Wall Street Journal Ranks Cedarville No. 2 for engagement

CEDARVILLE, OHIO – Cedarville University, according to the Wall Street Journal, is ranked No. 3 nationally and No. 2 in the Midwest for student engagement. Cedarville is the highest ranked university in Ohio, followed by Miami University and Ohio Northern University tied at No. 6.

Dordt College in Iowa tops the national list for student engagement.

In 2017, Cedarville was ranked No. 4 among universities across the nation.

According to the Wall Street Journal, engagement measures students' views on their interaction with faculty and staff, effectiveness of teaching, and whether students would recommend their school. The WSJ collects this data primarily through student surveys.

The WSJ reported students attending Cedarville University overwhelmingly (85 percent) believe they made the right choice in their college selection. Similarly, more than 80 percent communicated the Cedarville environment fosters exceptional students who inspire and motivate each other. More than 85 percent of students believe they are being effectively prepared for their desired careers and life ministry opportunities.

Located in southwest Ohio, Cedarville University is an accredited, Christ-centered, Baptist institution with an enrollment of 3,963 undergraduate, graduate and online students in more than 100 areas of study. Founded in 1887, Cedarville is recognized nationally for its authentic Christian community, rigorous academic programs, strong graduation and retention rates, accredited professional and health science offerings and leading student satisfaction ratings.
