FIFTY-SIXTH YEAR NO. 38

CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY JULY 21, 1933

PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR

NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS.—The State Textbook Commission, consisting of Governor George White, Director of Education, B. O. Skinner and Secretary of State George S. Myers, held another meeting on Thursday of last week. A resolution offered by Secretary Myers was adopted by the commission setting forth that the maximum price for textbooks fixed by the commission need not be followed or used as a criterion by school boards throughout the state; that said figure is merely a maximum beyond which school boards and textbook commissions could not go. In addition thereto the resolution recited that the text book Commission urged all boards of education to purchase all textbooks as cheaply as possible and that the Textbook Commission "offers to the boards of education all possible aid in securing the minimum prices consistent with the production of high class textbooks." However, immediately thereafter on the question of fixing the maximum prices for school textbooks Mr. Skinner, Director of Education, made a motion that the maximum be 75 per cent of the list price. This motion was seconded by Governor White. Secretary Myers moved to amend the motion and to fix the maximum at 50 per cent of the list price. Myers supported the amendment while Governor White and Director Skinner voted "yes," while Secretary Myers voted "no."

The Supreme Court of Ohio on Wednesday of last week made ruling in three cases involving referenda on three separate acts passed by the Ninetieth General Assembly. One ruling held that the Mosier-Lawrence act was not subject to referendum. However, this case may be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States. In another action filed against the referendum on the road patrol bill and transfer of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles the Supreme Court sustained Secretary of State George S. Myers in his instructions to Boards of Election that the signatures on referendum petitions must be written by the signer himself but that the additional information, if not written in by the signer could be filled in by another. This ruling helps to preserve to the people the right of referendum on laws passed by the General Assembly. In another referendum action it was sought to restrain the Secretary of State from placing on the November ballot the said acts creating the road patrol and transfer of the bureau of motor vehicles to the Highway Department. In this action the Supreme Court overruled the demurrer filed by Attorney General John W. Bricker but the case has not yet been heard on its merits. An answer is to be filed by the Attorney General on behalf of the Secretary of State in the near future. The decision to be rendered in this case will materially affect the right of the people to make their own laws and will perhaps be the most far reaching of any decision by the Supreme Court since the new Constitution was adopted in 1912.

After having been located in the State House on High street for more than a century, the Ohio State Library is being moved to the new office building on Front street. For this reason the library will be closed until Tuesday, September 5. Librarian J. R. Clarke requests that the public return all books out promptly and to open correspondence when the opening time arrives for books again. Mr. Clarke announced that many new books will be added to the library, that a complete rejuvenation will take place in a few months, and new statewide activities will be put into effect from the elegant quarters on the 11th floor in the new home at 65 South Front street, Columbus.

A report released by Secretary of State George S. Myers last week indicated that the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, John P. Brennan commissioner, effected a saving in operations in the first six months of 1933 of over $44,000 as compared with the corresponding period of 1932. Personal service and maintenance cost for the first six months of last year was $170,955.71, while for the first six months of 1933 it was only $126,882.10. This is a saving of 25 per cent, the goal aimed at the beginning of the year. A continuation of this average for the remainder of 1933 would mean a saving of over $88,000. In December, 1932, the number of employees in the Bureau was 173, while in June, 1933, it had been reduced to 145.

REDUCTION IN REALTY VALUES BY AUDITOR

County Auditor James J. Curlett announced Wednesday that he had permission of the State Tax Commission to reduce real estate valuation for taxation in this county ten per cent, this being the second cut without in slightly more than a year. It will become effective for the first half of the tax collection in December 1933.

The duplicate in the county will be reduced to about $27,000,000, from $30,000. All tax rates under the fifteen mill limitation will bring reduced income to all tax districts in the county.

County Auditor Curlett decided that real estate is still bearing more than its share of the tax burden from direct taxation and was entitled to a reduction. Prosecutor Marcus McCallister has rendered a legal opinion backing the Auditor in the reduction.

TURNING YOUNG FOLKS INTO THE STREET

We are hearing much these days about the use and abuse of child labor, sweat-shops, minimum wages, and other social ideals that are considered more from the financial standpoint than for the protection of human beings.

Where does child labor begin and end? Should we deny young people the right to learn to work and earn something for themselves and possibly their parents in many cases? Where is the safe line of demarcation between child labor and labor of young boys and girls? Should we follow some of the suggestion that boys and girls should be of age or near their majority before being allowed to earn something for themselves? These as well as many other questions might be asked but the answers would be as numerous and different as the questions.

Certainly child labor should not be permitted but young folks in good health, full of hope and inspiration to do something for themselves, should have their opportunity when that urge dawns upon them as nature so intended. If we would listen to some of the so-called up-lifters there would be no opportunity for a boy or girl in their early teens. There would be no place for them other than in the streets or on the highways. The Creator probably never intended that human beings would be regulated as a machine. Some young folks first feel this desire for opportunity of self support from twelve to fifteen. Others from fifteen to eighteen or twenty.

If we read the life history of some of our national and industrial leaders correctly we find many of them were at employment in their early teens, working daily and studying at night for self education. The youth must learn to work at the time nature prepared him for that work for legislation, rules and regulation cannot supplant the laws of nature. But legislation and enforcement can retard the laws of nature and wreck the future of the youth.

There has been great social injustice in many instances inflicted on young labor but our idea is that the employer should be held accountable to cure the ill rather than deny young folks the right to work for hire if they so desire. There certainly is no moral wrong in the sons working for their fathers on the farm nor has attempt been made to check it, whether they work for hire or board, or both. To say that a boy from town cannot work for hire on a farm is no different than to say he should not have the same opportunity in industry.

To deny young folks the opportunity to have gainful employment we are but creating a situation that will lead us into serious trouble in the future. The old saying that the "idle brain is the devil's workshop" is true. For some years back young folks have been denied the chance to work in the city. They have been forced into the streets where they oftentimes fell under evil influences and today police records show that the gunman is the youth in his teens or early twenties, out of employment or having no background due to the fact he had missed his chance to learn to work when nature intended it to be.

REDUCTION IN REAL ESTATE FOR TAXATION

It is almost safe to predict that County Auditor James J. Curlett is to get a reduction of ten per cent in the valuations of all real estate in the county for tax purposes. The Auditor is well aware that property owners are entitled to such a reduction and he has submitted the question to the State Tax Commission for approval. The sale of land as well as urban property is proof that present valuations are out of reason under present conditions. Rentals have dropped whereby most owners have been unable to realize even a profit.

Not only valuations must be reduced in fairness to property owners but there must be lower limitations for tax rates. A movement is now under way to initiate a limitation of ten mills, fifteen being the maximum rate under the present constitution. Two bills were offered in the last legislature, one for ten mills and the other twelve, but neither received much consideration from administration leaders and died in committees. Such changes by law would not be binding on the next legislature and to protect property the constitution must be changed.

The first obstructive move towards the initiated ten mill limit came last week from the Ohio State Farm Bureau when the trustees voted to ask Gov. White to call the legislature to pass a twelve mill limit act. Farmers that we have contacted on this proposition are as much opposed to the Bureau movement as are other property owners. The Ohio Taxpayers' Association, composed of both farm and urban citizens, numbering several thousand members, is taking the lead for a change in the constitution for ten mill limitation and this organization should have active support irrespective of what the Farm Bureau desires. To call the legislature in session again would cost the state thousands of dollars and granting the twelve mill act was passed it might be repealed at the following session.

We hope property owners will not be tricked as they were when classification of property for taxation was presented as a panacea for our taxation ills. It is admitted that in the face of classification real estate is paying nearly three-fourths of the tax in Ohio. This should appeal to property owners and guarantee support of the ten mill limitation.

Ohio property is facing new taxation in more than one way. It is proposed now to place all sinking fund requirements on real estate. Adopt old age pensions and you place another tax on real estate. Other relief measures in the background may be made possible by additional real estate tax. To increase tax levies hits real estate.

This is not a pleasant outlook for real estate in the future unless you give approval to the ten mill limitation for taxation on your home or farm. It is your only protection. Talk it among your friends and neighbors. Sign the petitions when you have the chance and remember you must campaign for it at the election in November. We expect to see it get the largest vote ever cast in Ohio on any initiated or referred measure.

It looks now like Gov. White would call the legislature in extra session before September to consider more new tax measures. He is to veto several tax bills to get more revenue instead of reducing the cost of state government.

The solid South seems to have taken on the liquid stage.

When the Cincinnati Reds are "in the cellar" baseball seems to have little attraction for the fans in these parts. The Reds might try softball.

All lines of industry are trying to build codes under the Recovery Act. Its more like making it easier for the "big fish to swallow the little ones."

Summer School ends today so once more vacation starts.

A news report says fewer marriages brings fewer divorces. If this is true there should be no marriages permitted in the motion picture colony at Hollywood.

Wheat takes a big drop. So did a lot of speculators that held their wheat.

The railroad companies still cling to the old order and refuse to bid for the popular travel to Chicago by rates that will compete with the automobile.

There is consolation to business executives in the new business codes. The proprietors are to get less hours at the desk and pay themselves more money.

ISAIAH DENOUNCES DRUNKENNESS AND OTHER SINS

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 61-63. GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people. Prov. 14:34

1. Israel, the Unique and Beloved Nation (vv. 1-7). The unique relation of this nation to God is presented under the figure of a vineyard (v. 3).

2. The obligation of the nation (v. 2). God did for this nation what he did for no other nation in the history of the world.

3. The "planted it with the choicest vine" when the Israelitish nation, which had gone through the disciplinary process in Egyptian bondage, was placed there.

4. The "built a tower in the midst of it" when David Jerusalem was made the capital city.

5. The "made a vinepress therein" when the temple built by Solomon because the fixed place of worship for the nation.

6. The "desolation of the vineyard" (v. 5-7). Since all efforts had been wasted, the owner of the vineyard purposes to take away the fences and leave it to be exposed to the wild beasts to waste and devour.

7. The "Sins Which Brought Ruin to Israel" (vv. 8-23).

1. Monopoly and oppression (vv. 8-10). The crime against which the first woe was denounced was that of the avaricious grasping after property which tends to the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few.

2. Dissipation (vv. 11-17). The particular sin denounced here is that of drunkenness. How we shudder to contemplate what God says to America as she brings back liquor! This sin is never alone.

3. Drinking made the life-business of some (v. 11). They get up early in the morning and continue until late at night. A duplication of this will soon be seen in all of our American cities.

4. The saloon and brothel always have music. Pleasing music was always heard pouring forth from the infamous saloon. The prostitution of music has led many an unsuspecting youth into the way of sin.

5. Business as God's warnings and judgments (v. 12). Drinking and dissipation render men insensible to God's dealings.

6. God's judgments for such sin (vv. 13-17). The people were carried into captivity. Not only would they go into captivity, but there was great mortality among the drunkards (v. 14). The records everywhere show a much higher death rate among drinking men than among abstainers. Drinking degrades all classes (v. 15). The rich and mighty men are brought down with the poor and humble. Even the country itself was made desolate (v. 17).

7. Unbelief (vv. 18, 19). This woe is denounced against the sinner who presumptuously plunges into vice. He is not overtaken with sin, but deliberately goes after it and works at it. He becomes so drunk as to defy the judgments of the Almighty (v. 19).

8. Moral confusion (v. 20). This woe is pronounced against those who try to adjust moral conditions to suit their sensual appetites.

9. Conceit (v. 21). The fifth woe is pronounced against the sin of self-conceit.

10. Perjury of Justice (vv. 22, 23). The sixth woe is pronounced against judges who, because of a lack of moral discrimination, and the desire for temporal gain, cause justice to miscarry.

11. Predicted Judgment (v. 24-30). The historic fulfillment of these predictions are but types of the severe ones which are to follow.

Secretary of State George Myers lost his contest with Gov. White and Director of Education, the three comprising the Ohio School Text Book Commission.

Myers at a meeting some months ago proposed a fifty per cent cut in school text books to bring them on par with other commodities. Both the Governor and Education Director protested such a cut and the two voted for a seventy-five per cent limit with Myers holding out for fifty per cent. The Governor and his entire administration have opposed Myers and endeavored to hamper him as Secretary of State where ever possible, although all are Democrats.

Keep your weather-eye on Myers in the future. We do not believe the electors of Ohio will forget him when it comes to marking ballots at the polls. The Governor may find it different when and if he announces for United States Senator.

A committee of the Ohio Senate is conducting an investigation in banking conditions in Cleveland, so far as state banks are concerned. Some serious charges have been made against the Ohio State Bank Department in permitting the Union Trust and Guardian Trust Companies to remain open months after they were insolvent. Depositors will lose many millions. Those who know something of bank conditions in Ohio say the state is very lame on laws governing state banks and that the banking department is not clothed with proper authority to enforce regulations. Why such laws have not been enacted is answered that state banks have had a lobby about the legislature to keep proper laws being enacted.

It will be recalled that condition of state banks back under the Cooper administration was the subject of much comment. There was criticism of the manner in which O. C. Gray, head of the department, conducted affairs. We no doubt are nearing the time when we will have but one banking system in the United States. The first step being taken by the last Congress in providing for guaranteed bank deposits but this was only possible to such institutions that are members of the Federal Reserve.

Nearly all national banks are members of the Federal Reserve but few state banks are members. Guaranteed bank deposits will require stricter laws and a more thorough inspection of banks than we have had in the past. Congressman Steagall, one of the co-authors of the Glass-Steagall guaranteed banking act, stated over the radio some nights ago that the law will be widened and also made more drastic at the next session of congress to give depositors more protection. Press reports say that some of the largest banks as well as small banks in the country are endeavoring to break down the law now before it is in operation.

The manner in which our political statesmen are jumping the wet bandwagon or at least remaining non-committal on the 18th amendment repeal proposition is amusing to us. It has been only a few years ago that you were out of date if you sought public office and did not come out squarely for national prohibition. This made no difference whether you were a candidate for constable or United States Senator. With the drift in sentiment to the wets, followed by victory in state after state, the old fashioned dry candidate for public office now must have a double barreled statement, something to hold the wet vote and at the same time offer a vop of sop to the dries. The candidate that offers his candidacy strictly on the prohibition question, would be judged a fit person for the asylum.

Reports are sifting over the Seventh Congressional District the next two weeks that former Secretary of State, Clarence J. Brown, is being talked about as a possible candidate for congress in this district. Brown's most intimate friends have no part in spreading the reports and it is hinted that certain so-called state politicians, interested in the Republican governorship nomination, would like to see the way cleared for an unnamed candidate for that nomination. The peculiar feature is that three of the state politicians connected with this movement have always been back of Congressman Marshall. They would sidetrack the one term congressman to get Brown out of the governorship contest. At that we hear these leaders have gone so far as to put Clinton, Warren, Madison, Fayette, Clark and Union counties as certain for Brown. This would leave only Greene, Union and Logan for Marshall. Our guess is that Brown will be in the governorship contest. If he should be influenced to go after the congressional honors the bandwagon would not hold all the jumpers.

We understand hundreds of college students are earning money at the Century of Progress Exposition by pushing wheeled chairs with occupants that cannot stand the strain of walking. These wheeled chairs are for hire and you rent them by the hour. All that visit the fair say it is an educational treat. As for being spectacular nothing like it was ever witnessed at night. The lighting effect surpasses anything ever attempted. However if you have fallen arches and troublesome corns better reserve a wheeled chair.

County Commissioner Chester Jacobs tells us that his neighborhood on the Dayton-Xenia pike has not had a soaking rain since last May. As a result pastures are burned out and growing crops have suffered. We are more fortunate here but dry enough. We noticed on a trip to Oxford a few days ago a strip of about twenty miles crops were fine, corn high as your head and in tassle. Gardens looked fresh and green. Around Oxford it was a different story. Crops suffering for rain.

Madison county reports a wave of Chinch bugs that attack corn as well as other green crops. Logan and Champaign counties are also suffering from the pest. The best method reported to combat the bugs is a strip of tar around the corn field. It is said the bugs will not cross it and they do not fly. Only a few reports have come to light in this county.

Workmen were engaged Monday in removing the big vault doors in the room formerly occupied by the Commercial and Savings Bank in Xenia. Fixtures had been removed and what once appeared as a modern outfit for banking purposes had almost disappeared. Removing the big vault was like lifting a monument and leaving the spot unmarked. The bank has been in the process of liquidation and is now nearing the time when it will completely pass into history, unfortunately as it is. The past two years has taught bankers and depositors more than in any twenty-five years that have passed on. Perfection has not been reached yet. Guaranteed bank deposits is the first step for safety.

The extent to which kidnaping is carried on in recent months is causing much alarm over the country. Ever since the Lindbergh son was kidnaped and killed the mania seems to have been enforced in scores of cases. Not only children but youths and men of mature years have had to pay a high price for their liberty. Even one of the so-called racketeers in Chicago fell into the hands of another gang that demanded ransom for liberty. What is the cause of all this kidnaping? Most everyone has an answer but the motion picture industry is being charged with laying the foundation for the craze. There is no doubt that hundreds of pictures have a background that could be developed into most any sort of crime. The reflection on Ohio is that all motion pictures are supposed to be licensed after being approved by a department under the State Director of Education. We often wonder whether much consideration is given when licenses are granted.

The new law in Ohio is compelling proprietors of all barber shops to set their places in order. If the law is not complied with and license granted before September first, the owners of unlicensed shops will be subject to fines. Shops must add much new equipment such as sterilizing equipment, hot and cold running water, two clean towels to each customer. The steam towel heater is outlawed. Shops must be inspected and licensed. Barbers must pass examinations. All this is going to call for higher prices.

The strike of 250 employees at the plant of the Krippendorff-Dittman Co., Xenia, has been settled and all returned to work. The company made a compromise offer which was accepted. It is said the company, which is owned in Cincinnati, with several branches in other towns, was never concerned about the future for if the worst came to the worst the machinery would be moved from Xenia to another plant. This would have been a heavy blow to Xenia business houses.

The government in order to reduce expenses had a set plan to close a number of offices in various cities. Local weather bureau offices were in the list. When the word was sent out about the economy plan up went complaints that reached Washington. Thus you have the situation when you go to reduce government costs. Each city wants the reduction made someplace else. Dayton is the closest town affected and the weather office is to be turned over to the Miami Conservancy District for recording temperature and rainfall. With the radio and newspaper announcing the weather daily and communication much quicker than in years past, many of these offices will never be missed when closed. And then you cannot reduce until you reduce.

The federal administration has proposed changes in the civil service law and of course trouble can be expected. If you want to start something just tackle the civil service sham that is paraded before the people by politicians. It is the most expensive thing ever proposed and once a politician gets on the pay roll he is usually there for years whether needed or not. No law is more corruptly enforced or used by either of the major parties than this sham that is only theoretical, has little that is practical, and covers a way to keep politicians deep in public service. Imagine the interview of the applicant with the examiner as being fifty per cent of the grade. If the applicant has the necessary political committee endorsement with fifty per cent of the grade assured, the applicant with qualifications and no endorsement stands little chance of even being one of the first three to be recommended.

Attorney General John W. Bricker has just rendered an opinion that failure to pay personal property taxes due, calls for a penalty of fifty per cent. With a penalty on the second non-payment, Ohio counties may be engaged in all kinds of business. The attorney general has also ruled that school boards may purchase liability insurance on school buses.

FINDINGS REPORTED IN GREENE COUNTY

Findings totaling $12,121.48, reported by F. B. Householder, state examiner, following an examination of county offices, represent mistakes of the "head" and not of the "heart," the examiner said.

There were 23 findings listed in the report, which covers the period from Feb. 2, 1932, to Feb. 13, 1933. Of the total sum $4280.98 has been paid, leaving a balance due of $7840.50, of which the largest individual sum—$1865.13—is against Beaver Creek township.

This amount represents the township's 50 per cent share of the cost of improving 2.5 miles of the Mt. Zion-Zimmerman road. The report says the township and county agreed to share the expense of this improvement.

NEW YORK PAPER GIVES DETAIL OF RELIGIOUS WORK BY MISS DOROTHY COLLINS

The New York Post gives the following account of the work in the religious field being carried on by Miss Dorothy Collins of this place.

Miss M. Dorothy Collins of Brooklyn gave an enthusiastic and emphatic challenge yesterday to those doubting Thomases who say that the Christian church is not meeting human needs in these difficult days. Out of her experience as educational director for the Brooklyn Division of the Metropolitan Federation of Daily Vacation Bible Schools, Inc., she expressed her conviction that religion is marching triumphantly forward and taking a constantly increasing part in the daily lives of persons of all ages in the metropolitan area.

"In Brooklyn alone," she said, "our group is to sponsor seventy-nine vacation Bible schools for five weeks, with daily sessions from 9 to 12, and 10,000 children in this borough will take part in them. In the greater city there will be around three hundred such schools organized and between thirty and thirty-five thousand children will be in attendance. Hundreds of teachers, most of them volunteers, will try to lead these children to higher standards of Christian living. The ages of the children range from 4 to 14 and we believe that the summer training in Bible study and instruction in ideals of Christian living are bound to influence these thousands of children throughout their lives."

Her First Year
This is Miss Collins' first year as educational director, although she has been associated for several years with the federation. "The plans for this year's activities were started last winter," she said, "when invitations were sent out through the Protestant churches, including the Presbyterian and Episcopalian, to attend the ten week's course for leadership training held in St. George's Church, Manhattan. That has been the first step in the federation program—to train leaders. Sunday school teachers, public school teachers and others—

150 from Brooklyn, about 400 from the greater city—took this course.

All of these leaders are to gather for the three-day institutes to be held on June 28, 29 and 30. These institutes will be conducted in all-day sessions. Instruction will be given in the teaching of various types of craft work and outstanding church leaders, clergymen and others will lecture on different phases of the Bible school activities and problems.

The Brooklyn institute will meet at the Central Methodist Episcopal Church, Hanson Place. On Friday noon there will be a fellowship luncheon. Manhattan's institute will be held in the Memorial House of St. George's Episcopal Church and the Friends' Meeting House, Sixteenth street and Snyvesant Square.

The Bible schools in the various churches will open on July 5 and all leaders are expected to meet weekly for conference and mutual helpfulness during the sessions. One senses something of fervor like that of the early days of the church among these twentieth century workers.

"We are working on a smaller budget this year," said Miss Collins. "Some of the churches are unable to finance their own schools and the federation must assume the cost, but the spirit of the workers has never been better. The fact that most of them are on a volunteer basis is what enables us to go forward. We feel that these vacation Bible schools are the finest part of the educational service of the churches."

As soon as the summer Bible schools are fairly started Miss Collins will start plans for the fall campaign, interesting parents to seek closer cooperation with the Sunday schools and working out the program for next winter's leadership training course.

First Entry For Ohio Junior Fair

One of the first entries to be received in the Home Economics Department of this year's Ohio State Junior Fair came from Mabel K. Combs, Home Economics teacher in the Osborn High School, according to State Fair officials.

Under the supervision of Miss Combs, the girls of the Osborn Home Economics Class will make an exhibit at the Ohio State Junior Fair, which will be held in connection with the Ohio State Fair, August 28 to September 2, portraying an exhibit in clothing showing how classroom instruction in the past year has resulted in clothing economies. This exhibit will compete with similar exhibits, which will be made by other High Schools for many worthwhile prizes.

The girls, who will take part in this exhibit are: Ada Arms, Kathryn Bausman, Florence Brown, Amy Mayenschein, Ruth Gebhart, Pauline Linebaugh, Aveline Morris, Ruth Pusey, Mable Zimmer, Virginia Zimmer, Loma Lail, Garnet Clingman, Lucille Koogler, Alice Ekhart, Margaret Burger, Ruth Lewis, Olga Lewis, Christine Lewis, Grace Stewart, Irene Smith, Ruth Van Pelt, Alice Mayenschein, Elayne Velsy, Goldie Schrader, Winnifred Bell, Dorothea Hill, Grace Boots, Josephine Fischer, Katharine Gues, Pearl Osborn, Thelma Osborn, Louise Birch, Leora Bruney, Helen Weaver, Violet Arnold, Dorothy Stiner, Edna Maxton, Mildred Semler, Vera McColaugh, Hilda Kies.

REPORT SMALLEST CROPS IN YEARS

A crop failure greater than that of the drought year of 1930 is the essence of the reports of the 25,000 farmer crop reporters to Uncle Sam's bureau of agricultural economics. Crop prospects in Ohio, however, are reported to be fair.

Reports point to the smallest wheat crop in 40 years, the third smallest corn crop in 30 years, and the smallest oats crop in 40 years. Total production of all grains in the United States is expected to be 13 per cent smaller than in the drought year.

No great shortage of these grains is expected to be felt, owing to the larger than usual carryovers of these grains on farms. In fact, points out C. R. Arnold, extension economist for the Ohio State University, more than half of the huge wheat carryover of the world is located in the United States.

The "fair" crops of grain in Ohio, together with the price rises, have given to Ohio crop producers a greater boost in purchasing power than in any other area in the country, according to Arnold.

He points out, however, that dairymen and poultrymen are being pinched between rising grain prices and not-so-fast rising milk and poultry products prices.

Ohio's wheat crop is the second largest in seven years, 28 per cent larger than the average for the years 1926-1930. No other state harvests anywhere near an average crop.

No Good Reason for Stopping the "Abuse"

Caroline Ticknor, in "Glimpses of Authors," gives us a peep at Longfellow as a business man as well as a poet. In November, 1855, soon after "Hilwatha" had been published and was selling madly all over the country, a Boston paper dared to criticize it adversely. Soon criticisms concerning the source of "Hilwatha" and accusations of imitation were made by newspapers from coast to coast.

Longfellow's publisher—Fields—was greatly annoyed. One day, bursting into the poet's study, he exclaimed:

"These atrocious libels must be stopped."

Longfellow said quietly:

"By the way, Fields, how is 'Hilwatha' selling?"

"Wonderfully! None of your books has ever had such a sale."

"Then," said the poet calmly, "I think we had better let those people go on advertising it."

Why We Do What We Do
By M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE LOSE INTEREST

WE GET interested, but we don't stay interested. We lose interest either temporarily or permanently, taking on new interests and casting them off as worn-out clothes. Some interests hold us longer than others.

The reasons for losing interest are fatigue and saturation. We lose interest because we become tired in body and mind and cannot hold our attention on the interest. As much as children love to hear stories, they sometimes get so tired that they lose interest and fall asleep.

True fatigue causes the loss of interest in the economy of health. It is also true that loss of interest due to being fed up on the thing causes false fatigue. Often we think we are terribly tired when in reality we are merely disinterested. We are tired of the thing we are doing and assume that the whole body is tired. We say, "that makes me tired," or "he makes me tired," when we mean that the thing or person referred to does not interest us.

Some interests we lose permanently because our tastes are changing. We grow away from the thing that once held us firmly. Darwin, for example, testifies that after thirty years of research in animal and plant specimens in support of his famous theory of evolution he suddenly discovered that he had lost his interest in literature.

Here is a curious thing in the matter of losing interest. We lose interest if we overindulge in a thing and get fed up and tired if not actually disgusted. On the other hand, we also lose interest if we neglect the thing we are interested in. To keep up an interest in anything, it seems necessary to indulge moderately and at rather frequent intervals.

CHINCH BUG DAMAGE WORST IN 15 YEARS

Chinch bug damage to crops in central and northwestern Ohio is worse this year than in 15 years, according to reports of farmers to T. H. Parks, extension specialist in entomology for the Ohio State University. Whole fields of corn are being destroyed by the beetles as they migrate from wheat and barley fields.

The destructive marches began about July 1. Population of bugs was augmented this year, explains Parks, by the unusually dry summer weather. Drought is favorable to chinch bug development, and in areas that are the driest, damage is the greatest.

Worse damage is in fields of corn adjoining spring barley. In many farmers saved their corn fields by laying down barriers of a tar containing cresote.

Upon approaching the lines of tar surrounding the fields, the bugs hesitated and accumulated, and each day they were destroyed by torch fire. Temporary barriers of dust were used successfully until tar could be procured. Within a few days, says Parks, the march of destruction will have ended. The bugs will take to their wings and disperse.

Severe damage was reported from Madison, Champaign, Union, Delaware, Franklin, Licking, Fairfield, Hardin, Hancock, Lucas, Wood, and Morrow counties.

GUM-DIPPED CORDS
The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process transforms the cotton cords into a strong, tough, sinewy unit. Liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, guarding against internal friction and heat, greatly increasing the strength of the cord body, and giving longer tire life.

TWO EXTRA GUM-DIPPED CORD PLYS UNDER THE TREAD

This is a patented construction, and the two extra Gum-Dipped cord plys are so placed that you get 56% stronger bond between tread and cord body, and tests show 26% greater protection against punctures and blowouts. It sets a new standard for tire performance on high speed cars.

NON-SKID TREAD
Tough, live rubber specially compounded for long, slow wear. Scientifically designed non-skid gives greater traction and safe, quiet performance.
