Internships with Speaker Ryan, Rep. Turner and Davidson are Highlights to DC Semester

CEDARVILLE, OHIO – Cedarville University students experienced U.S. domestic and foreign policy firsthand as they spent the semester working, living and learning in Washington, D.C.

In addition to their internships, students earned college credit through courses taught by Dr. Glen Duerr, assistant professor of international studies and faculty supervisor for this semester’s program.

For Duerr, one of the most beneficial aspects of this program is students gaining experience while making valuable networking connections.

“The time spent on Capitol Hill this semester is of immense value; not only do the students have a much greater understanding of U.S. domestic and foreign policy, they also have tangible real-world experience," said Duerr. "In essence, they are all in a four-month ‘job interview’ since many interns are hired postgraduation.”

In addition to their internships and coursework, students also experienced other unique opportunities the city had to offer. The group visited the Pentagon and the FBI Academy, with tours and Q&A sessions with Cedarville alumni afterward; completed an international simulation and tour at the State Department; visited the U.S. Capitol; and completed tours and Q&A sessions at both The Heritage Foundation and the Foundation for Defense of Democracies. They also enjoyed a Washington Nationals baseball game and a visit to the National Air and Space Museum.

“For any major, it is an opportunity to really learn how government works,” said Duerr. “There are so many political and historical opportunities for learning around every corner.”
