as in the history of the world under the oldest rulers, is more and more taxes until there is confiscation of property for the benefit of those who live off the state and nation and the demagogue is our worst enemy and will continue to keep classes divided unless we arise to stop it.

Lesson for May 8

ESAU SELLS HIS BIRTHRIGHT (Temperance Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 25:17-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—And every man that striveth for the mastery is tempted in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Trade Between Brothers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Hungry Man's Costly Dinner.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Controlling Our Appetites.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Indulgence or Self-Control?

After years of married life, Isaac and Rebekah had no children to gladden their hearts. For Rebekah was barren. In response to Isaac's earnest prayers were born whose names were Esau and Jacob. The Lord revealed to Rebekah that the elder should serve the younger. This promise lay under the feet of the twins as they were born. The elder should have the place of pre-eminence.

1. Boys with a Difference (v. 27). Esau and Jacob were in decided contrast. They differed in appearance and disposition. Every child born into the world possesses a peculiar back of which is personality. No two are exactly alike, even twins, as Esau and Jacob. The wise parent, the wide-awake teacher, the educator seek diligently to discover this individuality in every child and to give it direction according to the laws of the individual being.

1. Esau was "a cunning hunter," a man of the field. He was energetic and of a roaming disposition, impulsive, and self-indulgent. He lacked foresight and was under the sway of appetite.

2. Jacob was "a plain man dwelling in tents." He was a home boy, choosing to look after the flocks and herds and other affairs at home. He was not, however, a negative character, for he showed great capacity for affection and administration.

11. Parental Favoritism (v. 28).

1. Isaac loved Esau because he did eat of his venison. He ought to have loved him because he was his son. It is a sad commentary upon a father that his love for his son had such issue, however, as like many today whose love is secured through such an appeal.

2. Rebekah loved Jacob. We are not told why she loved Jacob. Naturally, his being much at home would cause a peculiar love to spring up between him and his mother. This is practiced because of his being of a similar disposition. Both Jacob and his mother displayed unusual traits of cunning. Cleverness is the bond which strongly binds together many people.

111. A Birthright Sold (v. 29-34).

1. Esau's profane. The same thing is practiced who for the enjoyment of the present will forfeit all claim upon the future. He would gladly gain both worlds, but seeing that mess of pottage, he let go of the future for the enjoyment of the present. Swearing is profanity, but not of the most common variety. To be under the sway of appetite is to profane. What profanity about us! For a moment's sinful pleasure men and women are throwing away innocence, happiness, and their souls eternally. This is most serious, for their acts are irrevocable.

2. Jacob's cunning. It was right that Jacob should have the birthright for it was according to God's plan which had been announced (v. 23), but his scheme to get it is to be condemned. He took advantage of his brother's weakness to drive a sharp bargain. The same thing is practiced when under the force of necessity unlawful interest is accepted or property is bought under price because one is obliged to sell. To get rich at the expense of another is to practice Jacob's sin. Modern competitive business methods to a decided extent are of this type. Let each one ask himself, "Is my name Jacob?" The end never justifies the means. God said, "The older shall serve the younger." It was his plan that Jacob should be at the head of the family, and God was able to bring about his own plans.

POULTRY

FEED FOR POULTRY IN WINTER MONTHS

Laying Ration Proved Good by Experience.

What are the best methods of handling the farm flock of laying hens during the winter?

Suggestions are given by O. C. Dufford, extension poultryman at the Colorado Agricultural College, as follows:

Water is cheap and a very necessary food. Keep the laying flock always supplied with an abundance of clean water.

A good laying ration may include a scratch feed mixture of 40 pounds of cracked or shelled corn to 60 pounds of wheat. Experience has shown that the following approximate number of pounds of grain should be fed per 100 hens daily during the different winter seasons: Heavy breeds, 12 pounds in November, 14 in December, 15 in January, 16 in February, 14 in March and 12 in April; light breeds, 12 pounds in November, 12 in December, 12 in January, 12 in February, 15 in March and 15 in April.

Keep the laying mash before the hens all the time in non-waste hoppers.

As green feed, the following may be used: Cabbage when the price will permit, alfalfa, beets, carrots, etc. Keep a box of green in the laying house in winter time. Lime is furnished in the form of oyster shell or calcite.

Feed one-third of the grain in the morning and two-thirds in the evening; in straw litter at least an hour before dark. Fill the mash hoppers with fresh mash in the morning, if needed. Regularity of feeding and care are important for securing the best results.

Over-Early Production of Eggs Not Advisable

Fullets should be fed grown and well on in standard weight before they begin laying, advises Miss Corn Cooke, poultry specialist of the Minnesota agricultural extension division, University farm. Egg laying is a heavy strain, Miss Cooke explains, and if the pullets begin laying before they reach the proper maturity and condition, it is a cinch they will not hold out long and the eggs will be undersized.

Pullets that attain full weight before they begin to lay will produce bigger eggs from the start and will not be so likely to molt in the fall or early winter. Pullets should be in good flesh when they start laying. Any that are even slightly thin are likely to lay for only a short time. Those of the yellow-skinned breeds, and this includes pullets of the Orpington, Game, Game Game and other breeds that are a deep orange when laying commences.

If pullets show signs of laying too early they may be held back by giving them lots of scratch feed, Miss Cooke says. As summer advances, scratch feed should be steadily increased and when pullets go into laying quarters they should be eating about twice as much scratch as mash. Good feeding will be promoted if the scratch feed consists of at least one-third yellow corn.
